POPE PLEADS FOR FAIR WAGE TO THE WORKER

Deplores Wealth in Hands of Few.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 15.—From the heights of his pontifical throne, erected in Damascus courtyard of the Vatican, Pope Pius XI. today surveyed modern economic society and launched an appeal to the world over the radio for all men of good will to unite for the renovation of capitalism from abuses into which he declared it had degenerated. Shortly before the pope made his speech a summary of an encyclical he proposes to issue in the near future on the subject of capital and labor was distributed among his hearers. This summary was read over the radio by Msgr. Francis J. Spellman of Whitman, Mass., when the pope had concluded.

In his radio address Pope Pius referred to his proposed encyclical and sounded as the keynotes of this document the three words, prayer, action, sacrifice. He declared that in these three words could be found all the eloquence of "the Catholic program or Catholic direction, individual or social."

Pope Denounces Communism.

The occasion for today's ceremony was the fortieth anniversary of Rerum Novarum, Pope Leo's XIII.'s famous encyclical on the same subject. About 3,000 pilgrims from all over the world are now in Rome to celebrate this anniversary. The pope's address was delivered in the presence of 22 cardinals, the entire diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican, and 10,000 people. Many Americans were present, among them Bishop O'Hara of Great Falls, Mont., and John A. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The pontiff in the summary of the encyclical, which was distributed to his audience, denounced socialism and communism as worse than the evils they sought to remedy. Capitalism he did not condemn in itself as an economic system, but he characterized it as having been deformed by grave abuses through the concentration of economic power in the hands of a few, which, he said, has degenerated into tyrannical despotism.

Worker Must Have Fair Wage.

To remedy this situation, the pontiff declared, it is essential that the proletariat be enabled gradually to obtain some of the advantages enjoyed by the proprietors. In the present order, he continued, this can be accomplished only by a fair and just wage. Wages, therefore, must be such as to satisfy the legitimate workingman, not only for him to improve his person, but also for his family and to make it possible for him to improve his condition within the limits above described.

The entire economic system of the world, the pope declared, must be reconstructed to bring about a more equitable distribution of the wealth of the world between capital and labor. One of the causes of the present depression, the pope said, is that there is an undeniably excessive and unjust disproportion of the commodities of life between capital and labor.

Riches Held by a Few.

"Great riches," he declared, "are accumulated in the hands of a few, while the workers have nothing of their own except their hands and the sweat of their brow.

"Work is not any kind of saleable commodity but one in which the human dignity of the workingman must always be respected. The various trades, industries and occupations must all work together toward the common good, and human society will be more cordially united and harmoniously organized the more faithfully all and each practice their own professions and follow their own vocations.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

VATICAN CITY, May 15.—(AP)—Following is the text of the pope's address:

"You are welcome, beloved children, you whom the powerful voice of our immortal predecessor, Leo XIII., almost reechoing in eternal splendor, has called together in the house of the common Father.

"You are twice and thrice welcome while from so many countries far and near you bring us so worthy a representation of the workers of the whole world.

"You bring us a representation actuated by that happy concord and union of workers and givers of work, of directors and workmen which is necessary for the advantage of everyone.

"Our very dear Roman people h. s

OFF WITH THE OLD, ON WITH THE NEW! SAYS MRS. GIRARD

The following telephone conversation took place last night between Charles Mueller, desk sergeant at Town Hall police station, and Mrs. Emma Girard, proprietor of a delicatessen at 954 Crescent place.

Sergt. Mueller—"Hello. Mrs. Girard? Could you go down to the detective bureau tomorrow to look at robbery suspects? We have nine men in custody."

Mrs. Girard—"How did you know I'd been robbed?"

The sergeant—"My records show you were held up six months ago by three men. They got $45. Don't you remember, or is this the wrong Mrs. Girard?"

Mrs. Girard—"It's the right Mrs. Girard, all right. But never mind about the old case now. Another pair of gunmen just came in and got $35. They left just this minute. Send somebody over."

Independent Milk Wagon Driver's Garage Bombed

A bomb was exploded early this morning in the garage of Walter Schuth at the rear of his home, 3318 North Kildare avenue. The damage was estimated at $100. Last December Schuth was expelled from the Milk Wagon Drivers' union because of his efforts to have the by-laws amended to fix a shoter tenure of office for officials of the union, he told the police. Recently he started an independent milk route, and he lays the bombing to that fact.

Cermak Lops City Cars Off Some Officials

When Harry Kohl took up his new duties as city boiler inspector yesterday it was found that he did not have use of the city automobile assigned to his predecessor under the last administration. This led to a discovery that Mayor Cermak has started putting the lid on city cars and car maintenance.

"Kohl was told before he was appointed," said the mayor, "that he would not have a city car because his duties did not call for it. And the same thing applies to other offices where similar conditions exist. For example, when the new superintendent of the license bureau is named he will be told that he will not have a city car because his duties should confine him to his office."

Considers Individual Cases.

Questioned as to how far this form of retrenchment would be carried—reminded that other department heads have cars and chauffeurs—Mayor Cermak said the individual cases will be considered by themselves.

The mayor also was asked about the flat rate allowances to many city employés for the maintenance of their own cars, which supposedly are used in the city's business. The top allowance for this purpose is $90 a month, which averages about $4 a day when the holidays and half-days are allowed for.

And members of the city council have been allowed a flat rate of $60 a month for their cars with nobody checking on the mileage, the daily use or even the existence of the private cars, it is said. In other words, $720 a year is added to the salary of every alderman who accepts it.

Some Refuse the Money.

But there are some members of the council who do not believe in the allowance. For example, Ald. John A. Massen [48th] never has accepted it. Ald. James C. Moreland has turned over for the relief of unemployment in his ward, the 41st, what money has come to him from this source.

Discussion of Mayor Cermak's position in reference to city cars later disclosed that whereas his predecessor had three expensive cars assigned to him—with two chauffeurs—the present mayor uses only one city car.

Peruvian General Strike Ends; Workers Return

POLICEMAN FOR EVERY 2 BLOCKS, PLAN OF ALCOCK

An immediate survey of all police districts to determine how many patrolmen will be required for a distribution of one each to every two square blocks was ordered last night by Acting Police Commissioner Alcock.

A comprehensive report from each of the forty-one district commanders must be in the chief's office not later than 9 a. m. Monday.

The order is regarded as a move by Alcock to place more men on patrol duty. When he assumed office last June he reduced the detective bureau staff from 850 men to 380, sending nearly 500 men to uniformed work. The commissioner declared at that time in favor of more patrol details. His theory, he explained, was that policemen on the street, covering a definite area, became known to the people and feared by criminals.

SEARCH SHIP FOR LOST NECKLACE WORTH $90,000

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Loss of a $90,000 pearl necklace was reported to police tonight by Mrs. Converse Strong of Santa Barbara, Cal.

The captain of the liner Roma was requested by wireless to search his ship for the necklace, especially the state room in which Mrs. Strong had been, and detectives are searching the city.

Mrs. Strong, Mrs. E. C. Converse, and a friend went to the ship to bid Mrs. Converse good-by when she sailed for Europe. Returning to the hotel, Mrs. Strong missed the necklace.

Three Turkey Thieves Sent to Whipping Post

Wilmington, Del., May 15.—(AP)—Three men from Henderson, Md., pleaded guilty today to charges of stealing turkeys and were sentenced to be whipped and to be imprisoned six months each. Wendall Shockley and Hiram Bright will be given ten lashes each and Austin Bright fifteen.

Police Seek Slick Conman on Gold Coast

John Factor, known as Jake the Barber when he was a tonsorial artist in Chicago, was hunted last night by the Chicago police. The British government is after him this time. The detectives and federal agents who last night waited for him to return to his Gold Coast apartment talked of an international swindle, the biggest coup, they said, since Jake closed his out price Halsted street shop fifteen years ago and started after the suckers.

GODFREY HAGGARD

Jake returned to Chicago six months ago after a two years' whirl in the gambling casinos of Deauville and Monte Carlo, set up an office in the Burnham building and established himself in a fourteen room Gold Coast apartment at 20 East Cedar street.

Get $5,000,000 in Swindle.

But it was not learned until yesterday that the British government wanted Factor and a companion, Harry Green, brought back to England to answer charges that they fleeced thousands of middle class investors out of a total of nearly $5,000,000 through high pressure salesmanship of fraudulent stock shares. Federal agents, it was learned yesterday, had traced Factor from New York to Chicago. Last night it was vaguely rumored both men may be surrendered to the police by their attorneys on Monday if the police don't catch up to them before then.

The revelation of Jake's latest coup also served to bring out the high lights in the career of this squat little American whose escapades have been told bit by bit in brief dispatches from London, Paris, Cannes, Deauville, Le Touquet, and elsewhere about his stock manipulations, his dealings in oilless oil lands, his winnings at baccarat and more recently of that game of chemin de fer he played with the Prince of Wales, who, incidentally, lost heavily.

Find Woman in Flat.

When the police visited the luxurious Cedar street apartment Factor was not there. A woman, said to be his wife—the former Rella Cohen of 1846 South Kedzie avenue—was in the flat. She told the officers that Factor was in Los Angeles. They did not take her into custody.

The facts about Factor's latest swindles were made public here after Godfrey Haggard, British consul general for Chicago, signed complaints against J. Factor, alias Harry Wise, alias J. Guest and Harry Green, alias Genn, on a specific charge of defrauding investors out of 458,000 pounds sterling. Cables from London last night, however, stated that the swindles will total 1,000,000 pounds.

Following the British consul general's complaint it was reported that United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker had issued warrants under the extradition treaty which were suppressed pending service. Then police raided his Cedar street apartment to find it empty and to learn that Jake the Barber had skipped only a moment before they arrived.

One Reported Captured.

Arthur J. Klein, alleged companion of Factor and Green, is said to have been apprehended and it is reported that he is being held by the United States commissioner in New York for extradition to England.

According to London dispatches, Factor began his British operations in 1927. Following the method employed by American bucketeers, he is said to have organized a fake brokerage office for the issue of worthless stock, then

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

A big, neighborly, sweet tempered sweet singing rendezvous of Chicagoans and Chicagolanders in the plaza of Wacker drive brought the fifth day of Chicago's Jubilee to an inspiriting climax at 11:15 o'clock last night.

Fifteen hundred singers—the flower of a score of Chicago's famous choral societies—led thousands of citizens massed around them in songs of sentiment and songs of patriotic consecration.

They began with "Sweet Adeline," then took up the "Long, Long Trail," glided down "Suwanee River," yearned with old black Joe for the days when hearts were young and gay, and swept with mighty volume and true feeling into "America."

A Patriotic Spectacle.

The spectacular feature came with the martial clamor of "The Star Spangled Banner." With the singing of its first line an immense American flag was shaken out from a cable reaching from the Pure Oil building to the Fisk building.

Instantly it was flooded with light from batteries of searchlights, and the plaza below was illuminated with red flares.

To the banner swaying high above them the people turned. They sang the battle hymn as if it were a hymn; for the beauty of the starlit night, the exultant volume of melody from the trained choristers, and the architectural dignity of the plaza's setting of towers and bridges lifted the volunteer choristers out of themselves and gave their singing superb fervor.

Choral Pageantry in Loop.

This noble finale closed an hour and a half of choral pageantry in the loop.

A caravan of melody moved from key point to key point between Randolph street on the north, State street on the east, Adams street on the south, and Clark street on the west. The 1,500 singers occupied fifteen buses loaned by the Chicago Motor Coach company and twenty-four gaily decorated trucks from the fleets of the Pioneer Paper Stock company, the Sprague-Warner company, and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

From them the daintiest and the truly unique show of the Jubilee was given and it was accompanied by a steady patter of handclapping from the listeners on the sidewalks.

Singers in Gay Attire.

It made a charming picture—Ukrainean choristers in their rich native costumes, the ladies of the Chicago Concert company in evening dress, and the lads of glee clubs in festive attire.

The buses and trucks were swiftly adorned with festoons of blue and gold, purple and gold and red and gold by Miss Spikings and her aids from the Chicago Artificial Flower company just before the caravan moved from its point of assembling in Grant park at Monroe street.

When it moved it was maneuvered into the loop under the direction of Mr. Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE, who has had charge of a multitude of the extensive and exacting details of Jubilee events sponsored by this newspaper. He marshaled the singers on time to the dot, and he kept moving rapidly their varied and delightful programs of hallelujah choruses, Negro spirituals, Russian folk songs, Greek hymns, and ballads of old days and of the hour.

The loop billowed with music. It received melody by the cargo, and often it offered fresh consignments of an impromptu nature by joining in the choruses that were familiar to it.

Noise of street cars made it impossible to broadcast the program from the streets, but sometimes a choir dismounted and sang in the reception rooms of the Hotel Sherman, whence their singing was relayed to THE TRIBUNE'S radio studios. Then thousands whom Wednesday night's crush had scared from attendance upon the festivities of the Night of the Choral Cavalcade were able to enjoy some of the numbers.

WOMEN WILL GATHER

Business women visitors to the Chicago Jubilee from five states are expected to attend a tea to be given in their honor tomorrow afternoon by the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago. Invitations to the tea, which will be held in the ballroom of the Illinois Women's Athletic club, were issued by the organization through its president, Miss Elizabeth Eckert, as the contribution of the group toward participation in the program of the Jubilee.

From 3 to 5 o'clock it is planned to have the visiting business women meet and mingle with Chicago women in the same lines of work, to discuss their common interests over the tea cups. All facilities of the club will be open to the out of town women through the courtesy of the Illinois Women's Athletic club officers.

Will Visit W-G-N Studio.

Later in the afternoon the hostess group has arranged to escort the out of town guests on an inspection tour of the National Broadcasting studios on top of the Merchandise Mart, and to those of W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, Pulitzer prize winner, yesterday advised the women's committee of the Jubilee that she will be present at the women's luncheon to be held Monday at the Hotel Sherman as the feature of women's activities of the Jubilee. Mrs. Barnes is the author of "Years of Grace," which recently won her the coveted literary laurels.

Miss Agnes Nestor, who was invited to represent women in industry at the affair, also has notified the committee of her acceptance. Both Mrs. Barnes and Miss Nestor will be among the eight distinguished women who will deliver two minute talks.

Plan Welcome to Guests.

Frederick J. Ashley of the Association of Commerce will greet the guests in the place of Col. Robert Isham Randolph, who had accepted an invitation to extend the city's official welcome. Col. Randolph is obliged to be out of town on Monday.

Reservations at $1.50 each are being made only on receipt of the funds to cover the number ordered. All women are invited to attend, and may secure their table tickets by sending their checks to the Women's committee of the Chicago Jubilee, at the Association of Commerce, 1 North La Salle street.

Mrs. William S. Hefferan will represent women in education and will give a two minute talk.

LOST EXPLORER'S SKIS AND SLED FOUND IN ARCTIC

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 15.—(AP)—Prof. Albert Wegener's sled and skis have been found in Greenland, about 11 miles from the western station of the German exploration expedition, dispatches received here today said. They were in an upright position, indicating that he left them on purpose, because they were of no further use to him.

No Trace of Explorer.

BERLIN, May 15.—(AP)—Word received today from the Wegener relief expedition in Greelnand said the explorer's sled and skis had been found, but that no trace of the explorer had been discovered. Prof. Alfred Wegener headed a German expedition into Greenland last year, and has not been heard from since Nov. 1. He was given up for lost when a relief expedition reached the central base, only to learn he had departed.

17 YR. OLD ORPHAN LOST 9 MONTHS IN JAIL IS RELEASED

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—(AP)—Edward Argot, 17 year old orphan, "lost" in the Wayne county jail for nearly nine months, has been found and released and given a home.

Born in Poland, Edward was taken to Canada by his parents as a baby. His father was killed in action with the Canadian forces in 1917. His mother died in 1925. Edward made his own living selling newspapers in Montreal for five years.

One dark night about a year ago he crossed a railroad trestle near Buffalo, N. Y., and entered the United States. He was arrested by immigration officers here Sept. 1, 1930, for entering the United States illegally. Efforts to deport him failed when it was discovered there was no record of his birth in Poland. Then immigration officials forgot about him and he remained in the jail.

Chicago's west side celebrated the Chicago Jubilee last night with one of the longest and gayest parades ever staged in the city. The parade, which included more than 150 floats, passed before Mayor Cermak and his family at their home in Millard avenue near 24th street. The mayor addressed the crowds, acclaiming the Jubilee.

Two other community festivals marked the night. They were a carnival in Ohio street, east of Michigan avenue, and a parade in the Logan Square district. Earlier in the day 5,300 high school R. O. T. C. cadets held a tournament in Stagg field. Luncheons and other activities also took place throughout the city.

The west side parade started at Jackson boulevard and Canal street, and covered a course of nearly fifteen miles. It was held under the auspieces of the West Town chamber of commerce, led by Grand Marshal E. W. Dunne and directed by Parade Chairman F. J. Bilek.

Parade for 15 Miles.

The route was west in Madison street to Cicero avenue, north to Chicago avenue, west to Central avenue, south to Lake street, east to Cicero avenue, south to 26th street, west to Ogden avenue, past Mr. Cermak's home, and northeast by various streets to Halsted street and Roosevelt road.

A large American flag draped the front of the mayor's home, and two other American flags stretched across Millard avenue on either side of the residence. Red flares and searchlights illuminated the spot, and music was furnished by the 75 piece band of Harrison Technical High school.

Detectives, motorcycle policemen, and patrolmen handled the crowd of more than 15,000. After the parade had passed the crowd demanded a speech from Mayor Cermak.

"The Jubilee," he said, "is the beginning of a new era which marks the start of pulling out of the dilemma we have been in for 18 months. It marks the onward march of business, the eradication of unemployment. It means we are turned toward prosperity."

4,000 Attend Street Carnival.

The Ohio street carnival was sponsored by the St. Clair and Eastgate hotels and the North Central association, with William C. Calvert and James A. Hart in charge. More than 4,000 persons attended. Street dancing was a feature. First prize winners in costume dances were Charles H. Byrne, attired as a gypsy, and Miss Gertude Miller, dressed as "Fatima."

A fencing exhibition was given by Prof. Edmond J. Clermont and his son, Edmond Jr., 14 years old, and Miss Katherine Kehoe, and her brother, Kevin, of 2167 Wilson avenue. Music was played by the Frank B. Spamer band. Two choral groups from the loop outdoor concert serenaded the gathering.

The Logan Square celebrations included street dancing in addition to the parade. About 20,000 persons witnessed the parade and 10,000 attended the dance. The parade started at Milwaukee and Fullerton avenues. Included were decorated cars, American Legion marching units and drum corps, school children from fifteen schools, and junior police.

Officers Review R. O. T. C. Corps.

The R. O. T. C. tournament in Stagg field was staged under the direction of Maj. Frank L. Beals, commander of the high school corps. In the reviewing stand were Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan, Col. Richard G. Hunter, Maj. T. J. J. Christian, Dr. Frederic Woodward, Lieut. Col. George A. Wildrick, and William Tower.

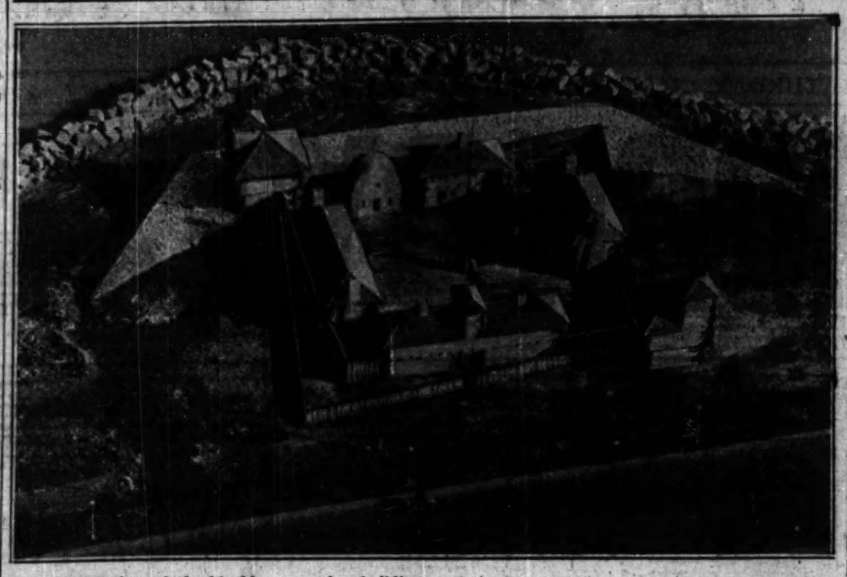
Austin High school won first place in the marching drills. Lake View, Harrison, and Senn High schools followed in that order. Senn High school won first place for marching bands, with Lake View, Marshall, and Hyde Park High schools in second, third, and fourth places, respectively.

Other Jubilee celebrations, all enthusiastic, were a parade under the direction of the South Shore chamber of commerce, a boxing show at the South End Pythian temple, and a community dance at Houston avenue and 91st street under the sponsorship of the South Chicago chamber of commerce.

Women Dry Law Foes to Entertain Jubilee Visitors

Members of the Illinois division, Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, will entertain Chicago Jubilee visitors today at their first anniversary luncheon at the Hotel Sherman. Efforts and achievements of the first twelve months of the organization, and programs for future endeavors will be made the subject of brief talks. Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, co-chairmen of the local forces, will preside at the luncheon. Speakers will include Judge Harry M. Fisher, Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, and Mrs. George Brennan.

Fort Dearborn Replica to Be Dedicated Today



Aerial view of the blockhouses, other buildings and stockades, built on the model of the old fort which was the scorn from which Chicago grew. The reproduction of the old army post is located at 26th street and Lake Michigan, accessible by the outer drive. It is four miles from the site of the old fort, which stood where Michigan avenue and Wacker drive meet south of the link bridge.

FORT DEARBORN REPLICA WILL BE DEDICATED TODAY

Jubilee Crowds to See Colorful Ceremony.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Steeped in the spirit of Chicago's proudest traditions, the new Fort Dearborn will be dedicated this afternoon, fitly and officially, as the first exhibit of the Century of Progress exposition. Past and present will meet in this replica that stands on the lake front at 26th street, only four miles from where the old Fort Dearborn stood.

Coonskin caps, buckskin shirts and leggings of the frontiersmen of a century ago will contrast sharply with the plumed helmets, braided jackets, white breeches and high patent boots of the Black Horse troop. But Old Glory, rising steadily up the flagpole just as it used to do more than 100 years ago, will link the present with the past by belonging to both generations.

Plan of Ceremony Told.

From 2:30 until 3 o'clock the Black Horse troop, under Capt. Chauncey McCormick, will occupy the fort. For twenty minutes of that time a concert will be given by the troop band. At 5 o'clock the troops will leave the fort by way of the north sally port, march west to the roadway, then south until the last of the column clears the bandstand. They will then countermarch and form a line facing west in front of the stand.

After the prescribed salute, Rufus C. Dawes, ranking official on the stand, will address Capt. McCormick, with "In the name of a Century of Progress, I command you to open the fort." Two men will move from the right and left of the line to the west sally port, and open the gates.

Legion Post on Guard.

Two members of the Fort Dearborn post of the American Legion, all of whom will be attired in the coonskin caps and buckskin of the earlier era, will stand guard by the gates as soon as they are opened, permitting no one to enter until their detachment receives orders to raise the flag.

This command will come after the program on the stand outside, including the invocation by the Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, D. D., bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago; the dedication by Mr. Dawes, an address by Prof. James Alton James of the history department at Northwestern university, and an address by Miss Helen Bennett of the Century of Progress exposition.

The Fort Dearborn post drum and bugle corps will play "To the Colors" as the flag is being raised. As the flag appears above the top of the fort a salute of twenty-one guns will be fired by the 124th field artillery of the Illinois National guard.

Program of Fireworks.

After the salute the guests bearing tickets, led by Mr. Dawes, may move across the roadway and enter the fort. When all have entered the general public will be admitted, and a program of fireworks will be staged by the Thearle Duffield Fireworks Co.

May parades, athletic tournaments at public parks and playgrounds, and May parties will continue the celebration today of the Jubilee. In the south parks system a kite tournament will be held in Washington park. The Roseland Kiwanis club is sponsoring a dog show.

This afternoon the Woodlawn Business Men's association will open its carnival at Grand Crossing park at 2 o'clock. This evening the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce will hold a drawing for $5,000 in prizes, and at held in Pilsen park by the Twenty-sixth Street Business Men's association. Mayor Cermak is scheduled as a speaker.

JOE MONTANA JAILED, BAWLS THREATS AT COPS

"You can't pinch me. I know plenty of cops. Turn me out or I'll start squawking."

This ultimatum was delivered from a detective bureau cell last night by Joe Montana, 48 years old, west side divekeeper, who on April 24, 1929, was acquitted of the murder of Police Sergt. Lawrence Hartnett.

Montana, his bartender, Frank Cantanese, and the bartender's wife were arrested yesterday by Lieut. William Blaul and a squad from the state's attorney's office, who raided Montana's saloon at 928 Polk street on an anonymous tip that the resort was a cache for stolen goods. Upstairs the raiders found $1,250 in fur chokers, stolen in an early morning burglary from L. Friedman, Inc., furriers, at 805 North Michigan avenue, and seven stolen vacuum cleaners.

Within a half hour of Montana's arrest Sidney Lewis, an assistant of Attorney Frank McDonald, appeared before Circuit Judge Joseph Burke demanding Montana's release on a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Burke allowed the police until 10 a. m. today to book Montana.

DRUGGISTS FIGHT TOBACCO TAX AS TRADE MENACE

Classifying the proposed state tobacco tax as "a danger signal that presages the taxation of practically all minor commodities," the Chicago Retail Druggists' association yesterday began a campaign against passage of the bill.

"Public remonstrance against the bill is assuming overwhelming proportions," Herman J. Holthoefer, secretary of the association, said. "Signing of petitions against this bill has surpassed that of any other nuisance legislation in years.

"Tobacco articles compromise about 15 per cent of the druggist's sale and the profit, where there is a profit, is exceedingly small. The druggists are now taxed to the limit. There is the $100 city cigaret tax, $25 drug store tax, $25 to $50 on fountains, $25 retail liquor permit, $3 narcotic tax, and a $1.50 registration fee. In addition there is all manner of insurance.

"Not only would passage of this bill hurt local business, but it would cause the bootlegging of tobacco articles, and in time result in the taxing of other articles, as in Carolina where nearly all commodities from sports goods to ginger beer and candy are taxed."

Robert M. Lee, city editor of THE TRIBUNE, sailed yesterday from New York on the Ile de France on one of the most unusual vacations ever taken by a newspaper executive.

It was early in April that Mr. Lee smilingly entered the office of the publisher. They exchanged the usual amenities. The city editor stuck the tip of his cigar into a match flame, then settled himself comfortably in a chair.

"My daughter was married just a short time ago," began Mr. Lee. The publisher nodded sociably and waited. His local department chief also paused a moment. Then he continued:

The Publisher's Reaction.

The publisher's response was "Well!" He eyed the city editor quizzically.

"I don't see," suggested the publisher, "how you can make a reputation for originality by going on a trip like that. Even publishers can't get away in these times."

And so it seemed like thumbs down for the city editor's European trip.

For the time being travel booklets were absent from Mr. Lee's desk. Several days later, however, the city editor and the publisher met again. The spectre of the vacation reappeared.

"If," said the publisher, "you can think up some good idea which THE TRIBUNE can develop into something beneficial for Chicago—say like the Chicagoland Music Festival, or the Golden Gloves tournament—you may possibly take that long European vacation."

The Idea Is Born.

For the next few days Mr. Lee's ordinary activities were quadrupled. He conferred with leading civic representatives, merchant executives, public officials. He visited here, there and everywhere. His efforts were unceasing, his energy tireless. The publisher had suggested that he originate some spectacular idea "for Chicago's good."

Mr. Lee had originated the idea. And he developed it alone, by his conferences, by his visits, by his efforts, by his energy.

Chicago knows what that idea was. America also knows it, and so does the world.

That idea was the Chicago Jubilee. In the Chicago Sunday Tribune of April 19 there appeared a two column story beneath a line stretching across the top of seven columns on the front page. The banner stated: "Chicago Jubilee to Open May 11 with Huge Pageant." The headline beneath it announced: "Night Parade of Industry in Blaze of Light."

The article opened with the following paragraph:

"A colorful Jubilee celebrating a revived spirit, commercially, politically and morally, and which will be made memorable to Chicago and significant to the world, will be held in downtown Chicago, beginning May 11 and continuing daily for one week. It will be known as the Chicago Jubilee."

Promised Events Take Place.

The story said a magnificent parade would be held on the night of May 11. It was—a parade of exquisite beauty and substance, unequalled in Chicago.

The story said the American-French International Golden Gloves tournament would be staged. It was—the largest amateur outdoor boxing show on record.

The story said downtown would be a "blaze of lights," that all Chicago would converge in the loop. Everybody remembers the State street carnival of Wednesday night, attended by hundreds of thousands of merrymakers.

The story said there would be a gorgeous fireworks show, and a choral concert in the loop. There were both—the magnificent pyrotechnical display in Grant park on Thursday night and the spectacular concert of last night.

Catches Chicago's Fancy.

These were only a few of the announcements of what would take place as conceived in the mind of the originator of the Chicago Jubilee. All have been fulfilled or will be fulfilled today and during the next few days.

Immediately following the announcement of the Chicago Jubilee in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of April 19, the movement was taken up by THE TRIBUNE'S contemporaries. Other newspapers, with one exception, rushed to support the movement. The Jubilee caught Chicago's fancy in a big way.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, praised the Jubilee idea. So did Mayor Cermak. So did every one else.

On April 23 a meeting was held in the Palmer house, attended by representatives of downtown and outlying district stores and business groups. Mr. Lee was the principal speaker. "Chicago at night is dead," he said. "Let us stir up the city, liven it, with this Jubilee."

A Committee Gets Busy.

A committee was formed, comprising twenty leaders from the loop and outlying zones. Frederick J. Ashley was elected chairman. May 11 was less than three weeks away. Time was brief.

All Chicago joined in the Jubilee. And all Chicago, a business survey showed last night, has reaped a profitable harvest financially and morally as the consequence. Press comments from all over the world praise the Jubilee as a grand idea.

And so does the publisher. For which City Editor Lee, originator of the idea, is now Europe bound on the Ile de France.

SPANISH TOWN FIGHTS TO SAVE CHURCH; 4 SLAIN

Rioters Shoot Residents from Speeding Auto.

GRANADA, Spain, May 15.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and ten injured in anti-church disorders in the nearby town of Atarfe.

PRESIDENT ZAMORA.

Inhabitants at Atarfe, hearing that rioters were coming there to burn their church after having attempted to destroy a convent at Stant Fe, assembled at the edge of the town to protect their property. As the rioters' car entered the town the occupants were met with a rain of bullets from the guns of the Catholics. The rioters raced their car through the crowd and fired guns, causing casualties among the inhabitants.

Three of those killed were residents of the town and the fourth was the driver of the automobile which crashed into a wall. Several of the other occupants were injured. Those in the car maintained they had not attacked the Santa Fe convent and added that they took the inhabitants at Atarfe for communists when they started shooting. Authorities were skeptical of this explanation and are investigating.

This was believed to have been the first fatal anti-church demonstration since Tuesday night, when four persons were killed at Cordoba.

Call Out Troops and Police.

The military governor at Granada marshaled troops and civil guards to Atarfe and Santa Fe. It is understood here that the convent at Santa Fe was damaged but not destroyed in the attack. Tonight's outbreaks caused great public indignation throughout the Granada region. In many places the population was reported to have armed itself and to be ready to repel attackers.

A number of prominent persons called at the office of the military governor general of Granada and signed a protest which censured the government at Madrid for its alleged failure in handling recent anti-church disorders.

MAY EXPEL JESUITS

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, May 15.—The expulsion of Jesuits from Spain will follow the line of hostility against the religious that can be laid at their doors, the provisional government decided today. At the meeting of the ministerial council their immediate expulsion, instead of waiting for the constituent parliament to go into the matter, involved religious question, was discussed seriously considered.

Certain cabinet men claimed the enmity in the campaign of religious troubles for the Spanish republic, obviously against instructions from Rome, was due to the powerful "company of Jesus," which practically dominates finance and industry in this country. They demanded a speedy expulsion of the Jesuits.

Only Wait for Proof.

Other ministers objected that immediate expulsion would be certain to seriously embitter negotiations with the Vatican, which were proceeding favorably until mobs began to burn monasteries, and will disturb the nation's economics at a delicate moment. The wealth of the Jesuits and other religious orders is estimated to be one-third of the entire country's.

The expulsion of the Jesuits, agreed upon only in principle, is to be executed at the moment there is proof that the priests are financing conspiracies or propaganda.

This fact was hinted to Papal Nuncio Federico Tedeschini when he called on President Alcala Zamora today. Far from complicating the relations with Rome, the burning of convents and monasteries has strengthened the government's position in the negotiations with Pope Pius.

Insists Separation Is Fixed.

Rome already has approved of separation of the church and state, "despite certain efforts to make Spain and the rest of the world believe the contrary," Fernando de Los Rios, minister of justice, declared tonight.

Students at the University of Valladolid today calmly informed the professors that, now that the republic has come, nobody is to be flunked in the examinations. When the Spanish professors refused a thousand students rioted, breaking furniture and cutting telephone lines, preventing calls for help. To obtain relief the professors granted leniency in the examinations.

GETS JAIL TERM FOR HIS FALSE STORY OF BANK

Accused of circulating false statements regarding the condition of a bank, John Semith, an unemployed railway engineer, was sentenced to six months in jail yesterday by Judge Solomon Edelman in the Chicago Avenue court. Semith, in delaying the payment of room rent to his landlady, Mrs. N. Spaulding, 1092 North Dearborn street, told her he had $5,000 tied up in a bank and he could not withdraw it without litigation. Mrs. Spaulding went to the bank to withdraw her funds and learned that the bank was in excellent condition. When the bank learned that Semith was circulating this story he was arrested.

SLAP TOSCANINI; REFUSES TO PLAY FASCIST ANTHEM

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 15.—Arturo Toscanini, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra, was slapped in the face at the door of the Community theater in Bologna last night after he refused to direct the orchestra when it played Fascist Italy's national anthem, "Giovinezza," and the "Royal March."

The police quieted the lively fracas that ensued and Toscanini, refusing to have anything more to do with the concert, left, despite the lateness of the hour, by automobile to Milan, a four hours' ride. It is reported he was told to leave the city.

Motives Not Political.

The conductor arrived in Italy only a short time ago for his annual vacation. Two concerts were scheduled in Bologna in honor of Martucci, the noted composer and conductor, who introduced Wagnerian music to Italy. They were to have been Toscanini's sole public appearances.

Toscanini had previously refused to play the Italian national anthem. His motives were not political, but he claims that the type of music which they represent are not worthy of being conducted by a maestro of his genius.

He expressed this refusal again at the Bologna concerts, but the organizers thought that the matter would be smoothed over.

Crowds Parade and Sing.

News of it became known, however, and as Toscanini approached the theater for the concert last night he was confronted by a group of persons standing near the stage door. One man, whose identity was not revealed by the police, stepped out and slapped him on the cheek. A near riot followed, but the police restored order. A large Fascist demonstration was organized and crowds paraded through the streets singing the songs which riled the maestro and which he had refused to play.

The press takes side tonight in the Toscanini "scandal." One paper here characterizes the incident as a "new and incredible refusal of Maestro Toscanini to play the national hymns."

ADJT. GEN. HENLEY OF INDIANA GUARD IS OUSTED BY GOVERNOR

The governor immediately announced the appointment of Paul E. Tombaugh, Indianapolis attorney.

Henley's resignation followed by a few months his appearance in the Hancock Circuit court at Greenfield, defending a suit for separate maintenance filed against him by Mrs. Ethel Williams Henley, who claimed she was married to the adjutant general at Toledo, O., in September, 1929. The officer denied he was married, and the suit was dismissed, but Judge Arthur C. Van Duyn criticized the conduct of both parties.

WIFE ASKS COURT AID TO PROCURE JEWISH DIVORCE

Mrs. Goldie Press, 27 years old, 1844 South Lawndale avenue, appeared before Judge Rudolph Desort in the Superior court yesterday with a plea that her former husband, Larry Press, a salesman of 1905 South Springfield avenue be held for contempt of court because he refused to abide by Jewish custom and obtain a divorce from her.

Mrs. Press said she had been granted a legal divorce from her husband last December, but that the Jewish ecclesiastical authorities would not recognize this until the husband had been granted a divorce by the rabbis. She said she wanted to remarry, but could not until her husband obtained that ghet, as it is called.

Judge Desort, somewhat bewildered by the Jewish requirements, instructed Mrs. Press to return before him on May 19 with two rabbis to explain her case.

Charles H. Sabin Jr. Files Suit in Reno for Divorce

Reno, Nev., May 15. — [Special] — Charles H. Sabin Jr. filed suit for divorce today against Ruth Ogden Sabin, charging cruelty, but not setting forth any particulars. From other sources it was ascertained the charge amounts to mental cruelty, such as nagging, fault finding, failure to agree and incompatability. They were married in Summit, N. J., June 2, 1923, and have one son, born Sept. 16, 1930.

BOAT UPSETS; EDUCATOR DIES; ANOTHER SAVED

U. of Wisconsin Faculty Member Drowns.

Madison, Wis., May 15.—(AP)—Unable to hold longer after clinging nearly two hours to a capsized canoe, Sterling A. Leonard, 43, University of Wisconsin English professor, was drowned in Lake Mendota here tonight. His companion, I. A. Richards, 36, professor and lecturer at Cambridge university, England, was rescued in an exhausted condition. He is expected to live.

Don Tracy, returning from Camp Indianola, Lake Mendota, spied a man in a drifting canoe. Tracy found Richards seated in the water filled canoe, and brought him to shore.

The Englishman said the craft had capsized two hours before and Prof. Leonard and himself had clung to the gunwale.

Forced to Relinquish Hold.

Prof. Leonard finally had been forced to relinquish his hold and dropped beneath the surface of the lake. Prof. Richards said he made an unsuccessful attempt to rescue Leonard. He did not explain how the canoe was righted nor how he climbed aboard.

Dr. Richards was rushed to a hospital, where attendants reported that he probably will recover, although he is suffering seriously from exposure.

Prof. Leonard, who came to Wisconsin in 1920 from the University of Michigan, where he had taught 12 years, was widely known as the author of a number of books dealing with the teaching of English and usage of the language. He also was editor of several collected works of poems and plays.

Born in California.

Born at National City, Cal., April 23, 1888, he received his bachelor of arts from Simpson college, Indianola, Iowa, in 1907, his master's degree at Michigan the next year, and a doctor of philosophy from Columbia in 1928.

He married Minnetta F. Sammis of Terre Haute, Ind., in 1913, who survives him with one daughter, Barbara Dorrit.

Prof. Leonard was a member of the National Council of Teachers of English, serving as president in 1926; American Association of University Professors, the Modern Language Association of America, and Phi Delta Kappa.

Prof. Richards has an established reputation for his critical theories, and has written a number of books on his stand. He is married, and appeared here for a lecture, which he delivered last night. He is connected with Magdalene college at Cambridge and lectures in English and moral science.

Mrs. Ethel M. Naugle, 199 Lake Shore drive, wife of Archibald T. Naugle, wealthy lumber manufacturer, was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge James J. Kelly in the Superior court. She charged cruelty. The Naugles had been married for 28 years. He is 57 years old.

Mrs. Naugle accused her husband of drunkenness and cruelty. She testified that last Nov. 25 he came home so drunk she had to put him to bed. She said he later arose and went to the bathroom where he fell to the floor. When she went to aid him, she said, he jerked her so violently that she strained her back.

Settlement Out of Court.

The Naugles separated last November but had a brief reconciliation last January, after which Mrs. Naugle left again and filed suit for divorce. A property settlement was agreed to out of court and approved by the judge.

By this settlement, Mrs. Naugle is made beneficiary of a $202,000 trust fund, is given $10,000 in cash, $10,000 attorneys' fees and a share in the household goods.

Member of Several Clubs.

Mr. Naugle is the retired head of the Naugle Pole and Tie company. He belongs to numerous clubs, among them the Union League club, C. A. A., the Chicago Yacht and the Midlothian Country club. He is a life member of the Chicago Art institute and the Chicago Historical society. His offices are at 5 South Wabash avenue.

JURY ABANDONS SHORTAGE QUIZ; PUT UP TO CITY

No Evidence for Criminal Charge.

Investigation into the reported $40,000 shortage alleged to have been found in the city's treasurer's office when the new administration assumed control last month was abandoned by the state's attorney and the special grand jury yesterday.

CHAS. S. PETERSON

In dropping the inquiry, Charles J Mueller, assistant state's attorney in charge of the special grand jury investigation, said the grand jury was convinced that Charles S. Peterson, the former city treasurer, had committed no criminal act.

Matter Up to City.

"There still exists a shortage of about $40,000, however," the assistant state's attorney said, "but that is a matter for the city administration to consider, and the charges, if any, must be preferred by the city. Such charges, if forthcoming, would be heard by the regular grand jury."

Mr. Mueller said that while the shortage constituted a technical embezzlement in the payment of salary advances, it would be difficult to place the blame on any one individual.

Part of Money Restored.

The shortage originally amounted to more than $60,000, but numerous restorations of money took place after the shortage became known. It was learned that several members of the former city administration had made a practice of borrowing money from the city funds, leaving I. O. U. notes as collateral. Others had made extensive advances on their salaries and had not made restitution by the time the change in administration took place last month.

The city is not expected to lose anything, however, inasmuch as the treasurer is under surety bond that would provide for any loss.

OKLAHOMA ASKS FORFEITURE OF 8 UTILITY HOLDINGS

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 15.—(AP)—Leon S. Hirsh, special counsel for Gov. W. H. Murray, late today filed in the state Supreme court a suit against eight public utility companies asking forfeiture of their holdings in Oklahoma, confiscation of their properties to the state, and asking an injunction to prevent their continued operation.

Speedy legal action was taken, Hirsh said, to forestall possible removal of properties to veil alleged law violations.

Gov. Murray was listed as plaintiff in the suit, which is directed against the Oklahoma Natural Gas corporation, serving 53 cities in the state, and seven other utility companies, most of them Delaware and Maryland corporations.

20 BOYS AND GIRLS WILL FACE COURT ON BOOZE THEFT CHARGE

Peru, Ind., May 15.—(AP)—Chief of Police Karl Burkhardt said today that more than 20 boys and girls, Peru High school pupils, will be brought before Mayor John E. Yarling in Police court tomorrow morning in connection with an investigation into charges they stole liquor from half a dozen homes here and used it in staging parties during the last three months.

Chief Burkhardt said some of the boys also admitted having carried revolvers.

The officer said the names of those involved would not be divulged unless criminal charges are filed.

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 15.—[Special.]—Investigation was begun of a fire that last night destroyed the Jillson house at Hartford, one of Michigan's oldest hotels. The contents were all destroyed. The owner, H. F. Ormsby, lived next door, but was away.

HONDURAN REBEL ARMY BEATEN IN ALL NIGHT BATTLE

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, May 15. —(AP)—The main rebel army under Gen. Ferrera withdrew from its position today after an all night battle with a government detachment under Col. Benjamin Ortis near Macuelizo. The rebels were advancing toward the north coast when they were attacked by loyal troops.

The high command of the army reported that the insurgents sustained 57 casualties and the federals fourteen. Details of the battle could not readily be learned because of the remoteness of the scene. Government troops continued to explore the battle field and believed more bodies would be found later.

U. S. Approves Sale of Arms.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—State department approval has been granted on several recent occasions for the sale of machine guns and other munitions to the government of Honduras. This was learned today. The export ban has been lifted, however, only for the Honduran government, and no licenses have been granted permitting the shipment of arms to the insurgent forces.

COURT ANNULS HEIR'S MARRIAGE TO CABARET GIRL

Stanley Alfred Nelson, 21 years old, 7958 Princeton avenue, who inherited $250,000 from his father, Alfred Nelson, a contractor, a year ago, was granted an annulment of his marriage to Miss Catherine Ellsworth, 17 years old, 8014 Langley avenue, a cabaret entertainer whom he married last November.

The annulment was granted by Judge Daniel P. Trude in Circuit court after young Nelson testified about a liquor party which was climaxed by his marriage to the girl. Nelson said he started out on the party with 16 pints of gin last Nov. 6 and woke up two days later in the Southmoor hotel.

They went to his home and lived for a week, after which Nelson said his wife left and later started a suit for $100,000 damages for alienation of affections against his mother, Mrs. Ellen Nelson Forsberg. This suit has been dropped.

Gunmen Rob Contractor and Wife of $1,400 in Gems

George Dahl, 6316 North Paulina street, a building contractor, and his wife were held up by two armed men early this morning and robbed of $100 in cash and $1,400 in jewelry. The Dahls had taken Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Olson, 3730 North Sacramento avenue, to their home in the Dahl automobile. As they started away from the Olson house the two robbers jumped on the running board, compelled Dahl to drive several blocks, and robbed the couple.

THOUSANDS PAY 1929 TAX BILLS IN DEADLINE RUSH

$176,000,000 Still Due, Treasurer Estimates.

Penalties of $6,760,000 became effective after midnight last night on delinquent 1929 taxes, estimated at $176,000,000. The estimate was made by County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough as the last minute rush of Cook county taxpayers brought the total paid to scarcely more than $100,000,000 out of the total 1929 tax spread of $276,161,265.

More than 12,000 taxpayers, many of whom protested against high taxes, paid their bills at the county treasurer's office during the day. About 20,000 paid at various substations. Other thousands paid by mail. Yesterday was the last day on which taxes could be paid without being delinquent. After midnight all unpaid bills are to be assessed 1 per cent for each month's delay.

Will Refuse Small Payments.

A new device to delay the payment of taxes without penalty was disclosed during the day when the mail brought in checks as small as $5 or $10 as a tender of payment on contested bills amounting to thousands of dollars. The county treasurer's office has been accepting tenders of one-third of tax bills as offers made in good faith, such as will avoid the payment of penalty, in case the bills are adjudged too large. It was stated, however, that the small payments would not be accepted.

Among the largest payments received during the day were the following: Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, $3,500,000; Marshall Field & Co., $1,770,000; Armour & Co., $600,000; the Chicago Union station, $1,190,891; the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, $403,183; the Grand Trunk railroad, $192,440; the Pennsylvania railroad, $1,400,000; the Chicago Rapid Transit company, $232,845, and the Rock Island railroad, $296,000.

In July, 1930, when the 1928 taxes became delinquent, 25 per cent of the total of $233,176,796 was subjected to penalty. The 1929 collections were estimated to be 29 per cent behind those of last year.

On the final day before taxes became delinquent last year, $23,000,000 was paid into the treasurer's office. Yesterday's total collection was believed to have exceeded that amount. Clerks in the treasurer's office will work today and Sunday tabulating amounts of mail collections to find the total collected up to the penalty date.

Taxpayers' Line Forms Early.

A line of taxpayers formed at the treasurer's office yesterday morning. More than 1,000 stood in the corridor before the office opened. During the day a steady stream of taxpayers streamed through the office to the dozen cashiers' cages. After 5 o'clock last night the lines diminished to a few stragglers. Veteran clerks declared the rush to be far less than in previous years, when lines extended through the county building into the city hall and remained constant throughout the day.

Aroused by the total of delinquent taxes, Treasurer McDonough called a meeting of bankers for Monday, when exact figures on the 1929 collection will be available. The bankers will be asked to suggest remedies for the financial crisis threatening local governments because of the failure of taxpayers to meet bills.

Officials of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, which has advised taxpayers not to pay their bills, and attorneys who have urged the payment of only a small deposit will be summoned to the meeting.

SALARIES TO BE PAID TO REGULAR TEACHERS TODAY

Regular teachers in Chicago public schools will be paid overdue salaries today. The board of education at its meeting yesterday passed the pay roll and announced that this morning checks for salaries totaling $3,521,986 would be placed in the mails. The salaries have been due since April 23.

Payment of the salaries was made possible by the receipt of $3,195,028 from the state educational distributive fund, turned over to the school authorities yesterday by J. B. McDonough, county treasurer. The additional funds necessary to complete the pay roll for the regular teachers, amounting to $326,57, were obtained from other school funds.

This sum, however, was insufficient to meet the salaries due substitute teachers, which amount to approximately $254,000. This pay roll and another amounting to $400,000 for civil service employes, which fell due yesterday, will have to wait, according to President Lewis Meyers of the board of education. So far there are no prospects of meeting the next teachers' pay roll, which falls due on June 3, the trustees said.

Indictment Ends Conflict of 2 Evanston Justices

Joseph Nulty, who robbed three Northwestern university students of their wrist watches while posing as a tie salesman, was named in larceny indictments voted by the grand jury yesterday. The grand jury action put an end to a conflict between Evanston justices of the peace. Nulty had taken a change of venue from Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter and this caused a conflict between Justices James Corcoran and Max Borchardt as to which one was entitled to hear the case.

Sleep Walker Falls Five Stories to Soft Soil; Lives

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Elsie Leavy, 20 year old bride of three months, had an attack of somnambulism last night. She climbed out of a bathroom window, and wakened at a neighbor's cry to find herself hanging by her fingers to a ledge five stories above the ground. Her grasp loosened, and the young woman fell to the ground. The fact that she landed feet first in a freshly turned flower bed of soft earth saved her life.

DIED WHILE CLIMBING STEPS.

While climbing the stairs to the office of Dr. Ralph Mudd, 1500 North Dearborn avenue, yesterday, Walter Hansen, 48 years old, 1704 North Harding avenue, dropped dead of heart disease.

CHICAGO FACES TAX DISASTER, TRAYLOR WARNS

Banker Hits Moves to Balk Payments.

nurses and other public employés are without their pay. Investors cannot afford to buy the 1931 warrants when our citizens are attempting to delay and defeat the tax collections for 1929 and their attitude on 1930 and 1931 taxes is yet to be disclosed. In my opinion it is little short of lack of patriotism to urge property owners not to pay their taxes.

Compares New York Rate.

"It is ridiculous that tax warrants of Chicago cannot be sold with 6 per cent interest, while New York paper sold last Monday with a rate of 1.4 per cent and is quoted today at 1.25 per cent.

"To delay, hinder, and defeat the tax collections further injures the credit of the city. With nearly $300,000,000 of tax warrants outstanding under such conditions, it is hard to find a market for the $250,000,000 or $300,000,00 more in warrants.

"The first step toward restoring confidence is to get a tax assessing machinery that will perform its duty promptly, that the investors may know that we intend to levy taxes to meet the obligations outstanding. House bill No. 28 provides a workable plan for a revamped tax machine."

Busch Opposes Bond Issue.

"If you fund the taxes with a bond issue," Corporation Counsel Busch said at the hearing, "you only add to the amount of the tax burden. The city is at the end of its rope in financing itself out of its surplus funds.

"I recognize as well as Mr. Traylor that there are inequalities in tax assessments. It is claimed that there is 30 billions of dollars in personal property in Chicago, and that real estate pays on 37 per cent of its value, while personal property pays on only 2 per cent.

"Trouble is growing all the time. Agitators would invalidate the current taxes. The rebellion against tax payments is growing."

Mr. Busch then suggested strengthening the personal property tax laws, adoption of the Dever license bills, and payment of taxes in two yearly installments.

Govier Urges Economy.

Ald. Sheldon Govier [9th] said that one way to help the situation is to "economize to the bone."

"My constituents," he said, "who are nearly all working people, have only worked 28 per cent of the time for the last two years. They haven't money with which to pay taxes. We should cut expenses ruthlessly."

Victor Petterson, deputy city controller, told the state senators how the city's credit had been injured by the tax muddle.

Then Attorney Strawn took the floor. He reviewed the efforts of politicians to block the reassessment and said that those in charge of the assessing machinery at present "have dawdled and dawdled and are still dawdling along."

Strawn Criticizes Assessors.

"The 28 men in charge of the levying of taxes in Cook county are playing politics in operating the taxing machinery," he went on. "There is no honest effort being made to complete the 1930 assesment. It would be absurd for the banks to exhaust their deposits, capital and surplus to supply the government when there is no real effort being made to assess taxes for the payment of debts."

"There appears to be a property owners' strike and a bankers' strike, and between the two we are having serious trouble," said Arthur E. Rex of a northwest side improvement club.

"If you suppose I am the man who was meant when some one was referred to as an agitator," said John M. Pratt of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, which has contested the validity of the 1929 assessment, asserting that real estate is made to bear an unfair part of the tax burden. "I believe the Supreme court will declare the 1929 tax levy invalid."

Grein Gets Surprise

City Sealer Grein met with a surprise yesterday in his campaign to expose merchants who give their customers short weight. With a few deputies he trailed a load of meat being delivered from a provision company to a loop restaurant, thinking that he might find a discrepancy in the weight.

There was a discrepancy, he found, after weighing the load, but it was on the side that Mr. Grein isn't concerned with. The bill called for 226 pounds of pork loin rolls, but the actual weight was 228 pounds.

Earlier in the day deputy sealers found a different case. They found, according to the charges, Sam Green, a peddler living at 2323 Haddon avenue, selling a peck of potatoes that was a pound short to a little girl just a short distance from the Racine avenue police station. Besides giving short weight, the deputies said, Green had failed to get a peddler's license from the city.

REPORT SNOWDEN MAY GET PEERAGE TO EASE BURDEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 15.—The Daily Express says Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, owing to the serious nature of his illness, will not be able to undertake the full burden of his duties as chanacellor, and contemplates an early resignation. The government, however, is loath to lose his service, and it is understood that Prime Minister MacDonald, with a view to easing the burden of his political duties, will recommend that King George confer a peerage on him. It is considered that the presence of Mr. Snowden in the house of lords would add immensely to the government's prestige and debating power.

LAUNCHES DRIVE TO COLLECT DEBTS OWED TO THE CITY

Corporation Counsel Busch started a campaign by the city law department yesterday to force the payment of all bills owed to the city for various services. The campaign is expected to net the city approximately $1,000,000, which can be used for pay roll purposes.

Under Mr. Busch's plan city inspectors will be employed to collect from the debtors if they fail to respond with cash to a letter from the law department. If that method fails suits will be started for collection, and if the debtor owns a business it will be closed until the city's claim is satisfied. The campaign will cover those who have been delinquent during the last four years.

"This not only applies to small businesses but to large industries which have failed to pay compensation for switch tracks and other privileges," said Mr. Busch. "At the last meeting of the council orders directing the commissioner of public works to remove switch tracks, because the beneficiaries have failed to pay compensation, were passed, and there probably will be many more orders if the money due the city is not turned in."

VICTIMS ACCUSE FIVE CAPTIVES IN TEN ROBBERIES

Walter Boksa, 20 years old, 1058 North Rockwell street, and William Janick, 23 years old, 2118 Fowler street, bandits who were captured on Thursday night in an attempted holdup of the drug store of Alex Dubinski at 2116 North Leavitt street, were identified yesterday with three companions as having participated in ten robberies. The identification was made by victims in a showup yesterday directed by Capt. James Fleming at the Shakespeare avenue police station.

A sixth member of the gang, William Barry, 3211 South Springfield avenue, is in the Bridewell hospital in a critical condition from wounds incurred when Dubinski and his brother, William, opened fire on the three bandits as they attempted the holdup. The two who were captured named Tony Shutka, 948 Newton street, Joseph Benzhofer, 4316 Costello avenue, and Everett Zelinski, 1637 Blackhawk street, as the remaining members of the gang. These were arrested yesterday.

BILLION DEFICIT AND ANGLING TO OCCUPY HOOVER

Interior Fund Economies Will Be Debated.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Before and after his session with the brook trout at his Rapidan camp tomorrow President Hoover will debate with Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur and other interior department officials how much the billion dollar deficit can be reduced by economies in the expenditures of that department.

Unusual interest attaches to these deliberations for the reason that it is under the auspices of the interior department that hundreds of millions of dollars of public money are poured forth on projects for the benefit of local communities situated in Messrs. Hoover and Wilbur's state of California and other far western states which will not take kindly to any reckless wielding of the official pruning knife.

Dam Slash Not Expected.

The betting odds are against any trimming of the 165 million dollar Hoover dam, formerly known as the Boulder dam, project in the Colorado river, which the California lobby maneuvered through congress under the guise of a flood control and irrigation project for the real purpose of obtaining a government financed supply of water for Los Angeles and electric power for this and other southern California communities.

The interior department is already preparing for the construction of this vast work. It is now expending $10,960,000 in constructing a railroad from Las Vegas, Nev., to the dam site, in building a construction road, in laying out a town site and waterworks for the construction force, and in beginning construction of the coffer dams and four diversion tunnels fifty feet in diameter. Although the validity of the legislation has been attacked by Arizona in the Supreme court and the expenditures will have been wasted if the decision should be adverse to the project, Secretary Wilbur, with the approval of the President, has proceeded with the work.

Provides Many Jobs.

The project is already affording employment for hundreds of the unemployed, including at least one lame duck Republican congressman, former Representative Louis Cramton of Michigan, Anti-Saloon league satellite, who was engulfed by the wet tide in his district last year and was "taken care of" by the administration in a job of rental supervision at Boulder City, the Hoover dam town site, after he had indiscreetly talked himself out of a softer job with the Washington bi-centennial commission.

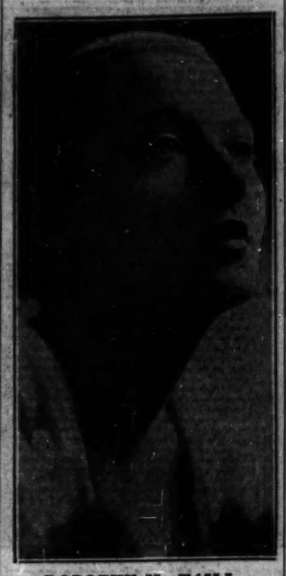
Mr. Cramton is being relied upon to create and maintain a moral atmosphere at Boulder City. Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, having announced that "every effort will be made to prevent the bootlegger or other law violator from interfering with the wellbeing of the workmen. Instead of a boisterous frontier town it is planned to bring into being here a wholesome American community with simple homes, gardens with fruits and flowers, schools and playgrounds."

Dr. Mead to Be There.

At the presidential camp will be Dr. Mead, celebrated engineer, who is qualified to join a more celebrated engineer in his favorite pastime of building dams in the Rapidan. There will be interest in whether Dr. Mead can find any economies that can be effected in the expenditures on irrigation and reclamation which represent a total outlay up to date of a quarter of a billion of public money.

Influenced by states in the arid belt and by railroads seeking to develop communities on their lines, congress has gone for reclamation in a big way, financing 35 projects on which there are 39,970 farms and 214 cities and towns. The area irrigated comprises 2,718,130 acres, on which crops valued at $161,179,880 were produced last year.

3 Engagements Off



DOROTHY MacKAILL.

Hollywood, Cal., May 15.—[Special.]—Dorothy MacKaill, film actress, returned today after a sojourn in Hawaii which was marked by announcement of her engagement to three men. She said the announcement of her betrothal to Neil A. Miller, wealthy young Hawaiian-American, was her mistake, which she and Miller rectified by a talk together after they had obtained a marriage license. Announcement of her engagement to John McCormick, ex-husband of Colleen Moore, was John's mistake, she explained. She said the announcement of her engagement to Walter Byron, Hollywood leading man, was a general mistake due to the fact that she had gone to parties in Hollywood with Byron as her escort.

FARM BOARD TO LET NEXT WHEAT CROP STABILIZE ITSELF

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—The federal farm board is opposed to adding to its already burdensome wheat holdings and to any plan for governmental or semi-governmental disposition of the exportable surplus.

The board outlined its position today. It made public a letter sent by Chairman James C. Stone to F. J. Wilmer, head of the North Pacific Grain Growers' Coöperative association, saying that the board could not adopt the Wilmer plan of controlling wheat production and distribution.

Under the proposal of Mr. Wilmer the farm board would have led a movement to persuade at least 75 per cent of the nation's wheat farmers to join a national surplus control association with a three year membership, binding each signer to hold or to isolate for sale off the domestic market a stipulated proportion of his crop, and to limit his wheat acreage for 1932 and 1933 on direction of the association.

"Sign up" campaigns among farmers have seldom been successful, Chairman Stone declared, in explaining the board's refusal. Supervision of such a scheme would be almost impossible, he went on, and the restrictions on growers would be unfairly large, with the added likelihood that the nonsigner would profit at the expense of the signer.

"The plan offers no help," he said. "The grain stabilization corporation has a heavy burden in carrying and disposing of the wheat that it will hold when the new crop begins to move. It would not be advantageous to add to this burden in the near future. The board has therefore already announced that. . . . It would not authorize stabilization purchases from the new crop.

"Furthermore, the plan contemplates a continuous policy of semi-governmental dispostion of our surplus. . .

"The board believes that such a policy could not be carried out to the advantage of our wheat growers."

MOSLEY FORMS GANG OF TOUGHS FOR PROTECTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 15.—A gang of toughs of the knuckleduster brand is being organized by Sir Oswald Mosley to provide physical support for his New party.

"We are not looking for trouble, but we are organizing to meet violence by appropriate means," Sir Oswald said tonight. "We have already experienced organized violence from our opponents. Twice during my wife's tour of England, while I was ill, Lady Cynthia's meetings were smashed up by organized mobs. That is not going to happen again.

"We are going to defend the right of free speech in this country, and I will not tamely submit to methods of violence and intimidation. The only methods we shall employ will be English methods. We shall rely on the good old English fists."

LARGE ALCOHOL STILL SEIZED IN RAID ON FARM

Special prohibition agents led by Elliot Ness last night seized a large alcohol distillery in the barn on Albert Kreel's farm, north of Higgins road on state highway 9, near Arlington Heights. Three Italians were arrested, but Kreel escaped from his house, which was connected with the barn by an alarm system, Ness said.

The distillery included one plant for the making of moonshine alky and another for redistillation, with a daily capacity of 500 gallons of the refined product, which would bring in $40,000 a month, according to Ness.

When the raiders opened the doors they found a pile of hay and two horses, apparently intended to give the barn an authentic appearance, but the horses were not confiscated because the agents did not know what to do with them. The prisoners gave the names of Pete Missetta, Joe D'Mato, and Paul Mason.

KIRKLAND RAGES AS CHUMS TELL OF HIS THREATS

Vowed He'd 'Get Arlene,' Youths Swear.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., May 15.—[Special.] From the lips of two boys of his own age, Virgil Kirkland today heard testimony indicating that he premeditated the rape of Arlene Draves. Flushed with anger and muttering beneath his breath, the 19 year old Gary youth on trial for the murder of the girl, glared at the witnesses, who stuttered in their nervousness whenever they met his eyes.

At the morning session the first testimony was offered at this trial in proof of the state's charge that Kirkland, after criminally assaulting Arlene, invited four others to attack her as she lay in a drunken stupor in the rear of an automobile.

Fred Phillips, 20, and John Churchill, 19, repeated the stories they told at the first trial. They testified, in brief, that Kirkland, about two weeks before the murder, declared that he wanted to overcome Arlene or beat her.

"Strip Poker" Story Untold.

Upon cross-examination of Churchill questions in the courtroom held their breath as it seemed apparent that the story of a strip poker party, said to have been participated in by Arlene and Virgil some time before the slaying would be revealed.

The story of this party had been the subject of rumors but had not been substantiated in court testimony. Churchill admitted reluctantly that he had been on a party at Arlene's house with Dorothy Holmes, Arlene and Kirkland also present. He was not questioned, however, concerning what went on at the party, although it was agreed that the defense will recall him later in the trial.

Judicial testimony again occupied a large part of today's hearing. At certain portions of the doctor's unprintable testimony, masculine guffaws and feminine snickers arose from the audience in the rear of the courtroom. John Grant Crumpacker expressed disgust and twice threatened to clear the courtroom.

Phillips First Witness.

Phillips, the first boy witness, was questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Floyd Vance.

Q.—Do you know Virgil Kirkland? A.—Yes, I do. We played football together.

Q.—Directing your attention to a time two weeks previous to Nov. 30, 1930, do you remember seeing the defendant? A.—Yes. John Churchill and I were sitting in my father's car when we saw Kirkland standing at 5th avenue and Broadway, Gary. We asked him if he wanted a lift. He got into the front seat with us.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with him? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Tell the jury what you said. A.—Churchill asked him where he had been and he said he had been over to Arlene's house. Churchill said: "Kind of rocking her, aren't you?" and he said he was.

Kirkland Glares and Mutters.

Kirkland was mumbling audibly, his face red, and his eyes fixed upon the witness.

Q.—What was said then? A.—Churchill said to him: "Getting anything out of her?" and Kirkland answered: "Not yet. But I'm going to make her or beat hell out of her."

Phillips said he could remember no further conversation. They drove Kirkland to his home and let him off, he testified.

Churchill corroborated Phillips' testimony. The 19 year old witness fidgeted in his seat and was obviously reluctant to testify.

Q.—Been to church lately? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you tell the priest anything about your testimony? A.—I may have.

Q.—Did you tell him and other persons that you haven't had any peace of mind or conscience since you testified at the last trial? A.—I don't remember saying that.

Questioned About Party.

Then came the questions concerning a party attended by Churchill, Miss Holmes, Arlene, and Virgil.

Q.—Were you ever at a party with Arlene and Dorothy Holmes? A.—Once.

Q.—Where was it? A.—At Arlene's home.

Q.—Why do you hesitate so? Do you think if you told the whole truth it would hurt your reputation? A.—I always tell the whole truth.

Two witnesses had previously described a scene in a restaurant in Gary about 1:15 a. m. Sunday morning, Nov. 30. They were Nick Christoph, the restaurant owner, and Mike Varso, a youth who was present.

"Thompson came in the place and ordered some hamburger sandwiches," testified Christoph. "About five minutes later Kirkland came in with Paul Barton. Kirkland struck his fist into his hand. I thought he was describing a fight. Then I heard him say: 'I gave it to her that time.'"

The restaurant keeper declared that Kirkland then washed his hands at the sink and returned.

His Remark to Barton.

Q.—What did he do then? A.—He walked to Barton and said: "Now's your turn." Barton went out.

Q.—Did Barton come back? A.—Yes, he came back after a while.

Q.—Were any of them drunk? A.—No, sir, no.

Q.—Did Kirkland go out again? A.—Yes, he went out again and then came back.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I walked out and looked into the car. I saw a girl in the back seat, sitting sort of crouched over.

Varso also described the entrance of the restaurant of Kirkland, Barton and Thompson. He quoted Thompson as saying: "We've got a girl in the car who is drunker than a hoot owl who she was," Varso testified. Thompson looked up Kirkland and Kirkland said: 'Don't mention any names.'"

Dr. George Bicknell and Dr. E. S. Jones, coroner's physicians, who performed an autopsy upon the body of Arlene after it had been exhumed from a cemetery in Reynolds, Ind., during the first trial, were the other witnesses. They enumerated wounds found on the body. Each said that death was due to shock, injuries and a hemorrhage caused by a blow upon the head.

Upon cross-examination of Dr. Jones, Attorney Robert Oldham brought out a point considered somewhat beneficial to the defense by these questions:

Q.—The abrasions you have described might have been caused by voluntary sexual relations. A.—They might have.

NO ROOM FOR NEW MEN, ALASKA TELLS WILBUR

JUNEAU, Alaska, May 15.—(AP)—Insisting Alaska is not a place for people to come in the hope of employment or riches, the Juneau chamber of commerce has instructed its secretary to write "a strong letter" to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur protesting against a statement attributed to him, advising young men in the states, desiring to better themselves, to come to Alaska.

The secretary was told to advise Mr. Wilbur there are more men in the territory than can find work, unemployment is constantly increasing, and persons coming north to investigate conditions should have ample funds to return home in the event their expectations are unrealized.

LEVIATHAN WINS MAJESTIC RACE BY OVER 3 HOURS

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Although officials of both lines denied that a race had been in progress, the United States liner Leviathan made its latest crossing to Cherbourg almost neck and neck with the Majestic, arriving 3 hours and 45 minutes before the White Star liner.

The two ships, largest in the world, cleared this port within half an hour of each other last Saturday afternoon. Passengers began to lay bets when both vessels passed Sandy Hook about the same time.

Ex-Convict Seized After Attempted Attack on Girl

Thomas Vaughan, 50 years old, colored, of 295 East 42d street was arrested last night after he was alleged to have seized Miss Irene Yasken, 23 years old, of 541 Hinman avenue, Evanston, while in Chicago avenue, near Mulford street, Evanston. She fought him and he fled. Two motorists, Joseph Schuldecker, 1416 Gregory street, Wilmette, and Joseph Ganowski, 804 Dodge avenue, Evanston, and Policeman Oscar Swanson captured Vaughan. The Negro said he had served 14 years in Joliet penitentiary for attempted rape.

Only Members Have Rum in Club; Raid Ruled Out

New York, May 15.—(AP)—United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill today dismissed a search warrant under which the Delta Kappa Epsilon club was raided about a month ago, and three men arrested. The warrant was dismissed on the request of Maxwell Shapiro, attorney for the club, who argued the building was a home for the persons living there and that no outside sale of liquor was permitted. The dismissal of the warrant automatically voids the arrests.

The Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, last night addressed the English-Speaking Union of "An American's View of India," at the annual meeting of the organization in the Palmer House. The following officers of the Union were re-elected for the coming year: Ernest S. Ballard, president; Horace Bridges, Robert F. Carr, Mrs. B. F. Langworthy and Frederick T. West, vice presidents; Donald P. Welles, secretary and C. R. Whitworth, treasurer.

ENVOY ROBBED OF RUM SENDS A REPORT HOME

Says Police Fail to Protect Him.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, chargé d'affaires of the Salvadorean legation, disclosed today that he has made a formal report to his government on the capital's latest diplomatic liquor incident in which he played a star rôle as the victim of an attack by liquor thieves. Whether the government of Salvador will take official cognisance of the incident and ask the United States for restitution of the liquor stolen and damages for the wounds suffered by Dr. Leiva was a matter the diplomat said he could not answer.

Discussing the robbery last Wednesday, Dr. Leiva told reporters he did not believe he had been accorded adequate protection by the Washington police. He recounted several occasions when the legation had been entered by thieves and said that under existing conditions he would not permit his wife to remain there over night.

Finds Door Forced Open.

"Less than two weeks ago," he said, "I came home at night and found the front door of the legation had been forced open. I called police and we searched the place. The intruders had departed, but there was evidence that they had been there.

"When I returned home one night during holy week I found holes drilled around a lock in the door. Not wishing to incur publicity, I made no report of the incident. A short time later, however, the legation again was entered. This time I found some silverware was stolen. A case of liquor had been removed from the cellar but had not been taken from the house. It was only a short while until the place was entered for the third time and I again called in the officers."

Dr. Leiva concluded by referring to the attack on him by liquor thieves.

Asks Stimson for Data.

Indications that the attack on Dr. Leiva will result in another congressional talkfest on the diplomatic liquor situation came today when Representative John C. Schaefer [Rep., Wis.] transmitted a letter to Secretary of State Stimson asking for information regarding the Salvador robbery.

REBELS DISARM NANKING TROOPS; 200 DIE IN BATTLE

Revolt Leader Captures Thousands of Rifles.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 15.—Five thousand Canton rebels under Gen. Chen Chi-tang won the first real battle today when the pro-Nanking troops holding out on the outskirts of Whampoa were disarmed. The fighting resulted in casualties of 100 killed on each side, with as many wounded, including a large number of civilians.

The Canton gunboat Leesum was struck by two shells, the funnel being smashed and her hull badly damaged. The British cargo steamer Tai-Shan, when passing Whampoa, was riddled with bullets.

Seizes Arms, Ammunition.

Gen. Chen Chi-tang claimed that he had seized thousands of rifles and much ammunition, belonging to the nationalist forces, which numbered 3,000 men. The capture of Whampoa has brought a temporary lull in the Canton situation, enabling the resumption of Canton to Hongkong shipping and railway transportation.

Gen. Chen Chi-tang has seized another large stock of arms and ammunition, which was stored within the Canton limits and belonging to the army formerly commanded by the pro-Nanking general, Chen Ming-hsu.

Nanking May Rush Army.

The Kuomintang, or people's convention, at Nanking, strongly condemned the Canton revolt. While hope is still expressed for a peaceful adjustment, it is believed that a punitive mandate against Canton will shortly be issued. The heavy movement of troops toward Hunan province indicates that the chief fighting will likely be in that area.

TWO DEATHS IN AUTO ACCIDENTS MAKE TOLL 423

Two automobile fatalities yesterday increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 423. The victims:

Frank Johnson, 78 years old, 2659 Orchard street, a laborer employed in Lincoln park. Fatally injured when he was struck by a truck being driven by Frank Jush, 554 Gilpin place, at Clark street and Dole avenue.

Peter Balasinas, 35 years old, 7030 South Artesian avenue. Died a few hours after being struck by a car at Washtenaw avenue and 49th street. Joseph Kaczkowski, 2117 West 49th place, driver of the car, is being held.

The body of a man killed by a hit and run driver at Grand and Normandy avenues was identified by the widow as that of Henry Loebe, 54 years old, 6618 George street. William Strong, 35 years old, 2730 North Rutherford avenue, was injured probably fatally by the same car.

Ralph Henning, 3 years old, 4622 North Keeler avenue, ran ahead of his uncle, Paul Henning, while they were crossing Tripp avenue at Irving Park boulevard yesterday and was injured probably fatally by an auto. James H. Schearin, 17 years old, 6315 Raven street, was the driver.

Delay Inquest in Orphan's Death Pending Inquiry

The inquest into the death of Thomas Meyer, 17 years old, an orphan who died Thursday at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Summers, 632 West North avenue, was continued yesterday until June 5 to allow time for a chemical analysis. He had been ill for nearly a year with partial paralysis. The symptoms indicated he might have been ailing from poisoning and the coroner ordered an investigation.

POPE PIUS URGES FAIR WAGES FOR THE WORKINGMAN

given you welcome, letting you participate in the unforgettable demonstration of our ancestral faith toward the mother of God in commemoration of the great council of Ephesus, which was celebrated fifteen centuries ago.

"The bishop of Rome is happy and glad to represent a people so faithful and pious. The Mother of God who gives you this welcome, beloved children, smiles her blessing from her venerated image.

"Having been able to speak in three languages, we would like to be able to speak in others also, especially to our dear Polish, but since we have already spoken in Italian, French and German, largely understood also by the other national groups, and having said the same thing in them we will continue in this manner.

Will Issue Encyclical Soon.

"Moreover, while some are listening, the others can read what we are saying in the booklets published for this purpose.

"The booklets, as you have been able to see, announce our encyclical, quadragesimo anno, which will appear shortly as a comment on the rerum novarum of Leo XIII.

"It is already in the press and will be published within a few days.

"We have thought to make this a memorial and a reminder of the encyclical of Leo XIII. This we have done in our new encyclical, and in memory of this we shall give to each a small medal depicting the subjects of our two encyclicals and their author.

Prayer, Action, Sacrifice.

"We have promised to give you something very short and which can be put into three words, all the eloquence of the rerum novarum and of the quadragesimo anno, for whatever the Catholic program or Catholic direction, individual or social.

"Here are the three words—prayer, action, sacrifice.

"They are few words, but full of significance.

"These are the spiritual words of the Catholic activities—words which also shine forth on so many of your beautiful banners—glorious, reverent words—words which we have judged righteous and honorable for people of great kinds—words which signify on these flags your faith, your ardor, and your action, and are emblems of your sacrifice, you who are the successors of past people, you my beloved children.

Tells the Significance.

"Prayer, action, and sacrifice.

"Prayer, in the first place—prayer—the most essential condition of all, 'because without me you are able to do nothing.'

"Prayer is the expression of the greatest faith which helps us to make easy the apostolate. But above all it is that which Jesus calls the one most necessary thing, for the kingdom of God is within you.

"Prayer, the first and essential condition of all truthful apostolate, prayer, which arms and prepares us with divine aid.

"Charity and Justice."

"Action is the next thing both in the domestic circle and in social circles—action both private and public, both in foundation and organization: action of charity and of justice and of the peace of Christ among the classes, the peoples, and the apostolate, of edification, of prayer, of the written word, and of the spoken word.

"The individual apostolate, above all social, has a greater field in which to work, so great are the needs of the present day that call for help.

"The church of Christ, through divine command always well doing, has given the example everywhere and through all ages. Everywhere has it preached holiness and the morality of Almighty God, and it has always besought the cooperation of all its sons.

"What is even more necessary than action is sacrifice, perseverence, method, and discipline in your work, which demand the submission of your personal ideas and also demand your coordination and your subordination as workers.

"These imply struggles, difficult, dangerous struggles which require intelligence, and perseverance, and obedience, and these will lead you to a final divine victory.

"Prayer, action, and sacrifice. This is what we recommend, what the encyclical rerum novarum has laid down, and what our encyclical now promulgates anew in order to continue and follow in the path of our predecessor's encyclical.

Demanded by Church.

"Prayer, action and sacrifice—there is the need of this fortieth year to continue and to enlarge the plan laid down by the encyclical rerum novarum.

"Prayer, action and sacrifice—there is what holy mother church demands of those who labor with her in the vineyard of the gospel and in the divine work of the apostolate.

"Prayer, individual, domestic, public, and social, particularly social.

"Prayer, action and sacrifice—there is what is necessary for you, the children of our predilection. That is what you need, you, the workers; you, the financiers; you who finance all industry, labor in justice and charity, in fraternity and in peaceful cooperation; in the practice of all virtues, in the respect of all rights and values, and particularly moral values, toward the weak and the humble, above all toward the weak.

"May the Holy Spirit descend upon you and upon your brothers and sisters in labor and also upon those who give you employment, and upon those who lend to your work the responsibility and intelligence of their management.

"La mia benedizione cada su tutti voi" (May my blessing descend upon all of you.)

Then the pontiff imparted his apostolic blessing.

RESUME OF ENCYCLICAL

Msgr. Francis J. Spellman of Whitman, Mass., who spoke on the radio after Pope Pius, gave a résumé of the encyclical on labor which is shortly to be issued by the pontiff. The encyclical will be called "Quadragesimo Anno," which means "in the fortieth year," indicating the anniversary which occasions its publication. Msgr. Spellman said, in part:

"Speaking of the relations between capital and labor, the two elements of the actual economic régime, the holy father repeats that neither has the right to demand for itself alone all the profits of their collaboration. He recalls the clear words of Leo XIII., 'capital cannot do without labor nor labor without capital.'

"In the past there has been beyond question an excessive and unjust disproportion of the commodities of life between capital and labor, for on the one hand immense riches are accumulated in the hands of a few, while on the other the proletariat, who form a multitude beyond all counting, have nothing of their own save their hands and the sweat of their brow.

Worker Must Get Fair Wage.

"It is, therefore, absolutely necessary to reconstruct the whole economic system by bringing it back to the requirements of social justice so as to insure a more equitable distribution of the united proceeds of capital and labor.

The differences in social conditions in the human family, which were widely decreed by the Creator, must not and cannot ever be abolished, but on the other hand the condition of the proletarian worker cannot forever be the normal condition of the bulk of mankind. It is essential that the proletariat be enabled gradually to obtain some of the advantages enjoyed by proprietors.

"In the present order this can be accomplished only by a fair and just wage. Wages, therefore, must be such as really to satisfy the legitimate requirements of an honest workingman not only for his person but also for his family, and to make it possible for him to improve his condition within the limits above described.

Class War Must Cease.

"All opposition between the classes must cease and harmonious collaboration must be established between the various trade groups.

"Work is not any kind of saleable commodity, but one in which the human dignity of the workingman must always be respected.

"The various trades, industries and occupations must all work together for the common good and human society will be the more cordially united and harmoniously organized the more faithfully all and each practice their own professions and follow their own vocations.

"Finally, the holy father from his lofty apostolic chair, casts a general glance at the actual state of the modern economic world. He does not condemn it as evil in itself, but he cannot fail to recognize that it is seriously warped and burdened with grave abuses.

Few Wield Whole Power.

"Free and often unbridled competition has been succeeded by the exaggerated concentration in the hands of a few of the whole economic power not only of single nations but of the entire world, and this concentration and this power degenerate into tyrannical despotism.

"The only efficacious remedy for this disorder is the return to the sane principles of Christian social philosophy, and their prudent application to capital, to labor, and to the relations between the two.

"Socialism, too, which has boasted of supplying a radical remedy for this same evil—a remedy which was worse than the disease itself—has undergone a profound modification since the days of Leo XIII.

Split Into Two Divisions.

"It has split into two divisions. The first, which draws all the logical consequences, even the most extreme, from the principles of socialism, has taken the name of communism, and it is well known that its teachings can in no wise be reconciled with the doctrines of the church.

"The other, which continues to be known as socialism, has frequently and notably mitigated its program. In many points it has approached, now more, now less, so close to Catholic socialist principles that some are asking themselves whether now the divergence is not one of name only.

"The holy father, however, does not hesitate to declare solemnly that this socialism, provided, of course, it really remains socialism, even in mitigated form, and even though many points of its teachings are in themselves conformable to justice and admitted by the church, has nevertheless a fundamental concept of human society so different from the true concept given us by the gospel, that any agreement in doctrine remains always absolutely impossible.

Deplores Greed of Men.

"The holy father then passes on to recite with greater precision the remedies for present evils.

"With keen insight, he observes that the root of the disorder, both in the modern economic world in general and in socialism, lies in men fixing their eyes on earthly goods without heed of God and of things eternal.

"The principal remedy, therefore, must be applied to the root itself by raising up men's hearts and minds to God and filling them with nobler and purer aspirations. To this end the first urgent need is that men spend their efforts to a serious improvement of manners and to the establishment of the reign of justice by which the whole social and economic order should be inspired.

Urges Greater Charity.

"Even then, however, a wide field will always remain open for charity, which is and will ever be the only true and efficacious bond which can unite all men together and make them one single family.

"In this renovation of society on the basis of the gospel and of Christian charity, all men of good will ought to concur.

"On this account the holy father rejoices to see the initiative and zeal with which not only the clergy but also the laity in large numbers and even many young men filled with the spirit of Catholic action are laboring in the various countries, and he stimulates them with fatherly encouragement to devote themselves untiringly to this noble end.

All Must Work Together.

"For if a condition of affairs diametrically opposed to Christian principles were to prevail, as many insist, the disaster would be terrible. Strong as she is in God's infallible promises, the church does not fear for herself, but she fears for so many of her sons, for so many souls who would be lost.

"All must work together, therefore, for the common good, in complete harmony and discipline, each at his own post and in his own sphere seeking only the interests of God and the kingdom of Jesus Christ."

CROCODILE GOD'S TEMPLE, COMPLETE, IS FOUND IN EGYPT

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

CAIRO, May 15.—[Special.]—The discovery of the first complete sanctuary, with all annexes, of the crocodile god Seknertunis of ancient city of Teptynis (Uamel Boreigat) is the chief result of the season's excavations in the district of Feyum. "Lake of the Crocodiles," under an Italian archaeological mission. Other temples of the crocodile god previously had been found in other parts of Feyum, but never before had a complete sanctuary been uncovered.

The sanctuary is composed of a long processional way and a temple surrounded by a huge wall inclosure, within which were priests' dwellings. The processional way is paved throughout with limestone and decorated on both sides by statues of lions and sphinxes.

The most important buildings unearthed on either side are a limestone kiosk of ptolemaic date (after the conquests of Alexander the Great) and four Roman mud brick buildings, believed to have been halls for ritual banquets of four groups of temple priests.

86 DEAD, 500 HURT IS EGYPT'S TOLL IN ELECTION RIOTS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

CAIRO, Egypt, May 15.—The government said tonight that the death toll in yesterday's election riots was fifteen, with more than 100 wounded. However, it is learned from a most reliable authority that the actual number of dead is now eighty-six, with more than 500 wounded. Four policemen were killed and thirty-two seriously injured.

The relatives of the dead have not been allowed to go near the morgue. Those who died in the hospital as a result of wounds were buried at 3 a. m. today, while the bodies of many who were killed outright were carried off in trucks and thrown into a large hole in the public cemetery on the outskirts of the city.

Long distance telephone communications were still held up today, but riots were reported in various provinces by persons who arrived here by train. There was no polling today and everything passed off comparatively quietly. Tomorrow, however, voting will be resumed in districts throughout the country where there was no voting yesterday. Each electoral district is divided into three parts, each part voting on a different day.

SWEDISH STRIKE GROWS; MILITARY TRAIN IS STONED

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, May 15.—Labor disturbances, which yesterday led to fighting between troops and striking workers of the Kramfors sawmills in which six strikers were killed, today developed threateningly. While troops were summoned to the district and succeeded in subduing the immediate disturbances, it seems that sympathy for the strike is spreading over the whole country. About 20,000 building workers walked out today in sympathy.

A military train which early this morning arrived at Kramfors had hardly one window intact. It had been exposed to a stone bombardment en route and also was once halted to remove obstructions from the rails. Today all shops closed at Aadallen for fear of plundering, and volunteer workers were quietly removed from the district.

The government has sent an armored cruiser to the scene to assist the local authorities and maintain order, if necessary, and a torpedo chaser was sent to Hernoes with a military transport.

Thieves Loot St. Mark's Catholic Church at Peoria

Peoria, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—Thieves looted St. Mark's Catholic church of sacred articles valued at $1,000 last night, taking a chalice, two communion plates, three elboria, a crucifix, and vases, and robbing the alms box.

CANADIAN HOUSE VOTES TO JOIN LEAGUE COURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 15.—With an expression of regret from Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, that the United States, Canada's only neighbor, was not a subscribing member, the Canadian house of commons unanimously declared Canada's adherence to the league of nations general act for the pacific settlement of international disputes. In agreement with other empire units, Canada excludes from the field of arbitration or international court settlement disputes arising between British empire nations.

When Premier R. B. Bennett tonight accused former Premier Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, of having written the resignation from the London commissionership of Vincent Massey, recent Canadian minister at Washington, Mr. King shouted back, "That is an absolute falsehood!" The Liberal leader was forced to make a retraction.

REPORT REVOLT IN CUBAN PROVINCE; TROOPS RUSHED

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, May 15.—Armed rebellion is reported to be imminent, or perhaps even to have started, in Oriente province. Rumors set midnight tonight as the time for a general revolt to begin.

Francisco Vasquez, mayor of Jiguani, Oriente province, is said to have revolted against the government already, but this could not be confirmed. Vasquez is a close friend of former President Menocal.

Troops have been rushed to Santiago, where intense excitement prevails. The city is in darkness for some reason that has not been explained here.

RAIL PRESIDENT BEGS PUBLIC FOR ITS PATRONAGE

Declares Bus and Truck Threaten Chaos.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 15.—[Special.]—Pleading in behalf of the railroads for equality with their competitors in the matter of regulation and taxation, Agnew T. Dice, president of the Reading Railroad company, told the convention of the New Jersey Bankers' association today that if the public did not continue to patronize the railroads trains would be withdrawn and trackage decreased.

"The havoc caused by the passenger bus to railroad revenues is well known," said Mr. Dice." The railroads for self-protection have been forced into the business. Today we are cutting rail passenger rates to the very bone to safeguard our investments and if the public does not respond in the passenger field, and continues to ship by motor truck it is inevitable that trains will be withdrawn, and certainly trackage reduced, particularly on branch lines. Should this result the state and local communities will be deprived of railroad taxes, property will depreciate and the public be compelled to pay higher transportation charges.

Looks at Government Waste.

"Looking around us at governmental waste, the failure of our governments adequately to protect life and property, our prostrate industries, our millions eager to work, who can find no work; our waterways, highways and pipe lines diverting millions of badly needed revenues from the railroads and bringing unemployment to thousands of railroad workers, we face a condition approaching chaos, and we grope longingly for order. Our political medicine men to the contrary notwithstanding, no simple or easy remedy can be found for deepseated troubles traceable in no small part to governmental extravagance and disregard of economic laws and fundamental truths.

"But the order we are seeking to bring out of chaos points to the road we must follow. Order suggests coordination, and coördination sums up the many things which must be done to restore vigor and efficiency to our governments, industries and railroads.

"What the railroads ask and all that they ask is equality with their competitors as to regulation and taxation. Given such equality the free play of natural economic laws will promptly bring about efficient coördination as between the railroads, water ways, highways and airways."

Assails Tariff Increases.

"We must face the fact of our inability to compete with the forced labor of Russia, the cheap labor of India and Egypt, and must reduce acreage of wheat and cotton to the basis of that needed for home consumption," Mr. Dice continued. "The tariff revised upward at a critical period in our economic life utterly failed to protect capital, and labor as its proponents advanced, and instead of providing protection for ourselves we made trading with other nations most difficult.

"The destructive powers of the rulers of Russia are proved facts, but some of our leaders of industry to whom we naturally look for wise counsel and sound constructive policies are willing for the sake of temporary gain to make the Russian soviets infinitely more powerful.

"Our statesmen at Washington wax hysterical over the severity of the depression and the suffering of our people, but for fear of the loss of a few foreign born votes they refuse to put up sufficient bars against immigration and compel our unemployed to compete with immigrants accustomed to a much lower standard of living."

Banking Business Better.

Addressing the convention of the Pennsylvania Bankers' association, Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' association, said that while the seriousness of the number of bank failures during 1930, especially in its effect upon public sentiment regarding banking cannot be minimized, it may be confidently said that the opening months of 1931 "show conclusively that there has been a very marked improvement in this respect."

INVALIDS FORM A SUICIDE CLUB; FOUR FOUND SLAIN

Woman, Held in Death of Brother, Reveals Pact.

Riverhead, L. I., May 15.—[Special.]—A strange story of the formation of a suicide cult by thirty residents of Nassau and Suffolk counties, who believed themselves no longer of any use to humanity, was unfolded today by Miss Stella Schwartz of West Amityville when attention was given emphasis when a coroner's jury showed that four persons who had named as having ended their lives in accordance with the principles of the cult had indeed committed suicide recently.

Miss Schwartz had confessed to District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, Miss Schwartz, who had been under arrest on a charge of abetting the suicide of her brother, Edward, last Wednesday, was indicted for second degree murder by the Nassau county grand jury. Mr. Edwards said, however, that he believed the woman should be examined by a lunacy commission.

Met on Sunday Nights.

Miss Schwartz said the cult had been organized three months ago by a group of persons living near the Nassau-Suffolk county line, all of whom were over 55 and who had become useless to their families because of ill health. Miss Schwartz, who is 51, and her brother were dependent upon another brother who lives in Ohio.

"Every Sunday night we met at the home of one of our members," she said in the district attorney. "There we stayed for him for a period of about an hour that he might be cured of his delusions. If he was not receptive to our prayers he was to commit suicide. If he failed to end his life the following Sunday he was to be slain by a chosen member of the group.

"In many instances the member for whom we prayed was receptive and an improvement was immediately noted. In four cases, however, the members failed to respond, and they took their own lives. On April 26 we met at the home of George Breitenbach, who lived near us in Amityville, and prayed. He was not receptive and so on the next day was found in the cellar of his home.

Breaks Him of His Vow.

"Last Sunday we prayed over my brother. I watched him carefully for a week. On Tuesday morning I released him of his allegiance to his vow. Tuesday evening he shot himself.

Miss Schwartz said the woman had formerly given the date of Breitenbach's suicide and had named two persons who recently had committed suicide. He refused to reveal the names, explaining they had been citizens of Suffolk county and that District Attorney Blue of that county is investigating.

Four of the 26 surviving members of the group also have been given the attention by Miss Schwartz, Mr. Edwards said. Although he declined to state how much credence he gave the story he admitted he and Mr. Blue are checking up on the persons named. Miss Schwartz was arrested after authorities had been unable to obtain a satisfactory account of her brother's death from her. She did not call a doctor until five hours after she found his body, and when the physician saw the pistol with which the dead man had been fired lay on the bed nearby.

WIFE CARRIES DEATH GAS

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Theresa Artinger, ill and despairing, rigged a fifty foot length of garden hose to a jet on her kitchen gas range today and dragged it into her bedroom. Then, turning on the gas, she lay down on the bed with her 10 year old son, Roy. Both were dead when the husband and father, awakened by the smell of gas, came to the room.

Mrs. Artinger, the husband, was affected slightly by the gas. But he got out of the effects when he saw the long length of hose stretching through the kitchen, dining room, living room, and into his wife's bedroom, the door of which had been stuffed with newspapers and rags. He called police.

They found that Mrs. Artinger had barricaded her door with a chair and other furniture, and they were forced nearly in the ever increasing fumes in the gas filled room to break in. The efforts of an ambulance surgeon and an inhalator crew to revive mother and son were futile.

Mrs. Artinger, who, according to her husband, had suffered severely for some time with heart disease, left two notes. One, addressed to her husband, read:

"We are sorry we can't take you with us because the room isn't big enough."

A note addressed to a sister said:

"If husband isn't gone with us, things are in place I once showed you. We are both sick. We can't get well. We are sorry to give you all this trouble."

The other note was not addressed to anyone. It follows:

DIXIE MINISTER SUES 2 BISHOPS IN CANNON ROW

Alleges Slander in Controversy.

Dallas, Tex., May 15.—(AP)—Bishop John M. Moore of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, has been sued for $25,000 by the Rev. Rembert G. Smith, Methodist minister at Sparta, Ga., who charges slander in connection with a political controversy which raged at a general church conference here last year.

The Rev. Mr. Smith was active in preferring accusations against Bishop Moore, Bishop James Cannon Jr., Bishop E. D. Mouzon, and Bishop H. M. Du Bose, claiming they had been interested in opposing Alfred E. Smith's candidacy for the presidency.

Bishop Moore said tonight that he had not authorized newspaper quotations of any remarks he might have made concerning Mr. Smith.

Sues Bishop Mouzon Also.

Charlotte, N. C., May 15.—(AP)—Filing of a petition in a suit asking $50,000 for alleged slander and libel from Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon of the Southern Methodist church by the Rev. Rembert G. Smith, Methodist minister of Sparta, Ga., was disclosed tonight.

The petition asks $25,000 for the alleged slander and the same amount on the libel count. The basis of the suit is the same as that alleged in Mr. Smith's suit against Bishop Moore in Dallas.

Bishop Will Be Cited.

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the senate campaign funds committee announced today that Bishop James Cannon Jr. would be called to testify in a renewed effort to determine what disposition was made of $65,000 anti-Smith campaign funds.

Senator Nye conferred with Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York on the next step in the inquiry in view of the refusal last week of Miss Ada Burroughs of Richmond, Va., to testify. Miss Burroughs was treasurer of the headquarters committee of the anti-Smith Democrats, of which the bishop was chairman.

AMERICAN WAR MOTHERS CHEER PERSHING IN PARIS

PARIS, May 15.—One hundred and twenty-five American gold star mothers rose spontaneously to their feet and cheered Gen. John J. Pershing this afternoon as he unexpectedly walked in on their tea at a restaurant in the Champs Elysees. Hundreds of eyes were dimmed with tears as the war commander praised the courage of the American troops, who rushed to the battle fronts, "many hurriedly trained, some only partly trained, and some not trained at all."

Gen. Gouraud, one armed military governor of Paris, also acclaimed the bravery and devotion of the American soldiers. American clergymen added words of spiritual comfort.

Mrs. C. A. Stevenson of Muskegon, Mich., expressed the general feeling of the group by saying "a good cry does us good." Ambassador Walter E. Edge praised the army's record in organizing the pilgrimages with a remarkably low percentage of illness.

Senator Swanson Faints, but Revives Quickly

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—Senator Claude Swanson of Virginia collapsed today but revived quickly. Leaving a meeting of the war policies commission, of which he is a member, he fell to the floor. Friends lifted him to the committee table, while a doctor was being called. He was thought to have suffered an attack of indigestion. He is 69.

Newport Ceremony

Newport, R. I., May 15.—(AP)—Miss Louise Astor Van Alen of Newport and Prince Alexis Z. Mdivani of Georgia were married at Wakehurst, the bride's Newport home, today.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stanley Carnaghan Hughes, rector of Old Trinity church. Neither the bride nor the groom was attended. Less than a dozen persons, all members of the bride's immediate family, witnessed the ceremony. The family of the prince was not represented.

The bride wore a brown traveling costume instead of the customary gown. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for New York where they were to board the steamship Ile de France later in the day. They will make their home in Paris.

The bride, a direct descendant of John Jacob Astor, is the daughter of Mrs. James Laurens Van Alen and granddaughter of the late James J. Van Alen, once United States ambassador to Italy.

Prince Mdivani, who is 23, is the son of Zakhari Mdivani, who was an aide-de-camp and general at the court of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia. The prince is the brother-in-law of Mae Murray, screen actress, whose husband is David Mdivani. A second brother, Prince Serge Mdivani, is the divorced husband of Pola Negri and is now married to Mary McCormic, Chicago Civic opera star.

CHICAGO YACHT TO BE LAUNCHED IN RIVER TODAY

The first large sailing boat launching in Chicago in 50 years will take place this afternoon when the schooner yacht Freedom slides down the ways at the Great Lakes yards, 3250 North Washtenaw avenue, on the north branch of the river.

The Freedom was built for Mr. and Mrs. J. Sterling Morton of 179 Lake Shore drive. It is the largest sailing boat ever constructed on Lake Michigan, being 89 feet over all with a beam of 20 feet and a draft of 10 feet.

Fittings on the Freedom will rival those of ocean liners. The ship proper is constructed of African and Honduran mahogany and native white oak. Two double staterooms with baths, two single staterooms and a large main cabin provide accommodations for owners and guests. Electric refrigeration and a large galley give facilities for long cruises.

Auxiliary power is furnished by a 175 horsepower motor. Winches and capstans are electrically operated. The Freedom will start for the Atlantic coast on June 1, where Mr. Morton will match it against boats of its size during the summer.

GANDHI AGREES TO ATTEND NEW PARLEY ON INDIA

Pleads for Racial Unity in Liberty Fight.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SIMLA, India, May 15.—Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, today announced he would participate in the second round table conference at London in November.

LORD WILLINGDON.

While Viceroy Lord Willingdon was consulting with the Indian delegates to the next London round table conference yesterday, Gandhi addressed 10,000 adherents, who climbed the dizzy heights of Simla to hear the father of India's independence speak. He told them that it would be useless for him to go to London unless all the people of India, whether Hindus, Moslems, Sikhs, Parsees, or Christians, were united and solidly behind him so that Great Britain would understand that his voice in London was the unanimous voice of India's millions who "did not want unity on paper but unity of heart."

Drenched by Cloudburst.

As he stood shivering in the chilly mountain air in his scanty loin cloth, Gandhi was drenched by a sudden cloudburst, but persisted in delivering his message to the disciples who had come hundreds of miles to hear him.

Taking pity on his exposed and chilled condition, Miss Madeline Slade, his English worshiper and a daughter of an English admiral, threw her homespun cloak about the mahatma's naked shoulders and raised it over his head. Amidst applause Gandhi continued his speech, saying:

"Let me pray to God that we may be saved from a second struggle, and that the Delhi settlement will lead to India's final success. But whether the government observes the terms of the Delhi truce or not it is our bounden duty to do so, because it is only by keeping our pledged word that we can impress the outside world of our sincerity and honesty.

Says Failure Means War.

"You know the conditions which have been imposed by the all-India Nationalist congress at Karachi upon such of your delegates as will attend the second round table conference. But if, as a result of the Delhi truce, we cannot get complete self-government, it is our ill luck. If our efforts toward a permanent settlement fail, we must be ready to renew war against the British, which I beseech God may not be necessary."

RUTH NICHOLS TO TRY FOR PARIS ON OVERSEA HOP

New York, May 15.—(AP)—In a big Lockhead-Vega monoplane, Miss Ruth Nichols will set out from Harbor Grace, N. F., some afternoon between now and July 1 to fly alone through the night across the Atlantic.

She said today she believed her chances of a safe journey were 98 per cent.

Her first objective will be Croydon field, outside London. After that, if her fuel holds out and weather conditions are right, Paris

"And if I find myself over Paris," she said, "with still enough fuel for an hour or more flying, I shall keep on going."

YOUTH IS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

LONDON, May 15.—(AP)—Canada's two new destroyers, the Skeena and the Saguenay, have completed their power trials.

The Saguenay, named after a river in eastern Canada and destined for service in the eastern seaboard, will leave Portsmouth for Canada during the first week in June under Commander Percy Nelles.

The Skeena, named after a river in British Columbia, is destined for service on the Pacific coast and will leave Portsmouth for the Pacific about June 1.

GEN. MACARTHUR FORBIDS ARMY TO 'BOMB' N. Y.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—The spectacular mock air raid scheduled to be held over New York City on the night of May 22 was canceled today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the army, as a move toward eliminating the "circus" atmosphere from the air corps maneuvers, scheduled for this week.

GEN. MacARTHUR.

Thirty-six huge bombing planes were to have flown over the city in formation, dropping huge parachute flares, each of which would throw out a brilliant light of more than a million candle power. In canceling this part of the maneuvers, Gen. MacArthur asserted that the maneuvers represented a real attempt to test out the defensive power of the air arm rather than a move to stage a circus.

Gen. MacArthur indicated by his manner and words that he had no sympathy for the wide advance publicity that has been obtained for the air maneuvers by the press section of the war department.

He'll Run the Show.

At the same time he disclosed that he plans to take full charge of the maneuvers as senior officer of the United States army when the mobilization of the air corps division has been completed in the west and the planes have flown over Chicago and been concentrated on the Atlantic seaboard. He stated that the air force is to be utilized to protect Boston and other coastal cities from a simulated naval attack by a hostile power.

"The army at this time is in full charge of air coastal defense," Gen. MacArthur said. "This is the first opportunity we have had to concentrate our air arm and see what it can do in the way of frustrating both air and surface warship attacks."

Gen. Fechet Explains.

Assistant Secretary of War Trubee Davison, in charge of aviation, said this afternoon that he did not know anything about the issuance of the order canceling the night demonstration. The orders were issued yesterday by Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the air corps.

"The night demonstration was canceled," he said, "because the personnel taking part should be resting at that time for the strenuous exercises to be staged on the following day.

Fairfield Air Depot, Dayton, O., May 15.—(AP)—America's eagles of the air, nearly 700 army planes summoned from every section of the country, rested together tonight on this high plateau in the Miami river valley.

All day they dipped down from the sky, ending cross-country trips from every coast, and lined up wing to wing on the green meadows, high in the Montgomery county hills. Tomorrow they will take the air again and practice formation flying in preparation for trips to Chicago, Detroit, and the eastern seaboard for combat tactics and aerial reviews.

Wings of the army's war birds will cast shadows all over western Ohio and eastern Indiana tomorrow afternoon, returning again before night.

Split Into Five Sections.

The division will split into five sections. The first pursuit wing, comprising 194 fast pursuit planes and 32 transports from Selfridge field, Michigan, and the army's California airdromes, will go northwest and operate in the area bounded by Richmond and Decatur, Ind., and Troy, Wapakoneta, Sidney, and Piqua, O.

The eleventh bombardment wing, composed of bombers from Langley field, Virginia, Rockwell field, California, and Kelly field, Texas, will go northeast and fly from Kenton, Marion, Urbana, and Springfield west and north to the area of the pursuit ships.

The third attack group, 51 two seaters from Galveston and San Antonio, Tex., will fly east over Xenia, Columbus, London, Chillicothe, and Washington Courthouse.

150 to Fly Southeast.

The 21st observation wing, made up of 150 two seaters, but lower in speed, from Mitchel field, New York; Kelly field, Texas, and two provisional groups, will operate to the southeast, over Portsmouth, Maysville, Ky., Cincinnati, and north toward the attack planes.

The 22d observation wing, National Guard ships, from 13 states, will fly to the south and west, over Cincinnati and Hamilton, O., Greensburg, and Richmond, Ind.

State and national air experts will watch the marshaling of the fleets tomorrow, expecting in the huge job of getting several hundred ships into the air and down again a repetition of the clocklike work of today.

The Hornets from Selfridge field, 57 ships of the first pursuit group, fast as any in the army corps, were the first to arrive today, the four squadrons flying in "V" formation out of the north.

Aviator Loses Three Bombs.

Wabash, Ind., May 15.—(AP)—The pilot of an army plane that arrived at Dayton, Ohio, today for maneuvers with three bombs missing need worry no longer.

The bombs fell on Charley Connelley's farm near here and almost hit him. He turned them over to Wabash officials.

Big Social Colony Arises Near Dnieper Dam.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DNIEPERSTROI, U. S. S. S. R., April 27.—[By mail.]—Opposite the huge dam which Col. Hugh L. Cooper of New York is erecting here, the Freyn Engineering company of Chicago is laying out plans for the construction of a giant industrial city, with homes for workers and a complete social colony.

COL. HUGH L. COOPER.

Formerly this rich black loam was farmed by Mennonites, who come from Germany at the invitation of Katherine the Great to colonize this area. In the drive on kulaks last year, they, as rich peasants, were driven out, expropriated and disfranchised. Many were sent into exile inthe frozen north and remote regions of Sibera.

Kitchkass, the Mennonite settlement, will be under water in a few months, beneath the great lake which will be formed by the dam. Of the 7,000 former German colonists, about 2,500 have been moved to a collective farm on higher land four miles away. The rest are scattered. Many attempted to return home and succeeded in reaching Moscow. There they were placed in a concentration camp north of the capital and gradually "liquidated" into exile.

Sent Ex-Kaiser Money.

One Mennonite formerly sent the kaiser a million rubles every year to help the then emperor maintain the fleet on the high seas. He escaped to Germany, it is said.

The buildings in Kitchkass are being torn down. The bricks are being taken elsewhere to be used to build new houses. The official librarian of the soviet plant here and the communist leader attempted to explain to me the means of classifying peasants as kulaks and the reasons why they had to be liquidated.

They admitted that the "rich peasants" were reluctant to abandon the fruits of their life's labors and pool their holdings and belongings with their shiftless neighbors, whose laziness left them destitute year after year, but the bolshevik leader finally asserted that even if these kulaks had been ready to join collectives with the rest they would not have been permitted to.

"Kulaks can never be permitted in collectives," he said. "They are a menace to our social organization. And they can never repent and cease being kulaks. Once a kulak always a kulak, and they are our enemies in class warfare."

Kulaks Fought Militia.

Fighting between organized groups of kulaks and the militia sent to evict them from their homes and ship them to exile occurred in the vicinity of Dnieperstroi, and long convoys of the condemned men and their families were often seen trudging across the bridge from Kitchkass, carrying all their property left them on their backs.

So Electropolis is to rear its head on the property of the hated kulaks, and in this city of a million people, estimated for 1940, there will be no church, nor will any of the devout be permitted to erect such an edifice.

There will be a vast aluminum plant, handling ore from Leningrad and what is extracted from the clay found in this region. There will be an alloy plant, and electrolytical shop, a coke oven with a capacity of 1,200 tons a day from the six American type furnaces, and steel works. These will obtain iron ore from Krivoi Rog, 90 miles away, and manganese from Nikopol, 125 miles south. The output is now estimated at 1,200,000 tons of cast iron and 260,000 tons of steel per annum. There will be a shellac, a cement plant and enormous repair shops.

Build Wooden Shacks.

Temporary wooden shacks are being erected to house the 40,000 peasants expected to arrive here during the summer to work on construction. Huge barns are being prepared for their horses, as the mujiks furnish their own animals for transporting building materials.

Some skepticism is expressed as to the realization of the dream to make Electropolis a city of a million in the next ten years and doubts are even formulated as to whether the enormous power produced by the 800,000 horsepower which the dam will generate will ever be consumed in this vicinity.

Whether the grandiose scheme will ever be consummated can only be conjectured, but certainly there is enormous activity in the embryo industrial city on the left bank of the Dnieper. A number of units of the various plants are already up, huge brick and concrete and steel and glass buildings with saw-tooth roofs. And a 1,000 room hotel is already three stories high and piles of machinery are already beginning to arrive from the United States and Germany for installation.

A Filthy Old Town.

Zaparajnie is a filthy old town on the main line railway to Crimea and Sebastopol, the corridors and waiting rooms of the railroad station jammed with hoboes and homeless children beating their way north, now that the winter is past, and peasant families, laden like camels with baggage, moving somewhere.

The railroad has contrived to make all trains arrive at and leave from Zaparajnie between 10 p. m. and 5 a. m. This policy is a boon for the traveler, as there is no hotel in the town and no one who speaks anything but Russian nearer than the dam, twelve miles away.

Fortunately for me, Milton T. Thompson, the American engineer in charge of construction work on the dam, sent his car for me and arranged to put me up at the company hotel where the four Newport News turbine erector experts are quartered. They put clean sheets and pillow cases on the bed in the presence of the incoming guest so he will see they have not been used before. Hot water comes in a glass, but the bed was comfortable and there was plenty of tea and an amazing omelette made with spaghetti for breakfast.

The American engineers are lodged in comfortable houses after having passed their first winter here in a "hotel" where they had to wear boots and overcoats indoors. They shoot a little golf on Sundays in a field at one end of town, to the immense chagrin and astonishment of the local populace.

My train was two and a half hours late when I left Zaparajnie, so I stood in the bitter cold of the April dawn on the station platform. The waiting rooms smelled too strong from the throng of unwashed which inhabited them.

Another $3 Bill Turns Up

H. F. Chapman of 154 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, Ill., with $3 bank note, dated June 15, 1837, issued by the Bank of Ypsilanti, Mich., and signed by T. Treadwell, president of the bank. This bill is more than four years older than one found in Cincinnati and hailed as being the only $3 the United States treasury department could find.

Date Way Back

Two Chicagoans yesterday said that each had in his possession a $3 bank note. Their announcement followed the appearance of a dispatch from Cincinnati in yesterday's TRIBUNE that the "world's only $3 bank note" had been discovered in the possession of Clem Ivey of that city. The bill was issued in 1841 by a Lebanon, O., bank.

Horace F. Chapman of 154 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, said that two weeks ago in looking through papers which had been in his family for many years he came across a $3 bill dated June 15, 1837. It was issued by the Bank of Ypsilanti under the authority of the state of Michigan. It was printed on one side only, and was of paper of fine texture. Pictures of Franklin and Washington were engraved on it. Its number was 5320, of series A.

Max Schwartz, 5039 North Troy street, said that 27 years ago he was given a $3 bill by an 86 year old civil war veteran in a Milwaukee institution. The bill was issued by the Hartford Charter Oak bank of Hartford, Conn., and was decorated by engravings of oak trees. It was No. 858, series A, and was dated September, 1862. It also was printed on one side, on fine cream colored paper.

Indiana Retaliates on Georgia in License War

Indianapolis, Ind., May 15.—(AP)—Georgia officials were notified today by Frank Mayr Jr., Indiana secretary of state, that trucks bearing Georgia licenses and operating in Indiana will be impounded until license plates of this state are purchased. Secretary Mayr said this action was taken in retaliation for the impounding of a truck in Georgia which bore an Indiana license.

STAGE WILL PAY BELASCO TRIBUTE ON TOMORROW

Actors of World to Attend Rites.

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—David Belasco, the white haired genius of the stage, will receive his final homage from his fellow workers in the theater on Sunday, when actors, producers and dramatists from all parts of the country will attend the funeral services.

The great ones of the world of illusion today acknowledged that Mr. Belasco, producer of 400 plays and maker of many stars, was the greatest of them all. Nor did the tributes comes from the theater alone.

In his seventy-six years Mr. Belasco made many friends on the other side of the footlights and they saw in his death the passing of a striking figure in American life.

Praised by Walker.

Mr. Belasco will be buried in the mausoleum in Linden Hills cemetery, Brooklyn, beside the bodies of his wife and a daughter, Mrs. William Elliott.

Among those who praised Mr. Belasco's accomplishments when word was received of his death yesterday were Lee Shubert, George M. Cohan, Florenz Ziegfield, William Brady, and John Golden.

Mayor James J. Walker said that he had suffered a great personal shock and New York City an irreparable loss in Mr. Belasco's death.

MOURNED BY ARLISS.

Bound for a British holiday but saddened over the loss of his friend, David Belasco, playwright, who died this week, George Arliss, veteran character actor, passed through Chicago, yesterday from Hollywood.

"It is a joy to speak of Belasco's devotion to the stage, his achievements in its behalf, and the influence his work is destined to have upon its future," Mr. Arliss said. "To speak of his passing is another matter and one which makes me sad. I met him when I first appeared under his direction in "The Darling of the Gods." As a director he was more than a genius. He was a miracle."

Mr. Arliss said he expected to return to America in October.

HUNT EX-BARBER FOR $5,000,000 BRITISH SWINDLE

Raid Gold Coast Home of Jake Factor.

Factor was ready for operations in September, 1927, when, with a flourish, he sent notices to the financial editors of the London dailies announcing the establishment of the brokerage firm of Tyler, Wilson & Co. Tyler and Wilson, it appears, were mythical characters and an operator passing under the name of Alexander Bowles was in charge.

The brokerage house was one month old when a new business journal, the Financial Recorder, made its bow in Threadneedle street, the Wall street of London. The editor was listed as Joseph Davis, a journalist who, it developed, was none less than Jake the Barber.

Give "Financial" Advice.

Clergymen, physicians, pensioned widows, and other persons of financial inexperience began to receive copies without solicitation, nor was any one asked to pay a cash subscription. The Recorder's circulation was free.

All the editors expected of the readers was a thorough examination of each issue. In those issues appeared articles analyzing the condition of Hecla Mines Consolidated, Allied Estates, British Associated Oil. These stocks were fraudulent issues sponsored by the new brokers, Tyler, Wilson & Co.

In the London Times Factor's operations were described as "a most amazing swindle, in which maiden ladies lost from $5,000 to $200,000." The case of the Rev. Arthur Travis Faber, rector of a church at Hurworth-on-Tees, Durham, was cited as a case in point, the clergyman and his wife, Millicent, having won a civil suit for $55,000 against the promoters.

Stock certificates for Allied Mines, Ltd., were run off a press. The Rev. Mr. Faber received from Tyler, Wilson & Co. a communication explaining a three month investment plan which, the brokers assured him, "would greatly increase his capital without risk."

How It Was Worked.

The minister produced $5,000, according to evidence in the civil suit. The brokers quickly paid him an astonishing profit. "Would he care to make larger investments—perhaps in that amazing bargain, Allied Mines?" The Rev. Mr. Faber was hesitant.

The Financial Recorder was consulted. It called Allied Mines a splendid investment. Subsequent issues gave glowing accounts of the stock.

At last, according to the court testimony, the clergyman succumbed. At the suggestion of a "Mr. Green," whom the clergyman met accidentally, he raised $55,000 by borrowing and invested the lump in Allied Mines. The suit followed, and, although the Rev. Mr. Faber won a judgment, there is no record of his having collected.

According to London dispatches last night the swindlers, by such methods, got $1,700,000 from the sale of shares of British Allied Estates, $500,000 from Associated Oil, and $150,000 from Allied Mines.

Traveled Often to U. S.

The British police reported that Factor periodically traveled to and from America through Canada on a passport issued at Ottawa, where he claimed to be a British subject. He previously worked his stock promotions through a small weekly financial periodical. When publication of this was stopped through court action Factor continued his schemes through a similar weekly.

He is said to have maintained a well organized staff of spellbinders who toured the country districts selling worthless shares in various companies to clergymen, doctors, elderly women and country tradesmen.

Rise of Jake Factor.

Fifteen years ago Jake Factor ran a three chair barber shop at the corner of 12th and Halsted streets, where customers could get a hair cut for 15 cents and a shave for ten, unless Jake didn't persuade to "have something on the hair" at so much extra for his best tonic. Barbering he found to be slim pickings for his persuasive powers, however, and he directed his attention to the promotion of oil lands in Montana, Wyoming and Arkansas and to Florida real estate.

During the Florida boom he was reported to have sold more than $5,000,000 worth of land. Criminal action developed out of these deals when some of his customers discovered that their land was several feet below water and Factor was named in indictments concerning deals involving more than $1,000,000.

When the indictments were issued he disappeared, showing up again in London as a wealthy stock manipulator, and it was reported that he added another $3,000,000 to his fortune in a short time. Chicago police last night related a story of how Factor, fleeing from government agents, appealed to Jack ["Legs"] Diamond, the New York gangster, and secured a "stake" to go to England and find new fields to conquer.

Two years ago Factor was mentioned in dispatches from Cannes as a young Londoner and a member of the Greek syndicate said to control the banks of Monte Carlo, Cannes, Deauville, and Le Tourquet.

Only last September dispatches from Le Tourquet described how the prince of Wales, finding that he was losing consistently in a game of chemin de fer, inquired the identity of the banker and upon learning that it was "Jake the Barber" played out his last stack of chips and quit the table.

18 PASSENGERS ALOFT IN BURNING PLANE ARE LANDED SAFELY

Aberdeen, Md., May 15.—(AP)—Eighteen passengers aboard a Richmond- New York air mail plane of the Eastern Air Transport were frightened, but escaped injury, late today, as the plane, smoke issuing from the cabin, made a forced landing here.

For five miles one of the two pilots fought flames with a fire extinguisher and as the plane, a Curtiss Condar, landed on the field of Edgewood arsenal, the lower left wing caught fire.

Soldiers helped the passengers to get out quickly and extinguished the flames. Eight of the passengers and the air mail was taken to New York by another plane of the line. The other passengers planned to complete their journey by train.

Both pilots, E. C. Kondat and G. J. MacDonald, said they were puzzled about the origin of the fire. Neither of the two motors was affected.

MICHIGAN PLANS TO TAKE PART IN CHICAGO'S FAIR

Lansing, Mich., May 15.—[Special.]—Participation of Michigan in the Century of Progress Exposition in 1933 was assured today when the house passed and gave immediate effect to a senate bill authorzing appointment of a special commission appropriation of $40,000 to purchase exhibition space and defray the commission expenses.

The bill now goes to Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker for his signature, and its approval is predicted. The commission created would be made up of four persons to be named by the governor with himself as ex-officio chairman.

The commission is, under the bill's terms, empowered to lease a building or parts of buildings and to provide for exhibition there of Michigan products and displays emphasizing the state's resources. It is provided that at least 5,000 square feet shall be leased in the state's building.

James Quigley Identified as Slayer of Fitzgerald

James L. Quigley, 8004 South Marshfield avenue, reputed member of Edward [Spike] O'Donnell's south side beer running gang, and who has been the target of bullets several times recently, was identified early this morning as the slayer of Edward Fitzgerald, 7856 South Union avenue, gangster and pal of Frank McErlane, on April 21. Fitzgerald was shot to death in front of Edward Neylon's saloon, 7358 South Peoria street. The identification was made by Albert Swanson, 7221 Aberdeen street, who picked Quigley out of a long line of prisoners at the police showup.

This Reveals How Americans Attain Heights

At Least as Far as Famed Montparnasse.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

MY favorite new literary story came in a letter from Clara Laughlin, author of the "So You're Going" series, written on the boat as she sailed for Italy. Her latest book is "So You're Going to Spain."

SISLEY HUDDLESTON. [Drawn by Stella Bowes.]

"Just before the Spanish elections," she wrote me, "I had sent King Alfonso a very gorgeous, specially bound copy of 'So You're Going to Spain.' The day I sailed I had a note from Roger Scaife [one of her publishers], who said: 'Seems to me what we should have sent was "So You're Going to Paris."'"

If you, too, are going to Paris, although impelled by another reason than the late Spanish king's, there is a delightful book called "Back to Montparnasse," by Sisley Huddleston [Lippincott], which ought to give you many hours of joy. If you aren't going, here is a grand, vicarious trip.

Mr. Huddleston has writen before about Parisian Bohemian life in "Paris Salons, Cafés, Studios, etc." "Back to Montparnasse" brings the story up to date; that is, there are included in it all of the affairs of the Quarter for the last two or three years, besides countless tales of other days, and a general sort of chatty essence of the spirit of the place where the world, at some time or other, meets the rest of the world. The Café de la Paix has always been held to be that spot. Mr. Huddleston leaves you with the feeling that it is Montparnasse instead.

Montparnasse is to be a trans-Atlantic terminus. Travelers right off the boat train soon will be able to step into the very midst of bohemian Paris. "Montparnasse may properly be regarded as the forty-ninth state," says Mr. Huddleston. "It is a state which includes all the other forty-eight states of the United States. Here is the microcosm of America. Year after year Montparnasse attracts more and more Americans. In the mornings—though they are late mornings—you shall see them publicly eating grapefruit and grapenuts on the café terraces. You shall hear them talking publicly. In the afternoons they bring up their reinforcements, and in the evenings they are as surely as numerous as the army of Gen. Pershing."

The pretense of their stopping on the right bank is now dropped. "Trans-Atlantic visitors," he says, "will take the train, frankly and inluctably, not for Paris but for Montparnasse. . . . By this decision, which confirms already existing facts, Montparnasse receives its official consecration."

Strangely enough, with Montparnasse so populated by Americans, according to the author, he writes less about them than about any one else, although he mentions a lot of American names in passing. Although the Sorbonne has "probably honored more Americans than Englishmen in the last few years," and although "the newspapers welcome American visitors of any note whatsoever, yet it is seldom that an American writer has really a French public." "That is the more surprising in that France, and especially Montparnasse," he continues, "may almost be considered the birthplace of post-war American literature. A whole school of American writers has sprung up in this foreign soil. One need only cite the example of Ernest Hemingway, who is the outstanding product of the Quarter. . . . Yet I can think of not more than three or four living American authors who have achieved any notable success in France."

He names Gertrude Atherton, Anita Loos, and Upton Sinclair, and then says: "But the only American who has made a lasting impression on the public at large is Sinclair Lewis."

And of his work: "This must be said, that Babbitt is a character which is almost as familiar to the French as to the English. I doubt whether the rest of his work is known, but Babbitt has taken its place in the French vocabulary. The Frenchman in the street will understand you if you describe somebody as Babbitt. . . . So the French were pleased rather than puzzled that Sinclair Lewis . . . should be the first American recipient of the Nobel prize."

German literature is much better known in France than English, Mr. Huddleston says, and of all the younger writers Aldous Huxley "is hailed as the greatest English author. I am sure that no English book since the war has received so much attention and has been so lauded as 'Point Counterpoint'. It struck the French as original, illuminating, intensely artistic."

The whole book is a-bristle with literary personalities whom the author has known, and literary personalities in their effect upon French audiences—Wells, Shaw, Kipling, Galsworthy, countless others. Artists crowd its pages, too. And the gossip of the Quarter. And the word battles which have torn it asunder. And the short-lived magazines and reviews which have been its focal spiritual points. And the cafés which have been its physical ones. Mr. Huddleston without any special flourishes about calling all aboard for Montparnasse actually does transport his readers there. "Back to Montparnasse" is gay, and amusing, and delightful, and fuller of facts than a guidebook.

HARRIET MONROE'S POETRY COLLECTION GIVEN TO U. OF CHICAGO

The chief collection of material on contemporary American poetry yesterday became the property of the University of Chicago through a gift by Miss Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry—a Magazine of Verse.

That magazine, founded by Miss Monroe and edited by her since 1912, was the first vehicle for most of the well known contemporary poets. Her collection, given to the university, includes manuscripts of the poems published in Poetry, a large volume of correspondence with American and foreign poets, almost 1,500 volumes of recent poetry, practically all first editions, many inscribed by the authors.

Much of the material long has been sought by collectors. Inasmuch as Poetry magazine has existed largely through a subsidy provided in most part by Chicagoans, Miss Monroe believed the collection should remain in the city, preferably at the University of Chicago, because of work on American literature done there.

A friend of the University of Chicago has provided money, the income from which is to be used toward the support of Poetry as long as Miss Monroe continues as its editor. Thereafter the income from the fund is to be applied toward maintaining what shall be known as the "Harriet Monroe Collection of Modern Poetry." The only other similar collection of comparable rank is the Harris collection at Brown university, which lacks manuscripts and correspondence material such as found in the Monroe collection.

"Liaison 1914" Tells Marne Battle Secrets

BY WILLIAM N. HUGHES JR.

It gives a clear conception of the events leading up to and the details of one of the sixteen decisive battles of the world—the battle of the Marne.

"Liaison?" What is it? Why make it conspicuous by naming a book for it? It is that intimate contact between the right and left elements of a military unit in battle — horizontal liaison. It is also that intimate contact between higher and lower units—vertical liaison. Both are established and maintained by the links of liaison—junior staff officers—visiting and reporting on units direct to commanders without going through military channels. To do so they were free lancers going everywhere.

BRIG. GEN. SPEARS

They were human contacts with eyes, ears, and tongues to see, hear, and report all with rare judgment and discernment. The author, Gen. Spears, then a lieutenant of the 11th Hussars, was well qualified and situated to tell the story. It is liaison itself speaking—the liaison officer between 5th French army on the extreme left of the French line and the British army, still farther left on the flank of the French.

The narrative is limited to the period July 27, 1914, to Sept. 14, 1914—a most important period of the war—and is a series of events replete with surprises which could not be forecast from one day to another—barely from one hour to another. The transitions are rapid and are pressed into three months—months that seemed years to the weary armies inexperienced in war. We shall review them in the order in which they occurred and as viewed by "Liaison."

The mobilization of the French army was orderly and precise. It was based on the assumption that the Germans would attack in force on the right of the French army, which extended from Switzerland on the right almost to the Sambre river on the left, and that the French would take the offensive immediately while the Germans' strength was diminished from holding the Russians on their frontier—a bad guess. The German mobilization was equally effective and their plan of sweeping through Belgium by a wide turning movement was boldly and rapidly executed which resulted in their falling on the French left flank and causing the French with the British, then barely in position on the left of the French, continually to retreat to avoid Von Kluck's German army outflanking both of them and cutting them off in the rear. Further the Germans held the Russian front weakly, knowing Russian slowness of mobilization and lack of initiative in attack, and thrust with increased strength against the French left.

Days were lost by the French in not anticipating the German plans. They were loath to believe that their intelligence service reported as to the Germans' movements. Ruin was certainly in sight and it was almost too late when the French strengthened their left flank. In addition, though liaison was there and in spite of all efforts of the diplomatic author functioning to perfection, Gen. Lanrezac commanding the 5th French army and Field Marshal Sir John French, commanding the British army, were racially, temperamentally, and personally suspicious and distrustful of each other and would not coöperate, continually refusing to do so, or neglecting to protect each other's flanks. The armies paid the penalty and retreat was inevitable.

After the battle of Charleroi by the French and the battle of the Mons by the British, retreat was in full swing.

Suddenly the French turned upon the Germans and struck a swift blow at the battle of Guise which delayed Von Kluck's army a whole day before it could take up the pursuit again. Then the French and British retired slowly to the Oise—the Aisne—and more rapidly behind the Marne. Von Kluck here lost contact with the flank of the allied army, changed direction from south to southeast, failed to discover the 6th French army, now on the left of the British army, crossed the Marne and walked into the trap Joffre had led him into with the 6th army north and east of Paris on Von Kluck's flank, the British army between the 6th and 5th French armies, and the other French armies extending in a bow far to the south and east. The 6th French army attacked eastward, the 5th French army northward, the British army drove home their blows and Von Kluck was thrown back across the Marne where the Germans took up a position that was not to be materially changed in four years. The retreat was ended, the French and British armies as well as Paris were saved. The war of motion was turned into trench warfare. A stalemate existed until the Americans gave a superiority in morale, numbers, and offensive which enabled the allied armies finally to drive the Germans to peace terms.

No doubt one of the elements that contributed to the winning of the battle of the Marne was that liaison finally was successfully and completely established between the French and British armies—but not until Gen. Lanrezac was replaced in command of the 5th French army by Gen. Franchet d'Esperey and pressure was brought on Sir John French, through diplomatic channels instigated by Joffre, resulting in a visit to Sir John by Lord Kitchener from London. Then and only then, just prior to the battle of the Marne, did the 5th army French commander and the British commander respond to liaison and work in harmony and coöperation. Liaison was vindicated. It was proved to be a powerful instrument of war if rightly used.

Viewing the whole story leads to a belief that with all the miscalculations and unforeseen elements entering into a war no matter how human beings plan—the gods in the end dispose—the victory of the Marne was a miracle. The human element and the elements of chance entering into, preceding and following a battle with all its tragedy, suffering, and misery—the gambling with human lives—make it a great and terrible adventure.

What could be more terrifying than the conditions existing in the retreat? For days and nights weary in mind, body, and soul—to the point of exhaustion—thirsty, hungry, and cheerless—sleepless and nerveless—sodden human beings—soldiers of France and England—plodded on and on miles after miles in daylight and darkness, losing their transport, their supplies, their ammunition, their food, their equipment, clothing, and shoes and, those physically unfit, their lives, or themselves as prisoners to the Germans.

The Germans, finding all this evidence of rout, began to believe there was no fight left in them and soon the two armies would surrender. Suddenly behind the Marne they turn in their tracks and launch such a terrific attack that the Germans are driven miles across the Marne and abandoning the attack settle down to grim defensive.

The story is a vivid description enhanced with anecdotes and replete with human stories of comedy, pathos, and tragedy.

There are thirty pages of illustrations including pictures of the prominent generals. A story is told in itself in each of the photographs.

The text is amplified with thirty-eight appendices and an excellent index. There are two sketches and fourteen maps which were cleverly made by Lieut. Col. Sir Morgan Crofton. The movements and positions of the armies can be followed day by day by the maps alone. The text itself is clear without maps except a general map of France. The maps and text together convey a story simple to understand—a combination bringing joy to the reader. The book as a whole is almost perfect from the viewpoint of the professional soldier or historian as well as a very interesting book to the average reader—particularly so to those who desire to know just how a war and battles are conducted.

Gen. Spears, from training and experience, is a critical observer, a grasping listener, and an accurate narrator—one of the thousands of liaison of the world war—and one of the best. He is a very candid Britisher who minces no words, advances no theories, but tells the facts as he has heard and seen them.

The reader must judge for himself whether "Liaison, 1914" is the best story—I am confident he will admit it is one of the clearest and most readable—of the world war.

PROFESSOR GETS 4 YEAR TERM FOR $315,000 FRAUD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 15.—Sentence of four years was passed today on Brynar James Owen, an engineer and former Oxford professor, for fraudently obtaining $150,000 from the International Harvester Company of Great Britain, and $165,000 from the Ford Motor company, Ltd., Ford's English branch.

Owen pleaded guilty to forging letters, representing that the government would give these two companies large contracts for tractors, provided the companies would advance money for initial expenses. The companies made out checks to the Institute of Agricultural Engineering at Oxford, of which Owen was then director. He transferred $215,000 to his own account. He held his post at the university until in March, when he was arrested.

A physician testified that Owen had been wounded in the head during the war and that his mind had been affected.

Maddox Gets 4th Delay on Charge of Vagrancy

Vagrancy charges against Claude Maddox, one of the underworld leaders named in the warrants issued by Judge Lyle last winter, were continued for the fourth time yesterday by Judge Justin F. McCarthy in the South State Street court. The case was reset for June 5. Judge McCarthy is sitting in place of Judge Francis Borrelli and explained that he had continued the case so that Judge Borrelli would retain jurisdiction.

Frank Foster Is Given Delay on Lingle Charge

The trial of Frank Foster, a gangster indicted for murder on evidence that he was involved in the killing of Alfred Lingle, was continued yesterday by Judge Hary Fisher in Criminal court. The state requested the continuance due to the absence of Attorney Charles S. Rathbun, special assistant state's attorney, who prosecuted the Lingle murder investigation. Foster is alleged to have purchased the pistol used by the murderer.

FARM HAND FOUND DEAD.

John McCallester, 40 years old, a farm hand, was found dead yesterday morning on the farm of Michael Conway, four miles west of Orland. It was believed that he died of a stroke of apoplexy.

8 HOUR DAY FOR PRISON GUARDS; NEW INDUSTRIES

Legislative Committee Makes Inspection.

Joliet, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—An eight hour day for prison guards, installation of new industries, and changes in the methods of solitary confinement may be recommended to the legislature when a committee from the house of representatives makes its report on conditions at the penal institution.

A committee from the house of representatives, headed by State Representative Harry McCaskrin of Rock Island, Gordon Childers, P. J. Breen, M. F. Bray, and Robert Whitley, inspected the prisons here today.

"We found conditions greatly improved since the riots," Mr. McCaskrin said. "The men employed in the prison should be on an eight hour day, and additional industries are needed to keep the convicts busy," he added.

Opposed to Handcuffing.

Mr. McCaskrin has introduced a bill which would prohibit prison officials from handcuffing men to bars in solitary cells. Other members of the committee, including Representatives Childers and Bray, are known to be opposed to the practice of handcuffing convicts to their cell doors.

The committee inspected all of the cellhouses at Stateville and visited the honor farm.

Find Food Satisfactory.

At the new prison a visit was made to cellhouses, kitchen, barber shop, dining hall and hospital. The food served the men at the noonday meal was carefully inspected and met with satisfaction. "The men appear to be in much better spirits than they were during our investigation of the riot," Mr. McCaskrin said. "We found everything in orderly condition and as clean as possible. Many new buildings are required if the state is to properly house these men, and these questions will be taken up when the appropriation bill is passed."

Mr. McCaskrin said that he did not know when the prison riot committee would make its report. There was no disorder of any kind during the tour of inspection.

Springfield, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson today signed eleven bills which have passed both houses of the assembly. Included are four department budgets and a $50,000 appropriation for a University of Illinois agricultural experimental station in Cook county.

State Treasurer Barrett has the largest budget signed today, an appropriation of $22,015,549 for office expenses and for the payment of interest on and retirement of bonds issued by the state for the biennium ending July 1, 1933.

Attorney General Carlstrom draws the next largest sum, being granted $854,800 for ordinary and contingent expenses for the biennium. John G. Millhouse, director of the department of mines and minerals, has a budget of $369,390 for the said period. Superintendent of Public Instruction Blair gets $239,020.

Representative Anna Wilmarth Ickes [Rep., Hubbard Woods], is the sponsor of the University of Illinois bill. It provides $30,000 for the erection of buildings and maintaining an experimental station in Cook county for the College of Agriculture.

Another bill approved by the governor is one to grant an extra secretary to Judge Frederic R. De Young of Chicago, justice of the Illinois supreme court. When this measure passed the house it was brought out that Justice De Young has been attending to a mountain of work and attention has since been called to the fact that two members of the court have been partially incapacitated through ill health at various periods in recent years.

ALIMONY BATTLE GOES TO COURT AS TRUCE FAILS

The alimony troubles of Salem E. Munyer, 43 years old, a wealthy New York importer, were assigned to Superior Judge Desort for a hearing yesterday after efforts to settle the case out of court had failed. Munyer, who owes his former wife, Mrs. Wadia Munyer of Oak Park, about $2,000 in back alimony, was arrested a few days ago by a deputy sheriff.

Since his arrest Munyer has remained in the Stevens hotel under guard and he will stay there, it was agreed yesterday, until his case is heard, probably next Monday.

In 1924 Munyer sued for an annulment of his marriage, alleging that as his wife was his first cousin it was illegal. Mrs. Munyer, however, was granted a divorce and alimony of $175 a month in 1928.

THE STORE FOR MEN

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

Men who know and want good clothes . . . and yet who do not wish to spend more than . . .

$37.50 $43.50 $50

MODERATELY PRICED SUIT SECTION

To such men we call attention to our new Moderately Priced Suit Section on the third floor. At $37.50 we are offering a suit which—judged by all the standards of recent years—is worth a great deal more.

This same fact holds true for our $43.50 and $50 suits . . . they're sterling values—in fact, they're such excellent "buys" that the opening of this new suit section went hand-in-hand with the beginning of our Price-Decennial. These suits are certainly our best values, quality for quality, in more than ten years.

Many men have already taken advantage of these three low prices. If $37.50, $43.50 or $50 is what you desire to pay for a suit we welcome you to the

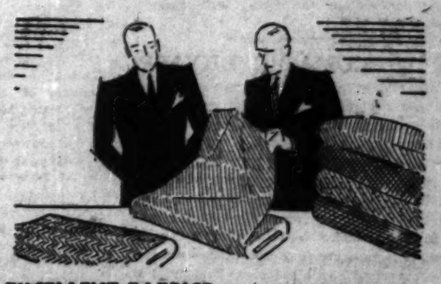
THIRD FLOOR

TWO TROUSERS . . . every suit has two pairs of trousers. Generously cut, well-tailored and a real economy feature, particularly for men who sit at a desk or slide in and out of a car every day. Keep the extra pair pressed for emergency wear.

CELANESE TRIMMED . . . is a phrase that we have emphasized quite strongly this season. You'll see the reason when you note the luxurious lining in these suits and you'll be pleased with the "feel" as you slip in and out of the coat.

TAILORED TO OUR OWN SPECIFICATIONS . . . means considerable, for Field's specifications are known to be probably the most stringent in the clothing world. Pre-shrunk linen fronts, plenty of material in the vest, hand-work where hand-work counts . . . and a dozen other little things



EXCELLENT FABRICS . . . in many cases, exclusive with us in Chicago. An important feature, for it prevents you from meeting yourself walking down the street. The fabrics in themselves are fine, sturdy, good-looking pieces of wearable woolens the like of which would usually go into higher priced garments.

No matter whether you're looking for finest clothing made or suits of more medium price—or even extremely moderately priced garments—you'll find exactly what you have in mind at the price you wish to pay at The Store for Men

RAILROAD NEEDS.

Whatever railroad management may think of Senator Fletcher's line of argument in opposition to increased railroad rates and his suggestion that the competition complained of should be met by reduced rates, there is a phase of the incident that deserves the management's attention apart from the point he has raised.

The railroads must expect opposition to almost any proposal they make while railroad ownership is largely foreign to regions they serve. There is an inevitable conflict as to railroad policy wherever railroads run through one part of the country while they are principally owned in another. It ought therefore to be one of the fundamental policies of the railroads to reduce absentee ownership to a minimum by a persistent effort to increase local ownership of stock and wherever possible to move it into the territory served. With wealth largely concentrated in the east it has been natural that ownership of the great systems, and therefore their control, should be in the east, but this is a condition which need not and ought not to be perpetuated. Wealth has grown in the west and investment in all the western utilities should be aggressively fostered in the west. The wise principle of consumer ownership should be actively extended by the railroads. They will find it will liquidate a good many of their vexations and difficulties. It will greatly assist them to obtain a fair hearing for their policies and a readier relief for their legitimate needs. Absentee ownership and control are resented and inevitably subject to suspicion and prejudice. Also they are likely to be self-centered, tactless, and neglectful of the public aspects of policy.

In regard to Senator Fletcher's remarks, however, we think they deserve very serious consideration. The railroads, as we have recently pointed out, are selling a commodity, transportation, under conditions of increasing competition and reduced demand. We may recognize the claims of invested capital for a fair return, but in the sale of other commodities we know of no case in which competition is successfully met or demand increased by raising the price of the commodity. If the railroads had a monopoly control of transportation revenue might be automatically increased as to necessary traffic by raising rates upon it. But the railroads are not in this position. They are now competing with transport agencies giving cheaper and in some cases more efficient service, and we can hardly believe that an increase in their own charges will bring them more revenue except where competition cannot be developed. In long through hauls of freight or passengers this may be brought about. But we suspect that more is to be gained for the railroads by a thorough canvassing of the possibilities of increased traffic and revenue through lower rates and improved facilities.

The railroads are still and are likely to remain the backbone or mainstay of the transportation system of the United States. For this reason and because of the vast sum of capital invested in them, their prosperity and progress are important elements in the progress and prosperity of the country. Public policy and government regulation should therefore be more favorable and helpful to them than they are or have been. But railroad management we think has been slow in recognising changed conditions and would be the better for getting rid of some of its traditional assumptions and policies and for more resourcefulness in policy.

THE DIPLOMATIC LIQUOR.

The department of state announces that the inquiry into the raid upon the liquor stores of the Salvador legation has been completed and that no further steps will be taken. The incident evidently is adjusted diplomatically. The Washington police department announces that all diplomatic liquor may be regarded as covered adequately by the ordinary protections of the capital. Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, Salvador charge d'affaires, is rebounding from the injuries received when he surprised the highjackers and tried to capture them. Washington thus returns to normal, although it is reported that the various diplomats are looking to their locks with greater care.

The episode had its embarrassments. It carried with it a most delicate affair of state, the injury of a foreign representative in the capital to which he was accredited, theoretically an act of violence committed on the person of a sovereign. It also called the attention of the professional drys again to the fact that the United States officially allows the use of intoxicating beverages in the city which votes and administers the dry laws. That has been sand in the butter for the prohibitionists. Still further, it suggested that the richest stores of the best liquor in the country could be taken.

The highjackers and rummers, however, must be credited with a certain amount of proper feeling. They have had respect for the diplomatic relations of the United States. Only in this instance have they violated the sacred seal of foreign sovereignty in Washington, although if these stores of liquor were undiplomatic the takers would dig through concrete and steel to get them. The operators not only concede a point to the importance of international relations, but they recognize that the embassies are the best drinking places the congressmen have. The Volstead act must be supported if contraband trade is to exist and have profits. It is only decent reciprocity to keep hands off the congressional supply, however great the temptation might be to lift it.

THE NATION IN WARTIME.

There has been much irresponsible talk about drafting wealth and industry in war. The motive of these proposals has been commendable—namely: the equalization of burdens and sacrifices in war effort—but it has been unrestrained by practical sense. The views expressed the other day by several military authorities in a hearing before the commission on war plans offer a refreshing contrast.

It was first explained that industrial preparation for war conditions does not imply that all war supply industries are to be turned over to military control, and that the drafting of capital and labor, the fixing of prices, the operation of the railroads by the government, and soldier management of business and manufactures are not contemplated. These are half baked proposals which take no account of the requirements of efficient mobilization and would insure a national disaster. It may satisfy the emotions to demand that all profit shall be taken out of war, but if this could be effected it would deprive the nation of its efficiency and productive energy at the very moment when they are most needed. The practical alternative is not exorbitant profit, but wisely regulated profit. Our whole economic machinery has profit as its mainspring. To remove the mainspring and substitute force would be to smash our whole system in the hour when its utmost effort is vital to national defense. Proper safeguards against profiteering can be devised without depriving industry of its maintenance.

The turning over of all the industries and services essential to supply, under the abnormal conditions of national mobilization, to military control would be another fatal mistake, insuring confusion and the slowing down of the whole machinery of production. Such a policy is also disavowed by the military authorities. Assistant Secretary of War Payne states the sound principles to be followed. "War department operation," he said, "with respect to supply in war, would be limited to the design of equipment, and to the contracting for, inspecting, paying for, and distributing items needed. Industrial control in its larger sense can be no part of war department responsibility. Whatever governmental control is exercised over industry in war must be a function of the chief executive, in accord with the wishes of congress, and through the organization I have indicated. Unless plans for industrial mobilization reflect substantially the current opinion of congress, the President, and of industry, labor, and finance, they would be cast aside when an emergency arose. They cannot be the product of a cloistered body; they must represent the composite thought of national leaders."

The overshadowing consideration in wartime is the most efficient functioning of all the agencies of supply and military effort. This in cold reality is more important than justice to any individual or class, than rebuking the profiteer, or "taking the profit out of war." The sense of individual injustice should not obscure this, and any measure or system of wartime organization which compromises the efficiency or power of the nation is a mischievous delusion, by which veterans especially should not permit themselves to be deceived. Profiteering is morally detestable and should be sternly repressed. So far as practicable the sacrifices and burdens imposed by war conditions should be equalized, though a soldier, above all other men, ought to realize that they can never be. No sacrifice of money can balance the sacrifice of life. No duty at home can balance the sacrifices unavoidably imposed upon the fighting men. What the soldier needs above all else is the best supply, the best equipment, the best training and leadership obtainable, and measures which deprive him of these, though they have the highest motive, are his enemies, not his friends.

The problem of organizing and directing the powers of a nation in wartime is of the greatest complexity and difficulty. But it is a problem of power, not of theoretical justice, however lofty the ideal. There was an earnest effort by Woodrow Wilson and our government during the late war to spread duties equitably, to limit profits, to impose upon wealth as large a share as practicable of the financial burdens. This effort fell short of the ideal. It always will. But it will be more effective if we are again called upon to mobilize if it is sensibly studied and its real lessons learned. The emotional demands and impracticable proposals of which we have heard so much since the war are counsels of confusion and national weakness.

In the old song which Mr. Taft, when President and afterward, always insisted that Maj. Alfred Stofer sing at Gridiron dinners in Washington, the generic statement is made that "the hambone am good." Which hambone is not specified in the "Watermillion Song," which deals with the superior succulence of that delicious gourd over bacon, chicken, yams, and ham. But the Wayside inn at Fort Worth has issued a leaflet extolling its "left ham" sandwiches and explaining why that particular hindquarter of a hog is the better. Prof. Alexander of Teachers college, Columbia university, has sent in a copy.

Ever since hogs and acorns got together in the Virginia colony it has been Afro-American folklore, warmly subscribed to by the white population, that the sweetest of all meat is "the left ham of a rootin' razorback hog." Few troubled to inquire the reason and the explanation has long been lacking. The Wayside inn, however, which uses only the left hindquarter for its 20 cent baked ham sandwiches, has this to say:

"When a hog scratches his starboard, or right, side he does a Charleston with his right foot. That develops muscles. When he scratches his left flank he does a gentle shimmy against a tree or post. Therefore, right hams are far more muscular and less tender. * * * One way to prove this is to watch hogs on the hoof."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WE LOOK OVER OUR COIN COLLECTION.

A man over in Ohio has bobbed up with a three dollar bill for which the government has offered him a thousand per cent profit. The bill was issued in 1841 by a bank in Lebanon, O., and under authority of the state of Ohio. It was dated June 21, 1841, and is printed on only one side of the paper. The man who owns the three dollar bill has declined the government's offer and expects that numismatists, you know, people who collect coins and moneys of all sorts, will pay him much more for the bill.

The generosity of the government in regard to this three dollar bill and the eagerness of numismatists to get hold of it set us looking our money over in the hope that the government would offer us a thousand per cent profit on it, or that the numismatists would do even better. Looking over all the money we have been able to get together we could not find any three dollars bills, so we're out of luck on that. But we found that we possessed a very rare five dollar bill; if you'd look through all the money in our collection you'd say that five dollar bill was rare. Our five dollar bill is better than the three dollar bill that the Ohio man has because his bill was issued away back in 1841 while ours is marked "series of 1928 A." It has the words "Federal Reserve Note" at the top and says that the United States will pay to the bearer of the bill five dollars on demand. We've never demanded that the United States pay us five dollars on that bill, but you know, and everybody knows, the U. S. would do it in a second if we asked 'em to.

Anyhow, this bill has a very fine engraving of President Lincoln in front and a picture of his monument in Washington on the back, and is autographed "A. W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury," which ought to add to its value. You know yourself what an autograph of Shakespeare is worth today, and an autograph by Andy Mellon ought to be worth fully as much some day, even if it isn't now.

Then looking at our collection some more we found we had a one dollar bill which was issued by the United States itself also in 1928; the government must have made lots of money that year. We can't find any marked 1930 or 1931, but we are still looking. The one dollar bill is likewise printed on both sides and has George Washington's picture on the face, but no art work on the back—just the words "One Dollar"—"ONE." It has the figure "1" printed in each corner on the face and six times on the back, so it's a one dollar bill all right. We would hardly expect the government to offer us a thousand per cent profit on this bill, but five hundred per cent would be all right.

We also have a silver coin in our collection which says "In God We Trust" on one side, with the head of a very cross looking woman in a night cap and the date "1850." On the other side is an eagle all spread out and the words "Half Dollar" at the bottom. We also have a two bit piece, or quarter, as it is also called, dated 1894. It says "In God We Trust," too, and has the picture of the cross woman with the spread-out eagle on the other side. Then we have a dime and a nickel. They neither one have "In God We Trust" on them; maybe it's because they're both plugged, but somebody passed them on us, the dirty bums, but we think we can work 'em off on a newsboy or a taxi chauffeur.

The government had better hurry if it wants to get these rare coins from us, as a lot of numismatists are after 'em strong. One of them is a numismatist for our grocery, another is a numismatist from the butcher's, and another collects coins for our tailor. But while they seem very eager to get hold of our money they'll only give us face value, and we'd rather let the government have it at what they offered for the three dollar bill the Ohio man's got. But here comes a numismatist from the landlord of our flat. Let's see what he'll give.

SONNET.

The roses wither and the roses blow;
Say what you will, we have no hour to lose;
The winds of spring are scattered long ago,
And summer walks the world with winged shoes.
O take me to your heart and feel again
The life that is and soon shall be no more!
I have loved song and loved the sunny plain,
And loved the gray sea clinging to the shore,
Yet of all things I loved you far the best;
Take what I yield you of the deeps of rest
Against the hour when bitterly you know
How heavy falls the earth upon his eyes
When love is ended and the lover dies.

DOROTHY KISSLING.

WE'VE GOT a new radio, and at first we thought something was wrong with it, for all we can get from the loud speaker is "hoot, hoot, hoot." But, recalling what we've heard in the past from the radio, maybe the new machine's right at that.

"THE POOL," says the W. G. N., in telling of the discovery of a hot water lake in the depths of the Carlsbad cavern in New Mexico, "contains water pure enough to drink. A party of six explorers went swimming in the pool." No, thank you, we don't seem to be thirsty.

"IT'S PERFECTLY true," says Earl Beauchamp in London, "that when in America I went to a speakeasy several times. I saw nothing wrong in it." There's not a thing wrong in it, Earl, if you don't happen to be there when there's a raid and your name gets in the papers. Nothing is wrong over here, Earl, unless you get caught at it, if you know what we mean.

THEY'RE OFF! Everybody who likes to pick up some easy money on a sure thing—and that takes in most of the human race—is going to put up good kale today on some dog running in the Kentucky Derby. Some will play one horse and some another, each sure he's to win. They're off! 'Way off. The horse that's going to cop the big money is—but why tell? Others would still think the dog they've picked out will win. They're off! The horses and the people who are betting. Except us. R. H. L.

SORES ON THE LEGS.

CHILDREN of school age are subject to sores located most frequently on the legs. If the ulcers are not seen as blisters or pustules large, heavy, thick scabs are there to point the way to what has gone before.

In older people the later evidence of this trouble is seen as deep scars. Many of these persist as pigmented areas. Some girls, addicted to thin, transparent stockings, have been embarrassed by these reminders of the hazards of childhood.

Physicians have a name for this trouble. It is impetigo. They go a step further and tell us it is due to staphylococcus; that it is contagious, and that wherever a number of children are gathered together, as within the walls of a school, impetigo is likely to prevail all the time and occasionally to assume the features of a small epidemic. Every school nurse is taught to treat simple cases of impetigo in children on the theory that if she does not, nobody will.

Dr. W. J. O'Donovan tells how he handles impetigo in schools on his side of the water. To prevent it from spreading in a school, the children must come from clean homes, clean houses, and wear clean clothing, on clean bodies.

Cleanliness is the essence of prevention. Children who have it should wear cotton underwear. They should not come in close contact with noninfected children. If possible, they should stay in rooms that are kept warm and at an even temperature. Where possible, the stockings and underwear should be changed daily, and they should be boiled after use. They are capable of spreading the contagion.

So are the heavy scabs. Prolonged soaking and use of wet dressings should be employed to get rid of the heavy scabs. These scabs should be destroyed, since they carry contagion. When it is available, the best treatment, once the scabs are off, is three or four doses of ultraviolet light given once daily and just strong enough to redden the skin.

On the contrary, exposure to X-rays does harm. When ultraviolet is not available the sores are cleaned up with peroxide and hot water, and applications of two per cent malachite green in 50 per cent alcohol are made.

Dr. O'Donovan says he has had no success with Besredka's staphylococcus antivirus. His experience differs from that of some in this country who use staphylococcus phage, and others who use staphylococcus antivirus locally.

MAY LEAVE THINGS ALONE.

A. C. J. writes: What causes a prolonged draining following an abdominal operation? I particularly refer to draining of gall bladder. The original incision has healed perfectly, but skin has broken about two inches below and discharge is usually clear as glycerin. Sometimes the fluid thickens and forms a pale, yellowish mucus. The patient suffers no pain and is able to work every day.

REPLY:

It is reasonably certain that in this case there is a biliary fistula. The discharge is bile. Such fistulas often follow operations on the gall bladder. As a rule, surgeons are not in a hurry to close them. It seems to be good judgment to leave things alone, for a time, at least.

Among causes of persisting fistulas, other than those from the gall bladder, are stones, dead bone, other foreign bodies, openings into organs or cavities, infections.

HEART SYMPTOMS.

Mrs. J. K. writes:

1. I would like to know the symptoms of degenerating heart.

2. Also, the symptoms of an infected heart.

3. Is there pain with either one?

REPLY.

1. This term is not in common use. My guess is that the reference is to failing compensation due to myocarditis or muscle degeneration. The symptoms of this are: Shortness of breath, asthma, rapid pulse, swelling of feet.

2. This term is not in common use. You may mean bacterial endocarditis. If so, the symptoms are: Rapid, weak pulse, heart murmurs, shortness of breath, emboli, bacteria in the blood.

3. There may be pain with either, especially the former. However, it is not usually present. Pain on exertion in myocarditis is not rare.

AVOID HEAVY MEALS.

R. H. L. writes: What foods should be avoided after the gall bladder has been removed?

REPLY.

One should drink no alcoholic beverages and eat no condiments. The meals should not be heavy nor rich. The amount of meat, eggs, fats, and greases should be limited.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

C. B. M. writes:

1. Will high blood pressure cause cancer?

2. A person with high blood pressure has pimples—face all broken out. Is the high pressure the cause?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No.

1. The statute specifies extreme and repeated cruelty for divorce and does not require any specified lapse of time.
2. Depends on the facts as to who originally owned it.

EXAMINATION DATE NOT SET.

Chicago, April 18.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise me when the next examinations will be held for position as janitress, high school matron, and bathroom attendants? E. L.

I am unable to advise just when the next examinations will be held for the positions of janitress, high school matron, and bathroom attendant. These examinations are open to all women over 21 years of age who are citizens of the United States and residents of the city of Chicago for a period of at least one year immediately preceding date of examination. We have placed the writer's name on our mailing list for notification of the next examinations called for these positions. J. S. OSBORNE, Secy.,

ANNULMENT GROUNDS.

Chicago, April 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am nearly 20 years of age and married to a girl of the same age. Is it possible for me to obtain an annulment of this marriage without the aid or consent of my father? There would be no contest. H. H.

The mere fact that the parties desire annulment is not sufficient. The law requires a showing that the marriage was invalid from its inception.

MAY 16, 1915.

LONDON.—The revolution which has been brewing in Portugal for six months reached a climax yesterday when rebels aboard the cruiser Adam Astor took over the warship and bombarded the city of Lisbon from the river Tagus. Many persons, including civilians and soldiers, were killed while the number wounded may reach into the hundreds. A Lisbon dispatch says the insurrection has been crushed. Another dispatch from Madrid says the president of Portugal, Manuel de Arriaga, is reported to have disappeared.

CHICAGO.—The Lusitania lies on the bottom of the ocean, but daily in the moving picture theaters she rouses herself, puts off from her slip, and goes down the watery aisle on her tragic last voyage. Thousands had seen the picture in Chicago, but it was not until two days ago that some one who knew Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Plamondon, who were among the victims, discovered them, caught by the camera as they were arriving in a taxicab at the docks in New York. The word was telephoned to the Plamondon family and the children went to the Virginia theater at 809 Madison street and saw their parents as the camera took them half an hour before they sailed to meet death together.

WASHINGTON.—War with Germany over the killing of Americans in the war zone is regarded by the administration as a possibility extremely remote. The confidence of administration officials that Germany will accede to the conditions laid down in the President's note is being strengthened hourly. The note stating the American position was delivered to the German foreign office this morning by Ambassador Gerard. An early reply is expected.

PARIS.—The capture of the villages of Carency and Ablain St. Nazaire, for the possession of which the French have been struggling since early in December, is announced in an official statement. The position was regarded as the most dangerous salient of the whole allied line stretching to the north from Arras. The final assault occupied four days, starting with a heavy bombardment and ending with a bayonet attack.

SAN FRANCISCO.—That Mrs. McKinley's condition is critical is admitted by her doctors, but they have by no means given up hope. A special consultation of physicians was held tonight and at its conclusion they refused to make any statement. The result of the consultation, however, was that Dr. Rixey and Dr. Hirschfelder decided to remain all night at the bedside of the patient. A bulletin at 1 a. m. reports Mrs. McKinley as slightly better.

CHICAGO.—M. Jules Cambon, the French ambassador to the United States, will arrive in Chicago today and will address students of the University of Chicago in Kent theater this afternoon. It will be a holiday at the university. Prof. E. J. James will formally welcome the ambassador to the university and M. Cambon in response will tell of the work of the Alliance Française.

CHICAGO.—With mumbled prayers droning about a bed on which lay a dying woman another tragedy of Dowieism came to an end in "Dr." John Alexander Dowie's Zion late yesterday. Without medical attention Mrs. Louisa Christensen, victim of a recent apartment house fire of South Chicago, died after ten days of suffering from burns.

CHICAGO.—June graduates of the high schools will have no bouquets on graduation day. "No flowers or any other presents at commencement exercises," was the mandate sent out by the board of education.

MAY 16, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—The old pro-slavery Democrats in Washington manifest a good deal of opposition to the appointment of Fred Douglass, the colored orator, to be recorder of this district. They claim he slandered Washington in a speech in 1877 when he referred with some asperity to some of the customs of Washington in slavery days.

NEW YORK.—It is rumored that Henry Villard, Horace White, and Carl Schurz have formed a combination for the purchase of the controlling interest in the New York Evening Post, the intention being to put Mr. Schurz in editorial charge of that journal.

CHICAGO.—Although the majority of Chicago people may believe in Mayor Harrison's policy in allowing gambling houses to run with open doors, there are many who object to these places in the heart of the residential portions of the city and people living near Wabash avenue and 22d street are making numerous complaints against Pete Maguire, who has established a tiger's lair in that vicinity. In addition to the gambling house he runs a concert saloon and "waiter-girl" dive in the basement, adjoining the saloon.

THE SURVEY OF RECENT SOCIAL CHANGES.

Chicago, May 14.—In an editorial in your issue of May 14 you raise the question of the value of the survey of recent social changes now being undertaken by a committee appointed by President Hoover, consisting of Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, director of research for the national bureau of economic research, chairman; Prof. Charles E. Merriam, University of Chicago; Dr. Alice Hamilton, Harvard medical school; Mr. Shelby Harrison, vice president of the Russell Sage Foundation; Dr. W. F. Ogburn, University of Chicago, director of research; Dr. Howard W. Odum, director of social science, Chicago Century of Progress.

As you state, surveys and fact finding bodies have become a well recognized American institution. That some of them, as you indicate, are not unqualified successes it is only natural to expect. I venture to suggest that an impartial investigation of this movement would show many brilliant successes. For instance, various excellent improvements in our educational system followed the famous Cleveland survey of education. The federal reserve banking system came only after careful surveys. The soil and erosion surveys of the government are basic to our agricultural policy, to mention only a few illustrations.

The keynote of most social and governmental action today, as well as of business activity, is research and planning. Most of the western European nations have planning councils. Mexico has a planning law. China is contemplating one. And, as you know, Russia has a five year plan. There is also much planning in the United States among the various governmental bodies.

It would seem almost axiomatic that the best planning cannot be done without good factual records of situations and trends. The President's research committee on social trends has for its purpose the presentation to the public of facts regarding the changes occurring in many of the most significant parts of American civilization.

Thus in one of the surveys the facts regarding new inventions to which society and business must adjust and which will shape our lives in the years to come will be shown. Some careful estimates are in progress of being made regarding the future numbers of our population and their distribution. Other surveys of our natural resources and agricultural production will give data for population policies, and will be of significance with regard to the standard of living and of business markets as well. The great development of communication, so significant in modern times, and the newer tendencies in transportation will be studied as to their social and business effects. There will be 25 or 30 such pieces of research on the various aspects of our culture, the variety of which is shown by such investigations as the one into the changing nature of leisure time activities which have come about as the result of shortening hours of labor, bringing problems of conduct, of education, of business.

For this work the various social research bureaus and university departments have contributed very generously of their staffs. There are in the United States 999 industrial research and consulting laboratories engaged in making inventions and scientific discoveries that are forcing changes and new situations so rapidly, whether we like it or not, that society has difficulty in making adjustments. The social sciences do not have anywhere near 999 research bureaus to make social researches, and social planning is certainly not keeping pace with mechanical invention and scientific discovery. But many of these social science research bureaus that do exist are coöperating in this study of social trends in an endeavor to present the facts of recent social trends in such a way that the public and the agencies of government will have material on which to make better plans.

WILLIAM F. OGBURN.

INSURANCE RATES.

Chicago, May 12.—In THE TRIBUNE of May 11 Mr. L. S. Joselane asks why the insurance companies do not reduce their rates, since the span of human life has been prolonged considerably in the last few years. The answer to this is that life insurance companies return their surplus earnings at the end of each year in the form of cash dividends, paid up additions, and post-mortem dividends. This particularly applies to the large mutual companies. MAYER HOFFMAN.

THE MORTALITY TABLES.

Chicago, May 13.—The suggestions of L. S. Joselane relative to insurance rates are intelligent and timely. On one of his points he is exactly right today; on the other he would be right were insurance companies applying to their selling methods efforts toward efficiency and economy such as have been applied by leading institutions in other lines.

That advances in medical science and improvements in sanitation have lengthened human life is a fact borne out by inspection of the "American Men Table of Mortality," published in 1918 by the Actuarial Society of America, and based on the death rate experienced from 1901 to 1914 by 59 leading companies. But life insurance rates are still calculated on the basis of the "American Experience Table of Mortality," made over 70 years ago and based on the then prevailing mortality rate of one American company.

Rates calculated on the newer table are much more nearly fair for present day transactions than those calculated on the older. Inspection of the two tables shows that while the American experience table is fairly accurate for present day conditions at older ages it is far too high at the younger. Your correspondent would be justified in asking why rates are not today based on the American men table, with a consequent reduction in favor of younger men.

The American men table is not used because in 46 of the 48 states the minimum legal requirement is based on the American experience table. Two states, Connecticut and Indiana, have legislated the newer table as an adequate basis for calculation of rates; however, since practically all American companies operate in from ten to forty-eight states, even the progressive, public serving companies are restricted by the almost universal use of the older table. Attempts have been made in a number of states to legalize the newer table, but have been defeated by those interested in continuation of the status quo as to rates.

On your correspondent's second point: Life insurance companies have been so occupied with their ambition for size that relatively little time or effort has been spent on improvements in method and decrease in expenditures. There are, of course, a few exceptions to this general statement. M. V. S.

$400,000 FOR $2,000.

Pasadena, Cal., May 7.—This morning I purchased a nationally advertised brand of breakfast food for which I paid 24 cents. The net weight was 2 pound 12 ounces. A bushel of wheat weighs 60 pounds. Farmers are getting 40 cents a bushel in Montana for wheat. The wheat food figures $7.20 per bushel at the price I paid. How come?

Corn is worth 50 cents a bushel in middle west states. For 4,000 bushels the farmer would get $2,000. The bootlegger would, at prevailing drug store prices for whisky, receive $400,000 for this same amount of corn. Now that you have recovered, is it any wonder that men take a chance with such profits in sight?

Mourn His "Passing" at Secret Session.

BY RAYMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, May 15.—Geneva put on its best bedside manners today and all that was intended to be a decorous farewell to its grand old man, Aristide Briand, while his nephews started in to quarrel over his will.

Following a perfunctory morning session of the commission studying European federation, during which Arthur Henderson, Great Britain's foreign minister, delivered an advance eulogy which the three healthy survivors of the big four—Mr. Henderson, Dr. Julius Curtius of Germany, and Dino Grandi of Italy—met secretly to consult with their moribund colleague of France.

Out of respect for M. Briand's feelings and on account of the equivocal position to which he was placed by his bid for the presidency of France, they reached an agreement in principle to dodge as far as possible all controversial issues during the session of the league of nation's council this week.

Save Briand's Face.

The agenda was agreed upon, and it is believed a decision was reached to take up the delicate Austro-German customs union on Monday, with the understanding that the council will pass the buck to the world court. This will save M. Briand's face, and kill his pet scheme for a European federation gets anywhere it will be a peculiar way of solving the problem. Naturally it is impossible for the council to continue with the naval conversations with Sig. Grandi, so it was agreed to let things slide.

Dr. Curtius and Sig. Grandi both showed a desire not to involve M. Briand in any unpleasant sessions, and the only question on which there was any difference of opinion was the point of participation Russia will be given in the deliberations of the peace commission.

Briand to Return Home.

M. Briand wanted to keep Moscow out in the background as possible, as Dr. Curtius and Sig. Grandi insisted on full equality for the bolsheviki. No decision was announced, but it is believed that it was agreed to invite Litvinov, Russia's delegate, who arrived in Geneva at the time the decision was going on—grab a plane to Paris.

As a result of the conference it is thought that M. Briand will remain only for the opening day of the council meeting unless something unforeseen occurs. Then he will return to Paris on Tuesday and announce publicly his resignation as foreign minister.

The session this morning over which M. Briand presided was really a touching affair. The French foreign minister looked tired and spoke in such a weak voice that he could hardly be heard, but he smiled affably at his friends. He had hardly finished the report summarizing the year's activities when Mr. Henderson launched into a eulogy of Briand's qualities.

PACIFIST WANTS U. S. TO DISARM, FIX WAR PRICES

Ex-Congressman Testifies at Capital Hearing.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—The war policies commission received its first consignment of pacifist testimony today with the appearance as a witness of Richard Bartholdt of St. Louis, former congressman, newspaper editor, and past president of the Inter-Parliamentary Union for the Promotion of International Arbitration.

Pointing out that the population of the United States had increased only 30 per cent during the last 35 years while its military expenditures have grown 700 per cent, Mr. Bartholdt called upon this country to furnish an example to the world by completely disarming. The allied nations, he charged, had broken their pledge to disarm following the world war.

Would Bar War Loans.

He wished to see, he said, an international agreement that all war munitions be manufactured by the governments instead of by private concerns, that no money be loaned to belligerents, and that in the event of war commodity prices be fixed by a law at a level based on patriotism rather than profit.

The hearing was brought to an abrupt close when Senator Claude L. Swanson [Dem., Va.], member of the commission, suffered an attack of acute indigestion and collapsed.

Attack Not Serious.

He was given first aid treatment by Secretary of War Hurley, chairman, and other officials and was taken to his home. His physician later reported that the attack was not serious.

A number of other pacifist spokesmen have asked to appear. Secretary Hurley announced that they will be given a hearing at future sessions of the commission.

Fourth Yale Man Joins Stimson Staff.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—The old "Harvard clique," which once dictated almost every move in the state department, received its death blow today when President Hoover announced the appointment of Harvey H. Bundy, a Yale graduate, as an assistant secretary of state to fill the post vacated by the recent elevation of William R. Castle Jr. to the position of undersecretary.

The appointment of Mr. Bundy brings the total of Yale men in the higher offices of the department up to five, compared with one for Harvard. Four years ago, during the Kellog régime, fully 50 per cent of all the high ranking career diplomats were graduates of Harvard. This on several occasions prompted charges of "favoritism."

Mr. Castle is now the only Harvard man left among the higher executives, and he is credited with not always having worked in harmony with the group that once wielded so much power in state department affairs.

Aside from Secretary of State Stimson, himself a graduate of Yale, other Yale men closely associated with him in the department include Assistant Secretary of State Francis White; Allen T. Klots, special assistant to the secretary; James G. Rogers, another assistant secretary, who is studying Russia and the silver question, and Mr. Bundy.

A native of Grand Rapids, Mich., Mr. Bundy attended the Hackley school at Tarrytown, N. Y., and graduated from Yale in 1909. He was a classmate at Yale of Klots. It was through Klots that Mr. Stimson secured Bundy. Mr. Bundy is 43. He was married in 1915 to Katherine Lawrence Putnam. They have five children.

JUDGE DOUBTS IF ANY POLICEMAN IS TEETOTALER

Declaring that he doubts if there are any teetotalers on the police force, Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday granted a decree of separate maintenance to Mrs. Mary M. Grant, 178 North Lavergne avenue. Mrs. Grant had charged her husband, Michael Grant, who was suspended from the police force last November, with drunkenness, and Grant had contested her suit on grounds that he was a total abstainer.

"I have no objection to even a policeman drinking in his home," the judge told Grant. "However, you deny ever having touched liquor. I have yet to find a policeman who will not take a drink now and then."

Grant was ordered to pay $8 a week alimony and to find another job pending his reinstatement as a policeman. The Grants were married in 1918 and separated seven times, the last separation taking place in July, 1930. The couple have a son, John, 11 years old.

BRITAIN TO SPEND $140,000,000 FOR NEW TELEPHONES

LONDON, May 15.—A boom in British telephone development is expected as a result of a bill introduced in the house of commons today by Maj. C. R. Atlee, postmaster general, providing for the expenditure of $140,000,000 on telephones in the next three years.

Great Britain has made great strides in the use of the telephone in recent years, but it is still far behind the United States and Germany. Chicago and New York are the only two cities with more telephones than London. Great Britain has almost 2,000,000 phones, the number having increased by 35 per cent since 1925. The phones in private houses have increased 100 per cent in six years.

BROWN RESIGNS PROSECUTOR JOB TO AID F. X. BUSCH

James A. Brown, assistant state's attorney who with Harry A. Ditchburne prosecuted the vagrancy drive against hoodlums yesterday announced his resignation from State's Attorney Swanson's staff. Mr. Brown resigned to accept appointment as an assistant corporation counsel on the staff of Francis X. Busch, one of Mayor Cermak's cabinet chiefs.

JAMES A. BROWN.

Mr. Brown, although a Democrat, was appointed to the state's attorney's staff during the administration of Robert E. Crowe and was held over by Mr. Swanson, both of whom are Republicans. In announcing his resignation, Mr. Brown said he regretted to leave the state's attorney's office, but felt he had to, in view of a much more advantageous offer from the corporation counsel.

In his new work Mr. Brown will be in charge of the miscellaneous litigation of the city.

TWO POLICEMEN NAMED IN TRIAL OF U. S. RUM CASE

The names of Lieut. Joseph Dubach, former acting captain in charge of the South Chicago police district, and Sergt. William H. Reid, were mentioned again in Federal Judge Barnes' court yesterday in connection with alleged graft for the protection of saloon keepers.

Peter Petljanski, former under cover investigator for the special prohibition unit, testified in the trial of John Kopcho, whose saloon was at 8510 Burley avenue, that he leased a saloon at 8506 Green Bay avenue and told Popcho he intended to sell whisky.

"I told John I wouldn't open up until I got an O. K. from the police," Petljanski testified. "John told me to go ahead and open up and get some money and I wouldn't have any trouble with the police. He told me to see Dubach and Reid and they would take care of me."

Petljanski testified that he bought liquor from Kopcho.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock said yesterday he could not do anything about the charges against Dubach and Reid until he had seen the evidence.

ROYALTY BOWS HEAD AT FUNERAL OF EUGENE YSAYE

BRUSSELS, May 15.—(AP)—Royalty bowed its head today at the funeral of Eugene Ysaye, famous violinist, who died Tuesday. Queen Elizabeth led an impressive delegation as Belgium honored the famous musician. From early morning crowds assembled in front of the Ysaye home and before Trinity church, where the services were held.

Preceded by a military band playing funeral marches, a procession of troops and marriage with wreaths and cushion bearers carrying the maestro's decorations left the Ysaye home shortly before 11 o'clock. The hearse was followed by members of the family and foreign and Belgian officials. Queen Elizabeth, who has always been a great admirer of Ysaye's compositions; Countess Vandensteen and Count De Grunne were already at the church.

Inside the church the beautiful Gregorian mass was sung. After the service, during which some of Ysaye's own compositions were played, the procession made its way to the Ixelles cemetery, where the musician was laid to rest. All day yesterday Ysaye's body lay in state with his cherished violin above his head. The violin today was carried in the procession by one of his former pupils.

Let Spring Facial Perk You Up; Its Cost Is Nominal

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Spring facials have cropped into our beauty vocabularies. You hear them quoted as a most necessary tulip time venture, the reason being that everything must be new and uplifting of spirit, from crown to toe. As nearly as new a look to the face as you can manage naturally enters the springtime scheme.

A spring facial may be anything from a home brewed affair to a treatment in the most luxurious of salons. More of us will have to be content with the former than the latter. But that's nothing to grieve over, either, for the home facial can give a remarkably nice result, too. And the beauty of it is that you can be as reckless as you want to be with the home brand. You don't have to do any weighing of your pennies, after the initial installation of a good cleansing cream, skin food and astringent.

Along with the spring facial talk, I note of recent days a hearty revival of face pack treatment. I was surprised t'other day at a report on the sales of only one face pack preparation. There are a number of them, but the sales of this particular one prove that women are doing a lot of face packing, all right. I like these face packs. I don't know anything that will buck you up the way they will, nor serve so well for an emergency "good appearance."

You have a sense of being just grandly cleaned up when you're through with one. They're simply a modern expression of mask treatment that may have begun with Eve. Anyway, they date back further than you or I, by a good many centuries. Clay, herb and oil ingredients have been packed on faces for ages. So, if you're interested in this sort of spring facial, you might look into some of the face packs.

I warn you, though, that some are "drawing," and will make the skin look like a piece of raw beefsteak. But the average normal skin stands them well. There are oatmeal, cornmeal, almond meal preparations mixed with milk or buttermilk, or there are clays, such as Fuller's earth. And there are face packs made of egg white and egg yellow or both, mixed.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

D. D.: THE FINGERNAILS ARE best shaped with a long, flexible nail file, although it is doubtful whether cutting the nails really make them brittle. For cleaning use a fairly stiff nail brush and soapy water. Manicuring instructions may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

"Theodora, Empress," New Greek Drama, to Be Given May 24

Eighteen years ago Demetrios A. Michalaros came to this country from Greece at the age of 13 years to seek success. On Sunday, May 24, he will see his own play, "Theodora the Empress," produced at the Studebaker theater.

The play will be presented by the Hull House players on the recommendation of Jane Addams, head of Hull house, who introduced the writer's book, "Sonnets of an Immigrant," to the American public. Over a hundred persons will be in the cast.

"Theodora the Empress" is the history of a woman who rose from a circus dancer to the throne of the Byzantine empire, and after her death was canonized a saint by the fathers of the Greek Orthodox church.

Food Talk.

Mrs. G. B. writes: "How can I prevent the crust coming off my sponge cake when I remove it from the pan? The crust, which stays in the pan, is delicious in flavor and has an appetizing color."

It is impossible to bake a sponge cake in an unoiled tin and get it out of the pan without sacrificing that outer layer. And the finest and lightest of sponge cake is baked in ungreased tins. The delicate sponge dough needs a roughened surface to support the weight of the dough as it rises.

If you insist on having the cake come out clean from the pan, try this method: Wash your mold thoroughly with soap and hot water and dry thoroughly. Then melt 2 tablespoonfuls butter and either paint the inside of the mold thickly and evenly with the butter or pour it into the mold and turn and tilt the mold until every bit of the surface is covered. Pour out the superfluous butter into a saucer. [This can be used again.] Dust the inside of the mold with equal parts of flour and sugar. Coarse sugar works better, I think, than fine. For an average tin one tablespoon each of flour and sugar sifted together will be sufficient. Turn the mold upside down to let the loose sugar fall out, leaving a smooth, even, frostlike surface.

A sponge cake mold should always be made ready first, so that the moment the sponge cake is mixed it may be put at once into the mold. The appearance of the final product depends so much on the care with which the mold is prepared. Therefore care on this point is well repaid.

Sponge cake should be baked in a slow oven [300 degrees F.], and the ordinary size cake containing 6 of 7 eggs will need to bake for 1¼ hours. As soon as the cake is done remove it from the oven, but leave it in a warm corner near the stove for 3 or 4 minutes. This allows the sponge cake to set. The slightest chill before the cake is set is enough to make it heavy in texture. After setting, the cold air does not seem to have an injurious effect.

Then turn the cake out onto a cooler. With this method of oiling the pan and cooling, the cake should leave the tin and slip out easily.

1 tbsp. flour	2 squares chocolate
¼ tsp. salt	2 cups cream
3 eggs, slightly beaten	1 tbsp. vanilla

Scald the milk with the chocolate. Mix the sugar, flour, and salt. Add the eggs. Combine the mixtures and cook over hot water until thickened. Cool, add cream and vanilla. Strain and freeze.

Spendthrift Has Nicer Qualities Than a Tightwad

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It doesn't seem like much of a question, on the face of it, yet if you had two suitors, one recklessly extravagant, brilliant, full of fun and the other steady, not so brilliant, serious, sober, but saving to the point of miserliness, with a large bank account as a consequence, which would you choose?

Somewhere between the two lies the golden mean. But suppose you liked the company of the reckless one, you enjoyed his ill balanced generosities, yet you saw the advisability, too, of being protected financially all your life — which, still, would be your preferance? Mine, too—the one who had the open hand. For there'd always be a chance of managing his money more wisely for him. But the one with the thrift sense so imbedded that it pained him to buy a decent theater seat, though he could well afford it—well, you'd have to love him to distraction not to be hating him, most of the time.

Extremely stingy men should marry only extremely thrifty women—only that would be bad for money circulation. A spendthrift should marry a girl who wouldn't keep the reins too tightly bound, but who has a wise head, just the same.

It's not a good thing to be a reckless spender, but it is a much less lovable trait to be a miser, to let money matter so much that you can't bear to part with it. Anyway, from a girl's point of view, her chance of happiness would be greater with the spendthrift than with the other. Nor is this conclusion a personal prejudice.

In my correspondence here some of the most discouraging women who have written to me have been wives of men who love to see their every penny added to their reserves and not a cent allotted for the ordinary pleasures of existence. The fact that the money is there makes this form of suffering harder to bear. Too, there is a soul meanness that goes with the miserly habits, a gradual shriveling up of those fine things that make human contacts sweet.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

It's Character That Counts.

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I love isn't as tall as I. When I walk with him I don't feel comfortable. Please advise. Brown Eyes."

CHICAGOANS GREET SALVATION ARMY'S INTERNATIONAL CHIEF

When Gen. Edward J. Higgins of London, international leader of the Salvation Army, arrived yesterday for a visit to the local headquarters he found a thirty piece band, several hundred Salvation Army members, and a group of prominent citizens waiting at the Polk street station to greet him.

While the band struck up "Welcome to Chicago" and "Hail Our Chief," Lewis E. Myers, chairman of the reception committee, and members of the Salvation Army board gave the visiting leader the official welcome. Then a squad of motorcycle police escorted Gen. Higgins and his party, including Mrs. Higgins, Maj. Frank Taydon, and Lieutenant Commander E. J. Parker, national secretary of the Salvation Army in America, to the Drake hotel.

Gen. Higgins expressed special pleasure at the greetings from the governors of the eleven states that compose the central states territory of the Salvation Army. These messages were presented to him shortly after his arrival and expressed appreciation on behalf of the citizens of these states for the work being done by the Salvation Army.

Gen. Higgins expressed the belief that the financial depression throughout the world is lifting, except possibly in Germany. Gen. Higgins, as head of the Salvation Army, is in touch with the problems of unfortunates in many countries. Statistics, he said, show that unemployment is decreasing in England.

"I am sorry to say, however, that we have not seen any increase in spirituality in the world because of the economic distress," he added. "I suppose this is so because conditions differ from previous depressions. Facilities for pleasure and forgetfulness are more available. But there is bound to be a great reaction in this world gone mad after selfish pleasure."

Last night Gen. Higgins and his party were given a public welcome in the Moody Memorial church. More than 1,500 Salvation Army officers from the central states and 3,000 members in the Chicago area were present to hear the international leader.

Chicago's civic reception for Gen. Higgins will take place on Sunday afternoon at the Chicago Civic Opera house. This affair is being directed by Samuel Insull and a committee of 100 citizens.

Students Cheer Paderewski at Michigan Fete

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 15.—[Special.]—This is Paderewski night in Ann Arbor. I am certain of it at this minute the famous pianist, composer, statesman, scholar, or what you will, desired to run for any office within the powers of American voters to grant him, he would receive a unanimous vote from this part of Michigan.

He was the soloist of the music festival tonight, and to say that he received an ovation is putting it extremely mild. The audience, six thousand of them, jumped to their feet as he came on the stage, the orchestra gave him a fanfare when he left it, and there were other items to be measured by great noise and greater sincerity.

There was reason to make something of an extraordinary ceremonial about the affair, for it was the first time in all his long and honored career that Paderewski ever had played at a music festival in America. When he has finished his engagement at Evanston next week, it may be the last occasion of the sort. At any rate, he played his own concerto with the orchestra and then a Chopin group without it, and it would be hard to say which created the greater excitement.

It was a real event, one worth going to thousands of less important concerts to witness. Paderewski played like one inspired. He is a veteran of the keyboard and his head is silver, but tonight his heart and his fingers were young. It would not be quite accurate to say that he played like a boy, but it is unassailable that it was the playing of one in all the vigor and joy of young manhood.

One of the most vivid, certainly one of the most sincere ovations occurred back of the stage after the concerto. Paderewski embraced Conductor Stock with both arms, assuring him that his accompaniment had been marvelous, simply marvelous, and as the two went down the passageway together, a small boy by-stander gasped, "O, boy, those two together."

In fact, the whole evening was a great show. Out of compliment to the soloist Dr. Stock and the orchestra began the program with a Polonaise by Liszt. Then they passed to Beethoven's Second Symphony, with a suppleness of line and richness of sonority such as even they have seldom equaled.

The afternoon program was devoted to the children's chorus. Under the direction of Miss Juva N. Higbee, the youthful choristers sang rather exquisitely a series of songs arranged for the occasion, winding up with the cantata, "Old Johnny Appleseed," the story of an historical character of the middle west, set to music by Harvey N. Gaul. Then for the entertainment of the children the orchestra played under the direction of Eric DeLamarter. Hilda Burke and Eleanor Reynolds sang operatic arias separately and duets from "Hansel and Gretel" together, and Palmer Christian played some solos on the fine organ of the Hill auditorium.

At the time of filing these words I am informed that Paderewski still is playing encores for his enraptured audience.

Spectator Clothes Good for Whole Day

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Spectator sports clothes are reinstated in the sports mode and now that they've come home women are beginning to admit that they missed them sorely during their fashionable disgrace.

The majority of modern women lead such active, unexpected lives that they prefer to be dressed for any daytime eventuality. They never know when they'll up in the morning whether they'll dash off to the country for lunch in an automobile or airplane to arrive home only in time for dinner, or whether they'll be sidetracked into a midday party at the Ritz.

The Chantal ensemble sketched herewith takes care of almost any possibility. Its skirt and its top coat are of a soft fawn brown duvetyne in a melting shade Chantal calls peau de lait au lait. The skirt is trimmed at the top by latticed tucks that run down to meet the box plaits that give it fullness. The coat [shown on small figure] has a collarless top decorated by latticed tucks, one diamond crosses over and buttons with a brown leather button in front. Its lower skirt mounts in two points in front that form flaps buttoned over pockets.

The blouse of this ensemble is interesting, being made of open diagonal tulle naturel tone. It is trimmed with latticed tucks. The clip of brown leather, slightly draping its décolletage, is a Chantal innovation. The cardigan jacket is hand knit, in an open lace pattern of vivid sapphire wool. Its lower sleeves are of the fawn brown wool.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My small niece was having her hair cut. She said, "O, be careful. Don't cut anything that's fast" [meaning her ears].

Mrs. S.

I sent Gerhard into the house to find out what time it was. He came back quite downcast. Asking him why, he answered:

It was 3:45.

Parent Finds It Wise Not to Talk of Child's Fault

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Perhaps I mentioned that once I received a letter from a woman who became really vitriolic because I quoted mothers as having something real and valuable to contribute to a column on child training. If she were not so academically inclined, trusting only the research professor or world famous authority, she would find, as I do, that those who come to me for help have help to give.

The following letter contains a lot of wisdom on the subject of handling a child's fault which has never been given enough emphasis in this department. It is an important point and, in fact, is not given enough emphasis in any of the writings of those who are studying and managing children.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I have been reading your column daily and have received a great deal of help in deciding which course to adopt in training my little girl of 3 years.

"There have been times when I thought I would have to be more severe, but your articles encourage one to be more loving and understanding with the little ones. When one is with folks who are used to the old way they make one feel you aren't doing your duty unless you are perpetually nagging the children.

"I have found that the less one talks of a fault, especially the first time it is committed, the easier it is to overcome it just by a good explanation.

"There are a few grownups who laugh at every naughty thing that is said or done, thereby making the little one think she is doing something great, which is almost as bad as the majority who are inclined to make a big mountain over the least little thing."

8 ERRORS PAVE WAY FOR SEVENTH SOX DEFEAT, 12-8

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Sox of Boston and the Sox of Chicago played yesterday as if determined to prove there was no mistake about their right to occupy lowly positions in the American league race. The Chicagoans provided proof of the most convincing sort, but in so doing gave away so many runs that they were buried in the series opener, 12 to 8. They now have seven consecutive defeats as a topic for clubhouse conversation.

So that there can be no doubt about the Chicagoans being in a bad way during their two hours of labor, it should be mentioned at the outset that their attack of "shakes" was so aggravated that they committed eight blunders in the field. Seven of these were involved in scoring episodes and naturally caused more or less grief for Red Faber and Hal McKain who, with enemy hits breaking out from all directions, had enough troubles of their own.

Red Sox Slip in Sixth.

The Red Sox, while deserving of no medals for their fielding enterprises, were at least considerate enough to conduct themselves properly until the decision was fairly secure. For six innings they were actually of some help to young Dan MacFayden. Then, after they were out in front, 8 to 3, they slipped just enough to bring on Dan's banishment in the seventh.

Score One in Second.

The Chicago Hosiery came through with a rally of one hit in the second round, but it was enough to register one run. Kamm, leading off, supplied the hit in the shape of a grounder past third. He immediately stole second on what was intended to be a hit and run play. Tate bunted and both runners survived when MacFayden threw too late to nip Kamm at third. Kerr sent a liner to short, but Rhyne knocked down the ball with his gloved hand and recovered in time to start a double play, Kamm hiked home while this was being perpetrated.

The affliction of "shakes" that took hold of the White Sox in the third and gave three runs to the Boston lads began when Simons lost Rothrock's fly for three bases. Sweeney bounced to Kamm, but Willie kicked the ball and Rothrock scored. Webb lined directly at Watwood, who closed his hands on the ball and then let it drop. Sweeney kept going until he had

Louisville, Ky., May 15.—People are piling into Louisville again for the Kentucky Derby, not in the same numbers as in other years, to be sure, but sufficient, in times such as these, to prove again the fascination of this horse race and the attendant social hubbub. Some of the hubbub is pretty rugged, what with people trying to out-sit and out-guzzle one another all night in the hotel rooms and the managements and the people and apparently all the town looking on all this with a tolerant eye and listening with an indulgent ear.

If has often been said that there also is a refined social hubbub in Louisville at Derby time, but in humankand, as well as in horse flesh, the Kentucky people are a little more insistent than most others on certified pedigrees, so to a party barging in from out of town with nothing but a couple of satchels, one for clothing, this is only hearsay.

A Few Things Lacking.

At that the hubbubery is not as vigorous as it was at that Derby time a few years back when all the leading sportsmen of Cicero, Ill., came down on a special train, established themselves in pretty near a whole floor of a big hotel, and as a new and startling social effect threw a piano or pool table or some similar heavy object of furniture down an air shaft at half past three in the morning.

This was a new world record in social hubbubery at the time, but it was soon surpassed by a crowd of educated and therefore undoubtedly refined old grads and undergrads of one of the western universities, who not only threw furniture and glassware into the street from the high windows of a big hotel but also burned the draperies of some of the windows.

The social life at the Derby seems to be moderating slightly. Last night there was a great deal of sitting around in rooms and the bellboys were tearing through the halls until dawn with crocks of ice cubes and whole crates of ginger ale and mineral water, but it was moderately quiet sitting, no more uproarious than, say, a world series crowd acknowledging a home run.

Not All Mischief.

I would not wish to create an impression that mischief and disorder are the sole pleasure of the visiting talent at the Derby, however, for even though the horses have no more real identity to the majority of the people than the golf balls that the players hit in a national tournament, tradition, sentiment and imagination have imparted to this show a pleasant fascination to which no man or woman in the crowd seems immune.

In recent years, the weather has had an ornery habit of going wrong

MYSTERY ABOUT EQUIPOISE BALKS DERBY SLEUTHS

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 15.—The mystery horses and possibly the tragedy of tomorrow's Kentucky Derby is Equipoise.

The saddest place in 'Old Kentucky tonight, where the rich and the poor and the middle men are getting ready to celebrate Derby day, is Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's stable, where Equipoise is awaiting his greatest and perhaps his final test, and where his trainer, Fred Hopkins, stands a gloomy watch.

Two weeks ago if you would have mentioned that Equipoise could be beaten in the Derby you would have started an argument and possibly might have had a fight on your hands.

Tonight if you hint that Equipoise, the colt that has been a short priced favorite throughout the winter and spring in the Derby future books, may win the Derby, people will look rather strangely at you and whisper into each others ears, "What's wrong with the guy?"

May Be Another Zev.

The tragedy of Equipoise has aroused opinions that his case may be a case like that of Zev back in 1923 when Zev, after ruling the future book favorite, made such a miserable showing in the Preakness that he became a longshot in the Derby and then took the track in the Derby and won as he pleased.

Other rumors are ugly. While there is no proof, not even statements from attending veterinarians, that Equipoise was poisoned before he made such a disgraceful showing in the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace in Maryland, yet the rumor that he might have been tampered with will not down. The easterners are whispering it whenever they congregate.

Trainer Hopkins makes no accusations. But he shakes his head in a way to indicate that if Equipoise does not run a great race in the Derby tomorrow something must have happened to this colt which won more money than any other 3 year old in America last year. And it is not an alibi for the young trainer. "I would rather the people would think I haven't trained him correctly," said Hopkins.

Backed in Winter Books.

The charges that Equipoise had been poisoned in Maryland long before he was to fill his Derby engagement might have become more widely circulated if he wasn't such a great horse. But the people who charge that Equipoise was poisoned in Maryland are afraid he will blast their story by taking the track in the Derby tomorrow and winning all the way.

Some 30 experts and painters of word pictures were in the press box at Churchill Downs this afternoon. They were asked to make their Derby selections. About half of them picked Twenty Grand, the other half selected Mate. One lone westerner was brave enough to say that he thought Pittsburgher might win. That may be a fair indication of what will take place when the Derby wagering starts tomorrow.

See Hope for Long Shot.

One thing seems certain: the horse that beats Twenty Grand or Mate will pay a long price. And the horse that beats Mate, Twenty Grand, Equipoise, and Pittsburgher may be the 100 to 1 shot which Derby regulars, all these years, have been saying will come along some day.

Campolo Easy for Loughran in 10 Rounds

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, won a ten round decision over Victorio Campolo, Argentina, tonight and so climbed back to the place he held among the heavyweights two years ago before Jack Sharkey sent him stumbling around the Yankee stadium ring looking for a place to sit down.

Tommy took Victorio, 232½ pounds of long, lean animation, 6 feet 7 inches in height, and gave him as fancy a lacing as has been meted out in the big battle pit this season. He did everything except knock out the Argentine.

Loughran won the unanimous decision of Referees Jed Gahan and two judges and at least eight of the ten rounds.

Hunnefield Is Released by Cleveland Indians

Cleveland, O., May 15.—(AP)—Bill Hunnefield, shortstop and utility infielder of the Cleveland Indians, was given an unconditional release today. General Manager Billy Evans had planned to place him with some class AA league team, but Hunnefield refused to report to a minor league club.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 15. — Fifteen colts, the equine aristocracy of 1931 three year olds, are named officially to start in the fifty-seventh running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs tomorrow on a promised clear day and a fast track. Withdrawals before post time probably will cut that field to twelve, possibly to ten.

At about 5 o'clock, or 6 o'clock Chicago daylight saving time, this select band will traverse one and one-quarter miles, a trying route so early in the season, for the first place which inscribes the winner's name for all time in turf annals, and earns for the owner first money of about $50,000 and the gold trophy which will be presented by Vice President Curtis.

Included in this galaxy of turf stars are all the ranking 3 year olds of 1930 except Jamestown and Epithet, which have not yet come to the races this year. It is a representative field, carrying more average class, based on past performances, than has graced a Derby card of recent years.

Twenty Grand, Mate Stand Out.

Standing out in public estimation are Mate, Preakness winner, and Twenty Grand, second in the Maryland stake. Equipoise, leading money earner of the 1930 juvenile division, would be rated right with Mate and Twenty Grand if he were not the disappointment of the present season.

Then there is Ladder, given a chance because his third in the Preakness, and the western owned division, which on a 2 year old form is accorded only the proverbial Chinaman's chance. Yet among this number is Pittsburgher, a son of the great In Memoriam with blood of the family from which the great Exterminator sprang. As a baby racer this scion of In Memoriam was nothing to write home about compared to his more illustrious rivals, but this year the big striding fellow has shown a promise which causes many to think he may prove the surprise of the race. From the west, too, are Spanish Play, in which an interest is held by Dick Morris of Chicago, and Boys Howdy, a Bradley castoff now running great guns.

Dispute Class of Field.

Turf experts hold opposing views as to the caliber of this year's Derby field. There's the minority coterie which argues that because the leading choices have been beating one another and there is no standout, the MATE. SURF BOARD. LADDER. DON LEON. TWENTY GRAND. THE MONGOL. EQUIPOISE. BOYS HOWDY. PITTSBURGHER. SPANISH PLAY. UP. SWEEP ALL. ANCHORS AWEIGH. PRINCE D'AMOUR.

These fifteen thoroughbreds will prance past the packed stands at Louisville this afternoon and maneuver into line behind the barrier, ready to begin the most colorful race on the American turf—the Kentucky Derby. Horses which are numbered among the track's immortals have raced over Churchill Downs in the 56 Derbies of the past, but this year's event is believed to have attracted colts who will become equally famous. Twenty Grand, the favorite, last fall streaked through the fastest mile ever run by a two year old and great things also are expected of Mate and Equipoise. The latter was the winter book favorite but his poor showing in two appearances this season caused him to decline in favor. Mate came to the front last Saturday by outfooting a brilliant array of rivals in the Preakness. He is second choice in the betting at 4 to 1. Pittsburgher is the leading hope of the west.

Surprises Even His Trainer at Aurora.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

This is the story of the sudden disappearance of Trainer Louis Peters after the announcement of the price for Theo Red, winner of the fifth race at Aurora yesterday. Mr. Peters had been very much present a few seconds after old Theo had swept by the finish line a nose in front of Chehalis and White Hope. He was grinning from ear to ear, for had not Theo Red convinced a faithless public that he could still run a great race, even though he is nine years old? Then, in a sudden, Mr. Peters vanished.

Maybe it was the size of these figures on the big green price board that caused Mr. Peters' sudden disappearance. They read, from left to right, $82.76 to win, $16.80 to place, and $14.14 to show. Whether Mr. Peters had neglected to support his horse in the mutuels was not known, but it may have been that he did and found his way to some corner to recover from the shock.

Mar Ailing Leg.

The history of the association of Mr. Peters and Theo Red is a curious one. The North Shore stable purchased Theo along about the end of the last Chicago racing season, and Mr. Peters was given charge of him. Theo ran one race at Hawthorne and then came down with an ailing leg.

He had been insured, and shortly after Theo's indisposition Mr. Peters invited several friends to a venison dinner. It was noted by the guests that Theo Red had not been seen nor heard from in some days, and many were the suspicious glances that were cast at Mr. Peters as the venison was passed around the table.

17,000 See Races.

The ladies' day crowd of 17,000 which filled the Aurora plant yesterday, apparently thought he was going to run ninth again, for at post time, the closing price on Theo was 40 to 1. He took after Chehalis from the start, and the race resolved itself into a two horse argument until midstretch. There Jockey Dickey took Theo to the rail and began to flick him heart-fir with the whip. The old gelding responded gamely and won by a nose.

Alite, a five year old son of Supremus-Mowdy, owned by Mrs. J. W. Smith, captured the feature race, after Dusky Boy, who was at almost as high a price as Theo Red had run the field dizzy for almost a mile. Telstie Evie and Junior C. came up to take the place and show money. Alite's price was $7.86 for two dollars.

On the other side are those who admit that while probably no Reigh Count will develop this year, unless it be Jamestown later in the season, the number of good colts is greater than for many years, the average class is above normal, and that these youngsters have beaten one another because they are so evenly matched. The writer subscribes to the latter view. Certainly advance opinion is more divided than usual. It is not one colt against the field as with Gallant Fox last year, but three colts against the field.

Greentree Trio Favored.

The Greentree stable trio of Mrs. Helen Hays Whitney rules as ante-post favorite at 3-2. That is partly because of numbers, although neither Surf Board nor Anchors Aweigh rank with their stablemate in reputation. Mate, with an equally large following of supposedly turfwise folk, is second choice at 3-1. That is because Mate led Twenty Grand by one and one-half lengths at the finish of the Preakness.

Mate's followers discount the bumping and interference which hampered Twenty Grand in that stake. Followers of the latter, however, consider these handicaps more than covered the margin of victory. They point out that Twenty Grand last fall ran the fastest mile at which a 2 year old ever traveled, a distance only two furlongs shorter than the Derby route. They know he can go a distance and they point out that he was gaining on the Preakness winner at the finish. A slow beginner, he always has been coming on at the end. Slow beginners are handicapped in large fields, but the Derby pack will not be so large as to keep Twenty Grand from finding an opening, if he needs one.

Equipoise Puzzles Fans.

Equipoise is the puzzle of the race. Was he campaigned too severely as a 2 year old when he won over $150,000 in stakes and purses? Were his two bad races of 1931 the result of illness or has he gone back from his 1930 form? If Equipoise were the Equipoise of last year he would not be third or fourth choice to any one's colt. These questions will be answered tomorrow. Trainer Hopkins, in charge of the son of Pennant, is hopeful rather than confident. Equipoise, like Twenty Grand, is a slow beginner.

Early pace in the Derby is likely to be furnished by Surf Board, Ladder, Sweep All, Spanish Play or possibly Prince d'Amour. Mate likes to be up with the leaders, but can come from behind. Equipoise's rider probably will attempt to stay right on the heels of the leaders. Twenty Grand and Pittsburgher may be outfooted early, but their jockeys undoubtedly will keep within striking distance if possible.

While jockeys who have ridden previous Derby winners are lacking, the riders are a capable lot, with Sonny Workman guiding Equipoise, Mills on Mate, and Kurtsinger on Twenty Grand. Indications are for sunny weather and a fast, but not lightning fast, track.

Expect Crowd of 60,000.

Expectations of the management are for a crowd of 60,000, which was the figure announced last year. Chicago is not nearly so well represented in the advance guard as usual, but this slack has been taken up by the east and Kentucky, according to Col. Matt Winn, major domo of Kentucky racing. Reserved seat tickets, available for the first time in years the week of the race, were last minute returns from Chicago, where special trains of several clubs failed to fill.

If Chicago patrons, with their own racing attractions to anticipate, and with memory of four previous Derby rains in succession drenching gala taggery, are less numerous, Kentucky is observing its annual holiday with a spirit in keeping with the occasion.

Nothing, however, can dampen the year's old welcome as the starters parade to the post, still the roar as the contenders battle through the final stretch run, or exceed the enthusiasm which will greet the winner as he and his jockey canter back to the judges' stand to receive the floral wreath while his owner accepts the golden trophy from Vice President Curtis.

FEED BOX DOPE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 15.—[Special.]—As betting his distinction of ante-post favorite Twenty Grand was a bit formal at the start of our interview as to his Derby chances tomorrow. But as we prodded him a bit with chaffing remarks, he loosened up, although not able entirely to keep away from the seriousness with which he evidently regards this event.

Twenty Grand had just finished his breakfast when we arrived at the Greentree stable barn, where the three probable Derby starters were quartered among horses comprising the western division of this stable. The favorite was resting and inclined, we thought, to be a bit drowsy after what had been a hearty meal. The dishes which attendants were removing from a nearby table suggested he had enjoyed tomato juice, strawberries with cream, rolled oats, bacon and eggs, Melba toast and coffee. He was attired in a knickerbocker sport suit of gray material with blue shirt, tie and wool hose, and white oxfords.

"Good morning," we greeted. "how's the champion?"

"Oh, all right," he replied a bit diffidently. "What may I thank for your presence so early in the forenoon?"

"Just came out to inquire whether you and Surf Board and Anchors Aweigh were going to gang on Equipoise tomorrow."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that." Twenty Grand replied seriously. "There's no feeling, so far as I know, between the two branches of the Whitney family over this race. In fact, the owners probably are more cordial than Equipoise and I are. It isn't that I dislike the fellow, but we've had it out so many times there is a keen rivalry and of course you know how it is when your bosses are related. You'd just about rather down your boss' relatives than any one else.

"At that, I feel a little sympathy for him. I don't think he's been right yet this year. Perhaps French Lane was correct when he stated Equipoise was raced so much as a 2 year old that it might affect his 1931 career. It was very nice of French to predict 3 year old championship honors for me.

"As you know, Wake, after my first start, I came to the races a little late last year and really began my campaign in late July, after which I won $41,980 for Mrs. Payne Whitney. Of course, I think my best race of the season was in the Kentucky Jockey club stakes at Louisville last fall when I ran the fastest mile ever recorded by a 2 year old, and beat Equipoise a nose in a great stretch duel. That made me feel I was a good colt, for only good colts go that far in winning fashion in their 2 year old form.

"Of course, after that Equipoise reversed the result in the Pimlico futurity and Mate beat me in the Walden handicap. On these occasions the track was muddy. From that arose the belief that I am not a good muddier. That rather hurts me, for a champion cannot pick his going. I don't think I'm a bad muddier, but the other two possibly are better relatively in such going and we're so near equal otherwise it turned the tide.

"Naturally, I hope for a fast track, but I'm willing to go if it's heavy if Trainer Rowe thinks it advisable in view of my other important stake engagements. But personally I'd like another try at that pair over a holding surface."

"What'll you have to beat to win?" we inquired.

"In a Derby field, you have to beat them all," Twenty Grand responded. "It's a mistake to regard any one cheaply. Some fellow you may not think much of in advance may go out in front and you think he'll come back to you, but he doesn't, and just about the time you're going your best the race is over. That has happened before.

"Naturally Mate is the one I'll watch most. Equipoise, if at his best, is very dangerous. Of your western colts, I'll keep an eye on Spanish Play, for he has raced during the winter and ought to be far advanced. I hardly think he can win, but he's likely to be coming at the end. Pittsburgher has a chance. My stablemates are good performers and it would be a great satisfaction to run one-two-three, but I suppose that's hardly possible. It never has been done in the Derby."

"But you weren't so good in the Preakness," we suggested.

"Oh, yes I was," corrected Twenty Grand. "I ran my race and it was good enough to win, but I was bumped around, shut off twice, and was going great guns at the finish. It's just like contract—you have to have some good cards or you can't play them. I'm glad the field tomorrow will be smaller than usual. I think that's about all I can tell you and I have an appointment now with the barber, if you'll excuse me."

on Derby day, but a fair day in spring in the blue grass country, such as this one, possesses a soothing quality that seems to heal the soul of meanness and care. Any pickpocket calling himself a gentleman would refuse to work on a day like this. The air has been compared to wine, and the maudlin quality of all this may be accounted for by your correspondent's immoderate indulgence in the same.

The Louisville people need some healing about now any way as the principal bank of the town owed in since last year's show and the population has been almost unanimously out of sorts ever since. The management of the horse track has been a little more brutal about the price of admission than seems prudent or necessary, however, maintaining the boom time scale of $15.40 for box seats in the clubhouse, $11 for grandstand box seats, and $3.30 for unreserved grandstand seats.

Town Makes Money.

However, the horse track is a private business enterprise, and never will I scold a promoter for charging all he thinks he can get. The track management, the people and the business firms are banded together in a loose way by a common material interest, as well as a sentiment alone, in the Derby, for the big race always brings thousands of people, all members of the spendingest breed on earth, the horse track customers.

The hotels hoist their prices and keep a lot of this money in town, the restaurants and taxi people and of course the liquor dealers get theirs, too, and thousands of men from farther north, temporarily reckless about money, always buy their first straw hats of the season on Derby day or one of the days just preceding, in Louisville.

And, another important item, the track management takes eight per cent of the gross receipts of the mutuel machines, which have mounted as high as two million dollars in the past and should run to about $1,600,000 this time. Naturally, being under political shelling from the reformers at all times, the track constantly needs friends in office and no doubt some of this eight per cent goes for missionary work or propaganda or some such euphemistic purpose.

Among Those Present.

Mr. John F. [Leader] Curry, the chief of Tammany hall, popped off a train this morning, a smallish, pink faced man of the type commonly called "quiet," and appeared at the horse track before the first race attended by a big chunk of a man, who had the externals of a copper dynamite. Mr. Curry's business has been in difficulties, too, this year, what with his judges accepting Christmas turkeys, cigars and small gifts of money from designing characters, but politicians never show weary and he seemed quite serene.

Mr. Barney Gimbel, the New York department store owner, who owns quite a herd of horses himself, and needs an outside charger to take his lissome bulk over the rackwalk of his Connecticut Yankee country, came down with an annual party in a private car, which was said to contain tennis courts, a bowling alley and a swimming pool. This may be an exaggeration but no description could exaggerate the immensity of Mr. Gimbel's charger which ought to have squares and wear a drunk and sell peanuts.

STADIUM SIGNS O'DOWD, JADICK FOR MAY 25 CARD

With the signing of these two, Matchmaker Nate Lewis needs only an opponent for Charlie Retslaff to complete the card, which will be the Stadium's second venture into popular priced shows.

Retslaff, if a suitable opponent can be found, will be matched in an eight pounder and the Danny Delmont-Ray Miller bout may be moved up to share the double windup spot with Gorilla Jones and Bucky Lawless.

Eight Errors Pave Way for Sox 12-8 Loss

reached third and Webb stopped at second. Oliver popped to Cissell and another popup was hoisted off Van Camp's bat, but Cissell tore back with the idea of taking it from Simons and the result was a single. Sweeney and Webb scored.

Reynolds Out at Plate.

The Chicagoans made an effort to reestablish themselves in their half of the third, but all they could squeeze from three successive hits was a lone run. The inning opened with Blue neglecting to take notice of a third strike. Simons grounded straight through second and profited to the extent of a single when Rhyne and Rothrock collided. Reynolds exploded a hit on which Simons took third. He scored on Watwood's single. Nothing further happened because Reynolds was doubled trying to score on Cissell's infield demise.

Another attack of "jumps" in the fifth aided the visitors in the collection of the last run off Faber. Sweeney singled with one out and continued to second when Reynolds fumbled. He went home when Webb hit over Simons' head for two bases.

Watwood's double was promoted into a Chicago run in the sixth.

Probably because they wished to prove they weren't discouraged, the South Side Sox got busy in their seventh and succeeded in ejecting MacFayden from the struggle. This rumpus began with McKain's triple after one was out. He scored on Rhyne's two base muff of Blue's popup. Simons tore off a single which scored Blue. A single by Watwood and double by Cissell moved Simons over the plate.

The parade of Boston runners broke out again in the eighth, two scoring with the aid of another flurry of errors. Rhyne doubled, Cissell kicked Rothrock's grounder, and McKain threw wild on Sweeney's scratch hit. By way of adding to the mirth, the Red Sox immediately handed back the runs in Chicago's half. Rothrock booted two successive grounders in between singles by Kerr and Reynolds. Then the Boston Hose picked up two more in the ninth, but the only important feature of this was that another error was involved.

Caraway for the White Sox and Russell or Lisenbee for Boston will be selected to pitch today.

Oak Park, Senn Trackmen Lead State Qualifiers

Champaign, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Senn High school, Chicago champion, and Oak Park led the field in the preliminaries of the 37th annual state interscholastic track meet at the University of Illinois today and are favorites for the finals which will be run off on the stadium track tomorrow forenoon.

Both Senn and Oak Park qualified five men, with one athlete qualifying in two events. Senn's great strength was in the hurdles, Pollard placing in both races while Viancini and Clark also qualified in the highs. Seaberg in the shot put and Richards in the high jump were the other Senn men who earned the right to compete.

Herman, Oak Park's ace, qualified in both dashes. Burling, 100 yard dash; Toussainte, low hurdles; Ovson, shot put, and Zinkel, quarter mile, were the other suburban qualifiers. Urbana and Moline were the leading downstate schools qualifying three men.

A stiff wind blew down the stretch against the contestants, who numbered 529, selected by the district meets of the Illinois High School Athletic association.

Bob Stephen, a favorite in the shot put, broke the first record when he pushed the shot 51 feet 6 inches to better the old record by 7 inches.

Windmiller, Pleasant Hill, established the other new mark in the javelin throw. He threw the shaft 185 feet 7½ inches, bettering the record of 185 feet 2 inches, set by Purvis of Mattoon in 1930.

Crain Portman, Urbana, led individual performers by setting the best times in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. He traveled the century in 10 3-10 seconds and the 220 yards in 23 3-10 seconds. The favorite in the dashes, he had little trouble in the century, but in the 220 semi-final was pushed by P. Vistart of Christopher.

Play Phillies Today.

The Cubs left directly after the contest for Philadelphia, where they hope to win their first eastern victory of the season tomorrow. They will have two chances to do it, for a doubleheader is scheduled. Root and Blake are expected to do the pitching.

Moore opened the game with a single to right and went to third when English singled to the same spot, English taking second when Herman threw to third. Hornsby doubled to the left field corner, scoring Johnny and Woody. In running out the hit Rogers aggravated the leg injury from which he has been suffering since last Sunday, so Blair went out to run for him.

Wilson walked and Phelps was yanked for Day. Blair tried to sneak to third on Day's windup, but was out, Lopez to Gilbert. Cuyler singled to center and Wilson stopped at second. Hartnett tapped into a double play, Wright to Thompson to Bissonette.

The Robins made a run in the second inning when Wright tripled and came home while Blair was throwing out Frederick.

In the fourth Hartnett, Bell, and Grimm reached base on a walk, a bunt and a Texas leaguer. Then Hartnett came home as Smith hit into a double play.

In the Robins' half of the fourth Herman walked and scored on Bissonette's homer. Smith threw out Wright, but Frederick doubled off the right field wall. Gilbert walked and the fourth ball was a wild pitch which enable Frederick to go to third. Lopez then tripled to left, scoring Frederick and Gilbert. Day was out, Grimm unassisted, and Thompson filed to Moore.

The Robins made their last run in the eighth. Teachout filled the bases with a walk, a hit, and, after a sacrifice, an intentional pass. The run was scored on an infield out.

Manhattan Sights Thrill Visiting Boxers.

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—The French amateur boxing team said "au revoir" to the United States today. At 4 o'clock this afternoon the party of French warriors boarded the palatial French liner Ile de France and settled down to the ocean voyage back home.

Before sailing time the French boxers were taken on a sight seeing tour and the boys thrilled to the many points of interest.

Visit West Side.

Starting from the Hotel St. Morits, the party visited the west side and rolled up Riverside drive, where the sight of the navy fleet anchored in the glistening Hudson thrilled the boys. The tour then headed downtown and when the Empire State building — that skyscraper which stretches 102 stories in the air—was reached the foreigners gasped. Never before had they witnessed such a spectacle as this modern monarch of architectural structures.

A short trip into Manhattan's Chinatown, a ride down Wall street, and a visit to the Battery and the aquarium rounded out the tour. Capt. Alexandre Elyas and his wide eyed mates then drove back to the hotel with memories of an eventful tour embedded in their minds.

Sail at 4:30 P. M.

After luncheon the boys gathered their luggage and made for the French line pier. Hasty good-bys and the party scampered aboard the Ile de France amid the plaudits of well wishers.

Before sailing the band of Frenchmen voted the trip a complete success.

At 4:30 p. m. the big liner moved smoothly out into the river and headed for the Statue of Liberty and France. They gathered in a group on the top deck and waved good-bys with their little blue berets until they sailed out of sight.

'MOVIES' GIRD FOR BETTER DAY, CLARKE AVERS

General Theaters Sales Show Gain.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Recovery in the great motion picture industry is forecast by Harley L. Clarke, president of General Theaters Equipment, Inc., in his annual report made public last night. In fact, the company's gross sales of theater equipment during the first quarter of 1931 exceeded those for the corresponding period last year by $850,000, which indicates preparation for better times.

"In common with other lines of business, conditions at present leave much to be desired," Mr. Clarke says. "While the present severe economic conditions impose economies and restricted buying, greater earnings are assured when normal buying and spending is resumed. The business of supplying amusement to the 125,000,000 inhabitants of this country will continue to be one of stupendous proportions. We look forward to the future with a confidence not based on optimism, but rather on the judgment which comes from knowledge of the necessary requirements for use of our company's product and the uses for its new lines of equipment."

Cites New Developments.

Among the developments in the industry, Mr. Clarke announces a new picture projector and sound equipment. A new camera and a new projector have been designed which will take and project pictures of any width from the present standard size to double that width. Mr. Clarke predicts the industry will change to the wider film gradually and at reasonable expense, which will eliminate any hardship.

Last year General Theaters Equipment acquired 51 per cent of the voting stock of Fox Film and all of the voting stock of Fox Theaters corporation, besides making a large investment in Fox Film class A stock. These acquisitions are reflected in a large increase in General Theaters Equipment assets, which rose to $129,094,728 at the end of 1930, compared with $55,000,000 at the end of 1929.

Net Is $4,454,406.

The income of General Theaters Equipment and its subsidiaries for 1930 was $4,454,406, compared with $16,813 in 1929, had the subsidiaries included therein been operated by General Theaters for a full year. The portion of earnings accruing to General Theaters as shown in the 1929 report was $840,296. The 1930 earnings were equivalent to $1.57 a share on the 2,838,913 shares of old common stock. Deducting actual accrued dividends on the new preferred stock, such earnings were equivalent to $2.22 a share on 1,892,608 new common shares, or deducting a full year's dividend on the new preferred stock, which was outstanding for one month last year, earnings would have been $2 extra a share on the new common stock.

TRADE TRENDS MIXED

While surface signs indicate no marked change either for better or worse, business is undergoing seasonal contraction, accentuated because it is taking place from a low level, weekly trade reviews reported yesterday.

"A view of the character of the forces which currently are exerting a predominant influence on economic trends," says R. G. Dun & Co.'s summary, "the slight but perceptible gain in retail trade reported by several important commercial centers is encouraging. The successful curtailment of crude oil output and of copper production was further news of a constructive nature.

"The mixed quality of business news at this time is such that a statement of the prevailing direction of industrial activity cannot be made without so many qualifications as to impair in a large degree its value.

"It is becoming increasingly easier for business to borrow money and determined efforts are being made to stop the large weekly imports of gold which have been a feature of business news for so many months.

Some Increase Sales.

"Certain basic prices continue to decline and while some industries are reporting seasonal decreases in activity, others are experiencing a greater demand for their products and are gradually increasing sales and production efforts. Gradually there seems to light in the form of concrete developments evidence of the accumulated forces of construction which have been operative for a long period, but which have not previously revealed against general trends."

The Business Week notes that current indications of the business situation give no ground for added gloom and that "a fundamentally favorable force has appeared in the picture in the form of persistent and powerful federal reserve pressure for credit extension."

"The full extent and effect of federal reserve effort to check chronic credit contraction and overcome commercial bank inertia and conservatism will not be seen for several months," it adds, "but its pugnacious policy is directed in the right direction and by every rule precedent should speed recovery."

Gov't Operated Industries Seen Economic Failures

BY SCRUTATOR.

The agricultural lands bill which has been passed by the British house of commons calls for the establishment of large scale farms to be operated by the government.

The present government purposes to place on these farms some of its present army of unemployed after the prospective farm workers shall have had a period of training under government supervision.

Communistic experiments of this kind are not new. We have them in the United States in the shape of farm and factories run by penitentiaries. From a purely economic standpoint they have largely been failures.

Worse, sometimes, because they have disturbed the delicate balance of trade and have clogged competitive markets with a surplus of cheap prison made goods produced at a loss. In that way they have ruined profits for private concerns and have been a menace to free labor.

Taxpayers Pay Expenses.

The books usually show a profit, but allowances for rent, many overhead items, selling costs and sometimes factory labor are left out entirely. Few prison industries have payrolls to meet. There is no attempt to maintain a decent standard of living. Most of the expenses are covered by the taxpayers.

And yet granted these enormous handicaps earnings have been nothing to shout about.

In a report on prison industries published in 1929 the United States department of commerce cited the case of a farm machinery factory operated by a state penitentiary. For the four years from 1921 through 1924 it showed a loss of close to a million dollars. The actual loss on each sale of binders, mowers and rakes was estimated at 37 per cent of the selling price. These figures were based on a report by a firm of accountants.

Lack True Cost Figures.

How much do prison factories and farms cost taxpayers in the various states? There is no way of telling. Most of them use accountants that come their way as prisoners and methods of bookkeeping are many and varied.

For the year ended Sept. 30, 1926, the binder twine department of the Indiana state prison reported receipts of $531,052 and disbursements of $599,984. For the same period the Indiana reformatory farm fund showed receipts of $23,524 and disbursements of $27,188.

Minnesota reported that in 1926 the state received $564,500 for the labor of prisoners manufacturing farm machinery and binder twine. Of this $100,857 went to the prisoners and $463,643 was retained by the state. How far overhead would have cut into that amount under ordinary methods of accounting can only be surmised. The prisoners' daily pay averaged between 39 and 46 cents.

The state penitentiary at Parchman, Mississippi, has 25,000 acres of farms. From $600,00 to $800,000 per year is returned to the state from the sale of farm products. No wages are paid to prisoners. No estimate is made as to the amount to be deducted from gross receipts to pay for fixed charges and overhead.

Are Admitted Makeshifts.

True, the type of labor to be employed on British communal farms may differ from that available in our prison industries, but there can hardly be any greater incentive toward efficient and adequate work. Both are admittedly makeshifts to take up excess labor.

The British farms may be able to juggle their books to show a theoretical profit, at the same time selling their products at a loss and thereby establishing abnormally low price levels disastrous to ordinary industry. The natural result of that if the plan is carried through to its logical conclusion would be to keep throwing more men out of work and continue the vicious circle until all are employed in government communes and stagnation of the nation's industry is complete.

TELLS FLOUR MILLERS U. S. TARIFF LAWS DRIVE BUSINESS AWAY

"The past twelve months have been the most disastrous to export flour millers since the crop failure of 1914," A. E. Mallon, prominent Minneapolis miller, told the 250 members of the Millers' National federation yesterday in a talk in which he criticized the new tariff handicapping American business. Yesterday's meeting concluded the three day session of the millers' organization, which brought delegates to the city from all over the country.

Stating that the putting of the new tariff into effect has created ill feeling against the United States throughout the world, Mr. Mallon stated:

"A change in tariffs in one country forces readjustments in the tariffs of the other countries affected. These readjustments may be but a minor factor in some countries, but in others they may assume a major importance in which case the word 'readjustment' is but a polite substitute for retaliation.

"Be it tariff readjustment or retaliation, from May, 1929, to May 1, 1931, American agriculture has been penalized in Europe, on wheat flour alone, by higher duties in Finland, Poland, Germany, France, Italy, Greece, Turkey, by laws compelling the use only of flour milled with a certain percentage of domestic wheat in Sweden, Czecho Slovakia, Holland, Belgium, and Latvia, by government monopoly in Estonia, and by complete prohibition in Spain. Similar action can be cited in Africa, the West Indies, and South America. In fact, no less than 24 countries have undertaken legislation affecting imported wheat flour."

To Discuss Tariff.

New York, May 15.—(AP)—For the first time in its history the national foreign trade council, hitherto definitely opposed to discussion of questions that might be political controversial, has made tariff the subject of one entire afternoon of formal discussion at its convention here on May 27, 28, and 29.

O. K. Davis, secretary of the council, says that while the volume of American exports has fallen off by only about 15 per cent since the beginning of 1930, our total manufacturing production has diminished in that period by more than 25 per cent.

U. S. Is Informed China May Call World Silver Meeting

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—Minister Wu of China informed Under Secretary of State Castle today that the Nanking government was "seriously considering" the issuance shortly of a call for an international conference on silver.

The minister discussed the world silver situation with the under secretary shortly after Mr. Castle, in the first public statement on the subject directly attributable to the administration, said the United States would cooperate with any nation which issued a summons for an international silver conference.

After conferring with Under Secretary Castle, who is acting secretary of state while Secretary Stimson is in New York, the minister said his government was devoting close attention to the subject. The Nanking government, he added, looked upon a solution of the silver question as of "vital and intimate interest" to it.

Follows Talk in East.

The minister's talk with Mr. Castle was the second he has had with department officials on the silver question, having previously indicated that his government was anxious that a silver conference be called. Today's conversation followed closely upon press dispatches from the eastern republic indicating the Nanking government was on the verg of actively moving toward a conference.

State department officials said today they were convinced a call for a conference by one of the eastern powers, such as Japan or China, would be issued shortly. They consider the silver question an acute one because of the greatly diminished price of the metal to be primarily of interest to the orient.

Under Secretary Castle said the American government, through its extensive studies of the problem by the state treasury and commerce departments, was prepared to enter into a conference. Present attention is centered on the actual issuance of a call by some power. The meeting place is generally looked upon by officials as secondary.

Urges Empire Bank.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 15.—(AP)—Formation of a "super bank of empire" to stabilize the ratio of value between gold and silver was proposed to the banking committee of the house of commons today by J. F. Darting, president of the Midland bank. The bank or some similar agency is necessary, he said, to rehabilitate silver, now only about one-eightieth of the value of gold.

Mr. Darting suggested that owner ship of the bank be vested in the various governments of the British empire in such a way that no single part of the empire would control. Once it had been established, he said, the bank could set up an arbitrary unit of value, to be known as the "rex." The value of the "rex" would be 113 grains of gold, and the value of gold 20 times that of silver.

To Import U. S. Gold.

MEXICO CITY, May 15—(AP)—American gold currency will be imported in large quantities into Mexico and circulated to check the fall of the silver peso. Representatives of all banks doing business in Mexico at a meeting last night to consider the situation decided that perhaps a partial solution lay in bringing in enough American gold to satisfy the public demand for gold currency.

It was also agreed to form a consortium to control foreign exchange and avoid operations of unscrupulous speculators which would cause a further depreciation in silver.

The treasury department announced at the same time that a free exchange of gold between Mexico and other countries would become effective immediately, thus allowing re-exportation to the United States of gold, brought here to improve the exchange, in excess of the amount which proves necessary.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—They beat United States Steel down to the incredible new eight year record low price of 101⅝ on the New York Stock exchange today. They battered American Can to 100⅝ and rode General Motors to 39¾, the lowest it has been in weeks.

American Telephone was made to walk the gangplank with the whole utility group in its wake and the railroad shares were driven headlong into the abyss for additional losses of from 1 to 3 points or more.

Bear forces were in control everywhere and they laid a trail of red ruin through every department of the list. No sign of the banking support which the street has come to expect for beleaguered pivotals when the market reaches such a demoralized state was forthcoming at any stage of the day's dismal operations. The absence of such support has become more and more noticeable for days and has contributed no little to the growing concern of the speculative community.

News of Labor Trouble.

The belief now is that it has been fully realized in such circles that the task of wage readjustment would have to be faced sooner or later. News of labor difficulties now filtering through from various sources is generally interpreted as marking the approach of what might be called a "showdown" in larger industries. Under such circumstances it is contended there is naturally little or no inclination to attempt anything of aggressive character in the speculative market.

Hence the rising note of pessimism among the brokerage house letters which go out from day to day. Some of them were guessing tonight that no hope for improvement could be entertained until United States Steel and American Can and some others of leadership rating have found resistance levels admittedly not yet in sight. Both the "big" leaders came perilously close to bumping par this afternoon, American Can escaping the distinction by only a fraction of a point. For a while, indeed, it looked as though the two were on a neck

HEAR WHOLESALE PRICE OF CIGARETS WILL BE INCREASED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—An increase in the wholesale prices of "popular brands" of cigarets will be announced shortly, it was learned today from reliable sources in the tobacco trade. The exact amount of the increase has not been decided upon, but it may bring a boost as high as 40 cents a thousand from the present rate of $6.40, it was said.

Officials of the four companies manufacturing the larger sellers will not discuss the reported contemplated price increase. While other sources state that no official agreement has been made, an advance by one of the companies, it was said, will immediately be followed by similar increases by the others.

The recent advance in the retail prices of these cigarets by the United Cigar Stores of America and Schulte Retail Stores was followed by price markups by thousands of smaller dealers throughout the country. The only large sellers which have failed to participate in the price advance are the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, the Daniel Reeves, and James Butler chain stores and several large department stores which handle these brands.

INTEREST RATES ON FOREIGN TIME DEPOSITS CUT

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Interest rates paid on foreign time deposits kept in New York banks for periods running from thirty days to six months have been reduced, it was learned today, from 2 to 1½ per cent. The 1 per cent rate on demand deposits remains unchanged.

The new rate, which becomes effective on May 18, is accepted as another move toward cheapening credit. It is regarded also another part of the comprehensive effort to divert excess funds from New York by making interest rates so unattractive that the money will seek employment elsewhere.

The new rate does not come within the jurisdiction of the clearing house, which defines the maximum interest rates which its members may pay on domestic deposits. The committee in charge of this latter matter met on May 11, following the reduction in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to the record low level of 1½ per cent, but took no action. The next meeting of the committee will be held on May 25.

Lawndale National Bank to Occupy Larger Quarters

The Lawndale National bank this morning will move into a $250,000 addition to its banking home at 3237 West 26th street. A reception in connection with the opening will begin at 9 this morning and extend through during the evening. The Lawndale National, which was chartered in 1912, is an $8,000,000 institution. Sometime ago the Twenty-sixth Street bank was merged with it. Frank J. Hajicek is president.

Another bank to celebrate today will be the Parkway State bank which is observing its seventh anniversary. Daniel A. Orth is president.

S. W. Straus New Accounts Show Gain of 50 Per Cent

The number of new accounts secured by S. W. Straus & Co. during the first four months of 1931 showed a 50.5 per cent gain over the same period of 1930, according to an announcement made yesterday by S. H. Kahn, executive vice president. The Chicago country division made a gain of 72.1 per cent. Other increases in the midwest were: Milwaukee, 15.6 per cent; Minneapolis, 114.1 per cent, and Detroit, 59.4 per cent. The total gain in the midwest was 46.1 per cent. In the eastern territory, the gain was 62.8 per cent.

DEALERS IN AUTO RADIOS ADOPT NEW TRADE CODE

A reorganization of the merchandising and customer relations of the new auto-radio industry was effected when 33 manufacturers and distributors and five sales financing companies agreed to a code of trade practice rules proposed by the Better Business bureau at a conference in the Palmer House last night.

The code adopted forbids misleading advertisements, "giving away" of sets, endless chain selling and similar abuses.

"The industry got off to a wrong start," said Frank H. Lanser, of the financial division of the bureau, "and now the leaders have agreed to stop unfair competition and get down to real merchandising of auto-radio sets.

"A group of 'shoppers' will be employed to keep a check on selling methods, and violations of the law will be vigorously prosecuted."

Evanston Business Men to Hear Talk on Tax Burden

Mounting taxes, an increasing burden to industry, will be discussed by J. Paul Clayton, president of the Illinois chamber of commerce, at a noon luncheon of the Evanston chamber of commerce to be held at the North Shore hotel, Evanston, next Monday. The state chamber some time ago appointed a taxation committee under the direction of Charles M. Thompson, dean of the school of business administration of the University of Illinois, to make a thorough study of taxation in Illinois. The study is being carried out in the belief that an understanding of taxes on the part of business men is vitally necessary before any suggestions or reforms can be carried out.

Bank of Netherlands Reduces Interest Rates

AMSTERDAM, Holland, May 15.—(AP)—The Bank of Netherlands today reduced the bank rate and other interest rates from 2½ per cent to 2 per cent.

FRISCO RAILWAY FINDS PASSENGER CUT A FAILURE

Montgomery, Ala., May 14.—(AP)—The St. Louis and San Fransico railroad today advised the Alabama public service commision its experimental passenger rate of 2 cents a mile "had not served to increase travel" and that it would seek to restore the 3.6 cent rate effective July 1. The announcement was made by J. R. Koontz, vice president of the railroad, in a telegram to the commission as follows:

"We have had two cent passenger fare in effect for period of three months. At time of promulgation we advised you it was experimental. Possibilities are that the period of depression is not conducive of a true test, but our experiment has not served to increase travel and has resulted in substantial monthly loss in our passenger revenue. Effective July 1 we will withdraw rate and go back to original basis (3.6 per mile). Your acquiescence and acknowledgment will be appreciated."

With the exception of old mutton sheep which is selling in competition with low priced Texas stock, all classes of live stock sold to better prices on yesterday's session, following the biggest gains. The top moved up mostly 10c, the top all average showing that much gain at $7.35 and $8.80, respectively.

The meager supply of cattle held in pen scored on Thursday's market, while limbs were firm at the packer day's decline. Aged sheep went down 15@25c to the lowest point since before the war.

Activity died down in the hog market after shipping orders had been filled and part of the advance was lost, although some of the late sales still showed 5@10c gain. Unsorted ranged from steady to 20c lower, with 140@190 lb. averages and weights due to the unsettled condition of the wholesale market for fresh pork loins. Light weight loins are selling 15 per pound lower than earlier in the week.

Bids at the present price level for a fair "cut out" value for the entire, but movement of the product is slow to encourage active buying of live hogs. The trade looks for a increase in offerings during the next few weeks. With few exceptions bids are usually an increase in receipts during the last half of May and the totals are usually larger than the totals of the corresponding week, according to records. A year ago there was only a slight gain in receipts, but in the receipts during the last half of May were 20 per cent larger than during the first half.

Top September Hogs Sell.

Another sale of 25 carloads of lighter heavy hogs was made on Saturday's market yesterday. The top was $7.60, or 10c under last Monday's sale of 25 loads for the next delivery, the first half of next month. May light were bid $7.00 for the remainder of the month. June bids were offered at $7.50 and bid $7.75, while September light were off sold at $7.30. On the "to arrive" basis light weights for next Monday's delivery were bid $7.25.

The meager supply of 2,000 cattle sold at fully steady prices yesterday, with packing stock showing slight gains. Five steers averaging 1,302 lbs. reached $8.35, but the top for lots of steers stopped at $8.10 and yearling heifers averaging 748 lbs. were sold at $8.25. There has been a stronger undertone in the cattle market during the last few days, in spite of the reported slow movement of dressed beef and the cancellation of big carcasses on the racks down the first of the month.

Hogs on the first of May showed by smallest holdings of beef this year, the total in the United States being 9,134,000 lbs, comparing with 9,920,000 lbs. on Jan. 1. The trade looks for a decrease in cattle supplies during the next 15 days.

Sheep on New Bottom.

Sales of aged ewes yesterday were below the extreme low spot of last winter, which was the lowest level in many previous days. Wool ewes were bought at $1.35, while top shorn stock ranged to $2.75. Aged lambs, however, were in fair demand at fully steady prices, wool stock selling at $8.25@8.75, while shorn lambs sold at $8.50 and below.

The small supply of native spring lambs sold largely at $10.00@11.25, the lightest "throw outs" at $5.00@6.50. Some California springers were sold at $10.00. The trade expects heavier supplies the remainder of the week.

Definite receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated at 35,000 to 45,000. J. T. Brown sorted 12,000; H. Pattison, 24,000; G. T. Chandler, 24,000; H. S. Turner, 7,000; F. W. Young, 28,000; W. T. Tanner, 20,000; F. Knutsen, F. M. Harvard, C. Southwick, R. B. Ellis, A. G. Wellsher, 40,000; J. M. Evans and G. Brittain, 41,000; H. Boyd, 42,000; E. S. Waterbury and J. Loud, 42,000, and F. Gehrmann, 45,000.

Illinois Coal Output 4,000,000 Tons a Month

Springfield, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—An average of four million tons of coal each month has been produced by Illinois mines so far this year, Director John H. Gulliksen of the department of mines and minerals reported today. The total for the first four months of the year was 16,034,541 tons, 33,100,000 tons under production for the first four months the last year. One hundred and forty-five mines worked in April, employing 28,543 men an average of 197 days, and producing a total for the months of 3,923,524 tons, the report revealed.

INCREASES CAPACITY.

Work will start at once on construction of a furnace at the Saginaw Malleable Iron division of General Motors corporation, which will increase its capacity 50 per cent.

TRADE IN WHEAT MART IS LIGHT; PRICES ERRATIC

Drought Continuing in the Canadian Northwest.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Weather conditions were the dominating influence in the wheat market yesterday with the continued drought in the Canadian northwest more than offsetting the increasing tendency shown to raise estimates on the prospective winter wheat crop. Trade, however, was unusually light and largely of a local character, with the result prices fluctuated in a most erratic manner within a range of 1c, with the finish at intermediate figures. New crop months gained ¼@½c for the day, with July 62@62¼c; September, 61⅝@62c, and December, 65¼c, while old May was unchanged at 81½c.

Conditions in the Canadian northwest are becoming increasingly serious, according to reports from that section, with severe dust storms in parts of the three provinces. Official reports on rainfall in Manitoba from April 1 to May 13, taking an average of all the stations, showed .47 inches rain this season, compared with 2.74 inches last year and 3.27 inches as the normal for the last 10 years. In Saskatchewan precipitation has been .38 inches, against 1.31 inches in 1930 and a 10 year average of 2.58 inches, while Alberta has received .75 inches, compared with 2.09 inches last year and 2.98 inches as the 10 year average.

Winter Crop Outlook Good.

Aside from the continued dry weather in the spring wheat area, with the forecast for generally fair in the prairie provinces, there was little in the situation which the trade regarded as bullish. Numerous reports were received from the southwest regarding the excellent condition of winter wheat. F. F. Thompson of J. E. Bennett & Co., who was in Oklahoma, wired he had never seen such a perfect outlook. The crop there is about 10 days ahead of normal, and the trade is puzzled as to what they are going to do with the grain when it starts to move.

In the last few days there has been a rather pronounced tendency to raise estimates on the prospective crop in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas, and this has offset to a large extent the effect of the dry weather reports from both the American and Canadian northwest, and also from abroad. Cables from Europe showed such a wide variance as to counteract each other.

European Demand Slow.

London cables claimed American No. 2 hard winter was offered there at lower prices than Canadian, but no figures on sales were given. Winnipeg reported 100,000 bu durum sold during the day, but the general demand from Europe was slow. Winnipeg closed ⅝@¾c higher, with July at 2⅜c, while Liverpool was ⅛@⅝d lower, with July 68½c. The latter was only 3⅛c over Winnipeg at the time it closed, the smallest premium in about seven weeks.

Commission houses were on both sides of corn futures on a limited scale, with some buying on the belief that the break of 4½c from the high point of the week had been sufficient for the time being. Holders of bids also bought, but the undertone was rather heavy and the finish unchanged to ¾c lower, the latter on May, which closed at 57c. July was 58⅛@58⅜c; September, 57¾@57¾c, and December, 50¼c.

Wheat Heading Now in Oklahoma Fields

"Wheat is heading out through Yukon and El Reno," says a wire from E. H. Miller, crop expert for J. E. Bennett & Co., who has just completed a 150 mile drive through Oklahoma. "Heads are medium and condition excellent. Found traces of black rust just west of Yukon, but none in other fields. In fields near El Reno wheat is shoulder high, very rank growth, and just starting to head. Southwest wheat is thinner but well rooted, and not suffering for moisture. Oats over entire section could not be better; all headed and in perfect condition. Very large acreage of corn being planted, with some of it up. First cutting of excellent crop of alfalfa under way. Pasture excellent everywhere."

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat values are influenced largely by weather reports from the northwest and by operations of a few pit traders. Outside business is so thin that prices are easily influenced ½c or more either way by buying or selling. The disposition is to go slow until more is known of the northwestern spring wheat situation both sides of the international line. Reports on winter wheat are so good that any change will be for the worse. In the meantime traders are disposed to limit commitments.

It is said that stubbornness in the Kansas City future market in the face of the good crop prospects is due in a measure to absence of hedging pressure on one side and an indisposition to buy on the other. Millers are awaiting the first run of new wheat to stock up and indications are that they will be able to absorb a large quantity of wheat because few of them have any stock on hand.

—o—

It is said that spring wheat in South Dakota has been re-seeded in some sections, due to unsatisfactory weather during the latter part of last month. Millers have sold their stocks of wheat so that they have practically less than at any time. All await movement of the new crop, when they expect to load up.

SELLERS OFFER MORE SHARES ON CHICAGO BOARD

Trading Rises as Bears Grow More Confident.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Failing to win a release from the selling pressure to which they have been subject for several days stocks on the Chicago exchange were forced to give up further ground yesterday. Sellers grew more confident and offered stock in greater quantities than at any time this week.

The volume of transactions swelled to 87,000 shares, which was a substantial gain over the previous day's total. Some of the increase in volume was believed to represent real liquidation by investors who have been discouraged by the gloomy advice which most of the brokers are handing out.

Allied Products Weakens.

There were few features in the day's trade. A loss of nearly 4 points in Allied Products was conspicuous in the closing prices but the recession was not typical of the list as a whole. Most of the losses were small with pressure pretty evenly distributed over all classes of issues. Other motor shares sustained fractional losses.

The decline in brokers' loans received only passing interest. It was the acute weakness in two of the leading pivotals on the big board which inspired the bearish sentiment. The street is no longer talking much about second quarter earnings report. The general expectation is that these statements will reveal much the same conditions as were reflected in the first quarter reports.

Speculation over the dividend policy which will be followed by the directors of a number of the large corporations at mid-year is inclined to be bearish. Although still a long way off, the U. S. Steel meeting is looked forward to with some anxiety. The nearby future promises little significant change in the opinion of a majority of traders.

Merchandising Policy.

Lane Drug Stores, Inc., which adopted a drastic retrenchment policy last year in eliminating twenty-two units in its chain, is planning an aggressive merchandising policy during the coming year, stockholders were told at the annual meeting, which was held in Atlanta, Ga. Officials expressed themselves as optimistic over prospects.

Three new vice presidents were elected and John H. Mulliken was named chairman of the board. Tate L. Earnest was elected executive vice president and John B. Bowen and Ernest L. Bridges were made junior vice presidents.

Last March the company reduced its capital from $2,461,325 to $1,000,000 by writing down its assets and eliminating organization expense.

Charles H. Swift, vice president of Swift International, said yesterday that there has been no change in the South American meat packing situation and the company knows of none which is likely occur. The statement was made in answer to adverse rumors which developed with the weakness in Swift International stock yesterday. The issue firmed up after issuance of the statement, but finished with a moderate net loss in common with other packing shares.

Electric Bond and Share.

Would you recommend purchase of Electric Bond and Share company stock at this time? I inclose a stamped envelope for reply.—C. J. L.

Electric Bond and Share company performs various functions in the utility field. It is a holding company by virtue of owning 53 per cent of the common stock of American and Foreign Power corporation. It has substantial minority interests in American Power and Light company, Electris Power and Light corporation, and National Power and Light company. A large part of its business is the furnishing of financial, legal, and technical service to utility companies. It also operates as a general management investment trust.

Net income for 1930 was $42,355,163, or $2.43 per common share on shares outstanding at the end of the year, or $2.49 per common share on the average number of shares outstanding during the year. For 1929 net income was $32,511,523, or $1.97 per common share on the shares outstanding at the end of the year, or $2.22 per share on the average number of shares outstanding during the year.

Stock dividends received are computed at the value at which they are entered on the books of the issuing company. Had stock dividends been valued at market net income would have equaled $2.19 per common share for 1930, against $4.93 per share in 1929 on the average number of shares outstanding.

The company's current position on Dec. 31, 1930, was strong. Current assets were $91,886,416 and current liabilities were $6,768,983. Cash and call loans were $52,143,837. Net working capital was $85,117,433, against $137,394,135 the year before.

On Dec. 31, 1930, securities having a market value of approximately $608,698,000 were carried on the company's books at $910,129,526. On March 7, 1931, market value of securities was approximately $786,960,000. On Dec. 31, 1930, it held securities of 55 companies.

In addition to those previously mentioned stock interests were held in Commonwealth and Southern corporation, American Superpower corporation, United Gas corporation, United corporation, and others.

On Dec. 31, 1930, capitalization consisted of 1,155,523 shares of no par $5 cumulative preferred, 200,000 shares of no par $5 cumulative preferred, and 14,351,121 shares of no par common. The two classes of preferred have equal rights. Dividends on the common have been paid at the annual rate of 6 per cent in stock since July 15, 1929.

Both the preferred and common are high grade.

NEW LOW ON COTTON

Cotton was under pressure yesterday from the bear interests and liquidators, due to the weakness in the stock market and more favorable weather conditions. Buying power was inadequate to take the offerings, except toward the last, when there was a small rally. At the close futures in Chicago were 8@12 points lower, with New Orleans off 10@13 and New York 9@15 points. Spots in New York dropped 10 points to 9.50c, New Orleans declined 11 points to 9.20c, while Galveston was 9.40c and Houston 9.20c. Liverpool was 7 points lower with spot sales 4,000 bales.

Reports from the dry goods trade indicate slowness in buying with price concessions. Spinners' takings of American cotton for the week were 215,000 bales, against 158,000 bales last year. Into sight movement for the week was 80,000 bales, against 85,000 bales last year. The impression prevails that the market is headed for lower prices. Prices follow:

STOCK BROKER BUYS 107 ACRES IN LAKE COUNTY

Plans Artificial Lake and Small Estates.

BY AL CHASE.

Fred D. Sadler, senior partner of the Chicago Stock exchange firm of Fred D. Sadler & Co., yesterday purchased 107 acres in Lake county, just west of the Lake Forest city limits, and across Conway road from Tollhurst, his own ninety-three acre estate. Milledge D. Bullard of Highland Park, the only broker in the transaction, states that an artificial lake of approximately fifteen acres may be constructed and the property sold in five and ten acre estates.

FRED D. SADLER.

The property was purchased from the First National bank of Waukegan, executor of the estate of George Francis Redmond, for an undisclosed consideration. Mr. Sadler bought Tollhurst, comprising ninety-three acres, three years ago from Andrew J. Maloney, president of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company

Bought for $365.

All of the combined 200 acres, comprising Tollhurst and the 107 acres purchased yesterday, had been in the possession of members of the Redmond family since 1850. The land office in Chicago shows the first owner to have been Patrick Dorson of Chicago, who acquired title in 1846. Several transfers were made prior to 1850 at which time Michael Redmond paid $265 for the entire piece.

Mr. Sadler's Tollhurst estate adjoins Louis F. Swift's Westleigh Farm on the west and is only a short distance north northwest of Albert D. Lasker's Mill Road Farm. The Melody Farm club is only half a mile to the north.

Grunsfeld Wins Gold Medal.

Ernest A. Grunsfeld Jr. yesterday was awarded the gold medal of honor for the best architectural design on exhibition at the annual exhibit of architects at the Arts Club of Chicago, in the Wrigley building annex. The Adler planetarium was Mr. Grunsfeld's prize winner. The medal was given by the Chicago chapter, American Institute of Architects.

The annual exhibition of the work of local architects, sponsored by the Chicago Architectural Exhibition league, opened yesterday with a reception. It will be open to the public today and thereafter until June 6. Francis Baldwin, president of the Architectural Sketch Club of Chicago, is head of the league.

More Wacker Drive Parking.

Nathan William MacChesney yesterday leased the property at 65-67 East Wacker drive, just southwest of the Mather Tower, a tract fronting 102 feet on the boulevard and with a depth of 100 feet, to the Downtown Parking Stations, Inc., for a five year term. The old four story brick structures will be wrecked at once to make way for open air automobile parking. The lease contains a cancellation clause in event the owner intends to build.

Gus Mann, owner of Mann's Seafood Grotto, at 117 South Dearborn street, has leased for ten years the ground floor and basement at 73 East Lake street, between Wabash and Michigan, now occupied by Leighton's restaurant, from the Interstate company through Gerard E. Hausen. He will call his new eating place Mann's Rainbow Seafood tavern.

Frank J. Peerling, president of the Peerling Marble company, purchased the building at 7749-57 South Halsted street, from Black & Hayden, for a reported $70,000. The McFarland-Keenan company, automobiles, has a five year lease on the property, with option of five additional. Dwyer & Lennon were brokers.

LARD STOCKS INCREASED

Lard stocks in Chicago increased 5,138,445 lbs between April 30 and May 14, with a total of 44,931,932 lbs. A year ago they were 45,539,000 lbs, or 607,000 lbs more than at present. Stocks of dry salted clear bellies are 20,330,000 lbs. against 19,656,000 lbs two weeks ago and 9,486,000 lbs last year.

Trading in lard was fair yesterday with no particular features. There was enough offered to more than satisfy requirements of buyers and prices closed 7½@10c lower, the lowest on the present downturn. Liverpool lard was 3d lower. Export clearances were only 7,000 lbs and of bacon 20,000 lbs. Cash business was fair. Hogs were up sharply on lighter receipts than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:
